Most anybody is pie for the Hamilton Spec's pieman. I think the egg trust is in for some thing. The hens are laying for it. Just while you're talking, a dress suit suits Mayor Sulman's figure.

How can we direct the good Samaritan where to take us home at night when there is not street signs.

It was more room they wanted at the public General Hospital that was why they added the wash room.

I move that the council save up their money and put up illuminated street name signs for night use.

The Fire Chief says the Chaplin factory isn't close enough to a water supply. We know lots of people who don't want to be. The council has refused to put name signs on the streets and we will have to go another year without knowing what street we live on. In discussing T. L. Pardo as a candi-

PRAISES THE BATHS

John Dillon one of the ofdest residents of this county and one of the first elected county councillors, was in the city Saturday, Sunday and Monthe city Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and while here took a number of baths in the mineral bath house. Mr. Dillom has taken baths in all of the bath houses in this vicinity, and was greatly pleased with Chatcham's sanitarium and mineral water. "You have one of the best baths here I have ever seen," said he, "and far exceeds those that I have patronized. Your house here is well equipped, is well provided with the very best of service. "I was taken sick and the doctors here called it 'Grip.' I lay for four weeks in bed, then when I got up I found I had 'displacement.' Had such aches and pains in my back and limbs could not stand any length of time. I knew that our home doctor would insist the first thing on an examination, and that I would not submit to, unless I was dangerously sick. My son had your book, "Common Sense Medical Adviser," and I thought from reading it that Dr. Pierce's medicine would do me more good than all the home doctors—and so it has. I can truly say I was surprised at the benefit I received. I can do all my washing and also tend my flower garden. In fact I am on my feet most all the time. An old friend of mine said to me, 'Why what is the matter with you You are getting young again.' I told her I had taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's medicines, and that if she would do likewise she would feel ten years younger, too."

composite in its appeal for laughs. Although described as a musical farce, it is said to combine artfully nearly all of the qualities that go to the success of farce, comic opera, burlesque and even minstrelsy, its characters being so assorted that contribution during the performance partakes of these several qualities without conflict. Arthur Deming is the funny man entrusted with the steller role. Everybody who knows anything of minstrelsy knows Deming. Everybody who is an authority, confesses that he is the foremost man in stage fun to-day. In "Don't Tell My Wife" he is seen as the husband, and by a clever device of the author is kept attached to all the comic events of very comic story. "Don't Tell My Wife" is by Howard Hall, known far and wide as a clever maker of light stage pieces. It is presented with scenery and costumes calculated to please the eye, and with a company that has proven hilarious enough to capture big records for long runs in the big cities of the East. It will be here on Friday evening, April 25th, at the Grand.

CLASSROOM GLACIERS.

How Modern Geology Imitates Ac tion of Prehistoric Ice Rivers. A miniature glacier which can be set to work in a laboratory and which will in a few hours furnish an example of what a real glacier would do in as many centuries is an illustration of the novel methods of study which the new school of geology employs. Such a model of a glacier is now used for class instruction in the geological department of Harvard university, although it was originally instructed under the direction of Dr. T. A. Jaggar as an aid to investigations undertaken for the purpose of showing the formation of sand delta plains by glacial fivers. These deltas are found over many parts of the glacial area of North America and may be seen in process of formation, for example, at the mouths of some of the glacial rivers of the Alaskan coast. An ancient plain of this sort, dating back to the glacial period, is in Newtonville, a few miles from Boston.

The glacial stream flowing from be neath the ice is supposed to have carved out and deposited successive layers of sand in the sea or lagoon that washed the ice front. The deposit is leaf shaped, and when the ice of the glacier has melted away a "stem" known as the "esker" of the delta is left, marking the sand choked channel of the original stream. The same result is achieved by the appliance at the Harvard laboratory, which consists of a piece of lead bent into the general shape of a glacier and making an artificial cavern set in a tank of water. A hose supplies the glacial stream, which is fed through a tunnel, with alternate coal dust and marble dust for sediment, which is deposited in the miniature lagoon in layers of black and white. The apparatus has worked perfectly, the experiments giving variations in the forms of the deltas according as the water was maintained at a higher or lower level, but always showing the characteristic front and the surface deposits with clearly defined beds.

Making Invisible Pictures. Invisible pictures of a new kind are the invention of a German scientist hamed Kretschmann, who utilizes for the purpose salts of cobalt, which are pale rose in color when cold, but change to deep blue on being heated. Prints of the kind look like mere blank paper of a pinkish hue until held near a fire, when they quickly undergo a transfor-mation and reveal the hidden designs.

The secret of it is to employ a paper that is of the same rose tint as that of the cobalt salts with which the printing ink is made. Thus the print is of the same hue as the background and, offering no contrast with the latter, should not be visible. As a matter of fact, faint outlines of the design have a tendency to show, but this difficulty is overcome and the picture made absolutely viewless by printing it first with a white ink and then with a rose cobalt ink covering the white.

It is obvious that in this manner pictures may be sent secretly, to be disclosed later by holding the paper near Hindoo Weddings. Hindoo weddings usually come in the lot months, when the families have letsure to prepare for them, but an astrologer must select an auspicious day for the event. The groom is ready for his preliminary game of diplomacy, which is scarcely more than a "bluff." This is a pretense to visit the sacred Ganges at Benares and wash away his sine in its healing waters. Generally, there would not be time before the redding day to complete such a jour-ney when the groom undertakes it, but the readiness must be shown, and the company sets out. When the bride's father meets them and dissuades the groom from such an undertaking, he is groom from such an undertaking, he is very ready to stop. He is assured, moreover, that his sins have not been so grievous as to need cleansing before his nuptials. If the bride's father is satisfied with his spiritual condition, the young man may need say no more, but he returns and prepares the thai, or gold badge, that all married women must wear suspended from their necks.
