TOMMY AND GRANDPA.

GRANDPA lay sleeping serenely where the shade of the maples was cast.

The hammock was swayed by the zephyrs. That kissed his high brow as they passed.

Perhaps he was dreaming of angels. As Tommy played near him out there, chasing butterflies out of the flowers.

And tossing his curls in the air. The hose was attached to the hydrant. With a full head of water turned on.

And the nozzle lay harmless, unnoticed. Where the grass had grown brown on the lawn.

Dear grandpa, with one leg hung over the side of the hammock, still swayed. And the leaves fluttered gaily above him.

It was eighty or so in the shade. A smile was on grandpa's glad features. When Tommy discovered the hose.

Perhaps he was dreaming of cherubs. Or beautiful fairies, who knows? But the smile disappeared when sweet Tommy.

Forgetting that grandpa was there, stood carelessly letting the water squirt forty feet up in the air.

With a yell like a grown up Comanche. Dear grandpa attempted to rise. The water streamed under his collar.

And into his ears and his eyes. With a foot tangled up in the hammock. He leaped like a trout on the hook.

And turned three flips without stopping. To pick out the course that he took.

A child who had stains on his features. Whose eyes were still tearful and red. Lay sobbing, with sad recollections.

And tossing alone in his bed. His breast was embowered with sorrow. In his heart and elsewhere he was sore.

And he murmured, "I don't want to never go visitin' grandpa no more!"

A Practical Difficulty.

He—I'd go to the end of the world with you, darling!

She—Yes, but have you got the car fare?

Pertinent Advice.

"Doctor," she said, "did you ever lose a patient?"

"Lots of them," he replied gruffly. "Well, I'm afraid I shouldn't be at all satisfied with you," she explained.

"I must have so much confidence in my doctor, you know, or I will be perfectly miserable, especially about the baby."

"You'd better try young Dr. Jinks in the next block," advised the old practitioner. "He's never lost a patient."

"Are you sure?"

"Positive. He's never had one to lose."

Encouragement.

When they take the beautiful woman from the wreck, she begs to be left to die.

"I have nothing to live for!" she cries.

"You are mistaken as to that," they argue gently, "for see what a swell shape the collision has battered your hat into!"

Now she opens her eyes, and it is plain that new courage has entered her heart.

And They Never Do It.

"He would be all right," said the man who is always criticising others, "if it weren't for his fearful habit of mendacity."

"I have always regarded him as possessing the highest ideas of honor."

"Yes, but he is one of those people who are always announcing that they are going to tell you the funniest story you ever heard."

Help! Help!

"You are surely not going home without police protection!" said one Pittsburgher to another, who had been marketing.

"Why not?" demanded the other, surprised.

"What! With that fine tenderloin steak you have just bought?"

Heard in the Rain.

"I wonder how many more hours

we'll have to wait for a car!" cried the lady impatiently. "This is awful!"

"And yet," added her cunning husband, who saw his opportunity, "you find fault with me for not coming home sooner from the office of nights."

Comparisons.

He—My love for you, darling, is as deep and as pure as the lake at our feet.

She—Yes, and you are just as fresh.

Should Get One.

Blubb—I am all run down.

Slubb—Why don't you get an automobile yourself?—Philadelphia Record.

Paine's Celery Compound.

Permanently Cures sick and Nervous Headaches That Make Life Miserable.

Sick and nervous headaches are amongst the worst ills of life. The man or woman who is subject to headache at irregular intervals, goes on through life bearing a load of misery and wretchedness that is terrible to think of.

Headaches, as a rule, result from a disordered condition of the nervous system. Mental excitement, loss of sleep, bodily fatigue and disordered digestion are exciting causes. When the brain becomes tired and debilitated the whole nervous system is weakened and headaches result. If the liver is sluggish, the kidneys inactive and digestion deranged, headaches invariably follow. To cure and prevent headache, the nervous system must be strengthened and vitalized. The most persistent cases of headache, feebleness and sleeplessness are permanently cured by Paine's Celery Compound; it is the great reconstructive of the nervous system. Mrs. A. H. Watson, Creemore, Ont., writes, as follows:

"For many years I was sorely troubled with violent headache, so that at times I was completely prostrated and unable to attend to my household duties. I started to use Paine's Celery Compound, and experienced immediate relief; and since using it I have not had a recurrence of the trouble. Paine's Celery Compound is an invaluable remedy, and will always be pleased to say a word for it."

His Room.

"Mr. Diggle," said the boy with big ruffles on his shoulders, "I wish you would let me come and see where you live. I want to look at your room."

"Why, certainly. But what made you think of that?"

"My sister said it was better than your company, so I thought it must be something fine."

Gentlemen,—In June, '98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal, until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using, and the effect was magical. In five hours the pain had ceased, and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

AT CAMP IRENE.

A Sketchy Talk by One of the Canadian Teachers Who Went to South Africa to Teach Boer Children.

At last, after five nights on the train, we arrived on Saturday morning, June 1st, at Camp Irene, from which point we were to be sent to our different destinations.

We were met by Mr. Barry, the head master, and some of his staff, and from that moment until the day we got our marching orders we received the utmost consideration from all whom we met. Nothing that could add to our comfort and convenience was forgotten, and the week we spent at Irene will remain in our memories as one of the pleasantest of our South African experiences.

There were all sorts of merry-makings that week, partly in our honor, and partly to celebrate the peace. A dinner on Monday evening, at which the dignitaries of the Education Department from Pretoria were present, and which was really a very enjoyable affair.

Toasts were drunk in good port, speeches were made—one by Dr. Merlen, of New Brunswick, who is to be principal of the new Normal school at Johannesburg—and afterwards in the drawing-room we had some extremely good music. Mr. Barry, who has a fine voice, sang "The Landlady," and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes." Mr. Ligertwood, one of the Education Department men, playing the accompaniment as well as a professional. Mr. Usher, one of the officers, sang "High More." Ladies, in the sweetest of their voices, and altogether the music lovers amongst us had a genuine treat.

Then there was an ex-cart picnic, where we sat on mattresses—about twenty or so—in a huge wagon that seemed to be quite without springs, and jolted joltily over the rough veldt, the driver cracking his whip, shouting at his ten oxen, and taking the utmost pains to drive over every stone and hillock he could get in the way of. After the usual picnic tea we were surrounded by Kaffir children, clamoring for what was left. I could do nothing but gaze at them and admire their varied costumes.

There was one little girl who appealed very strongly to my sympathies, because she seemed to be humpbacked, a thing very unusual among these sturdy, straight-limbed dwellers in the open air. I pointed her out to the colonel, and he was overcome with mirth at my expressions of pity.

"Come and see," he said, and he caught the little girl, who looked about ten years old, pulled her down from her shoulders and there was the funniest little black baby hanging to her neck.

Its little head of eyes staring up at me, and its queer head covered with tufts of wool that looked exactly as if they were stuck on at intervals, and never could have grown out of the scalp in the ordinary way.

We visited the schools too, and found the children doing excellent work. The teachers all seemed enthusiastic, and their pupils are evidently very fond of them. It was charming to hear the little things whenever we most efficient preventive and may be thoroughly relied upon to promote expectoration, soothe the cough, and benefit in many ways too numerous to mention. Both from medical and scientific point of view Catarrhazone is the most valuable addition to the armament against consumption. Its merit cannot be too warmly applauded. Sold by all druggists, two months' treatment, price 4s. small size 25c, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont.

The most lasting reputation is that which deals with deeds well done.

What's done can never be undone—especially if it's a hard boiled egg.

The English "Society for the Prevention of Consumption," presided over by the Prince of Wales, was recently addressed by Sir William Broadbent, who stated that it was definitely known that every case of consumption began with a germ communicated from some other case. There is no such thing as inherited consumption. There may be local weakness which tends to consumption, but the germ is absolutely to be planted in that weak spot before consumption can ensue. This ought to comfort thousands of people who have "weak chests" or "weak lungs." They are not forerunners of this dread disease. All that is needed to bid absolute defiance to this deadly scourge, is to be able to strengthen the weak lungs, and build up a strong body. The answer to this need is found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It so purifies the blood and increases the blood supply, that disease is thrown off, and the weak organs are nourished into perfect health, which defies germs of every kind. People, given up by doctors, emaciated, bleeding at the lungs, with obstinate, lingering coughs, are being cured every day by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery." It is a strictly temperance medicine containing no alcohol, whiskey or other intoxicant.

The tombstone never says mean things about the man who's down.

The man who boasts of his power is not always the most influential.

Yellowstone National Park

This famous national park offers to the tourist and sightseer more novelties and curiosities than perhaps any other spot on earth. The stage ride from Monida is through scenery hardly inferior to the park itself, and this ride is one of the very many enjoyments of the trip.

The new route to the Yellowstone is via the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line Railroads to Monida, Montana, thence daily by palatial Concord coaches of the Monida & Yellowstone Stage Company to all points in the Yellowstone National Park.
