A MIS-FIT MOUTH

like this young man's may not be a thing of beauty, but it gets there just the same when it comes to kisses or cake; but take notice that the gash in his face can't compare with OUR GREAT CUT IN PRICES. We believe in turning over our invested capital as often as possible, and make quick returns recompense us for small profits. We begin right at the start. We mark things low, and the style and quality of the Goods do the rest of the selling. The great rush for Dress Goods still continues, but still we have lots of Goods left, all New Goods, all Fashionable Goods, at PRICES SO LOW as will astonish you. We do not say we sell for less than cost; if we did you would not believe us. We must live and therefore we must have a profit, but our profits are small. Call and see for yourself. Seeing is believing.

LEEburn.

From our own correspondent.
Miss Horton is visiting in Ballet township this week.

Miss Marie Murdoch, of Paramount, is the guest of Miss Edith Horton this week.

Mr and Mrs J.E. O'Connor, of Kingsbridge, were the guests of the latter's parents this week.

Miss Blair, of the Bayfield road, Goderich township, is visiting relatives here this week.

James and Edward Foley were at Kintail on the Queen's Birthday, and were present at the ball there that night.

A. H. Clutton spent several days last week in Stratford, and was well pleased with the stir and hum of business in the Classic city.

Miss J. Foley has returned from a pleasant fortnight's visit from near Kingsbridge. She was the guest of Miss McLaughlin during her stay.

In the late exams at the Model Farm at Guelph, our townsman, F. B. Lufield, made a good record in the second year list, coming out first in several subjects and second in general proficiency in the honor list.

BRAR SYMPATHY.—Dr W. Acheson, formerly resident here, and now practising his profession in the State of Minnesota, when returning from a professional call was chased by a pack of wolves. Being near the woods he was able to climb a tree, being, however, closely pressed. The wolves grabbed his coat-tails and carried part of his coat off his back. In the tree in which he sought refuge bruin too had taken up his quarters above him, but did not molest him, as he had sympathy for him for his smartness in escaping the wolves.

After remaining there for some time the wolves went off and the doctor was able to return safely homeward, and write to old friends in Leeburn of his narrow escape.

The union temperance picnic of the Leeburn, Nile and Porter's Hill lodges of the I. O. G. T., with many friends, came off on the Queen's Birthday on St.
Eleanor Heights at the terminus of Butternut Kow, overlooking the lake. In the deep recesses of the cedar grove the tables were set. A working committee of the house lodge had quite a time raising a mammoth cedar beam for a swing close by the tables, which had quite a number of visitors, particularly fair ones and hosts of admirers who gave them many awings with no complaints of aching arms from pulling the rope.

Baseball, quoits, croquet and football kept many in jovial mood, while others looked on and some, seated along the lake bank, watched the coming of the sailing yacht, the Star, of Goderich, commanded by Admiral Wiggins. The troubled condition of the waters delayed its coming until midday, when it sped into St. Charles harbor, with a pilot boat in tow. Soundings were taken by the pilot boat to the shore, and A. H. Clutton and Gordon going out on it, instructed the Star officers, and persuaded the Admiral to come closer to the shore, when a boat load of twenty-nine embarked for a sail. Whether the noise of the picnics on the dry land or those on the Star disturbed Neptune in his afternoon nap and awoke him in a rage, the waters became greatly troubled, and the weather turned squally, so that landing was difficult, and only four of the party were able to land, and the boat had to return to the Goderich harbor of refuge with the remaining passengers. Until she was safely in the harbor great anxiety prevailed here for the safety of the party on board, and a number of sabbies drove wildly to town for the storm-stayed friends. Supper made those on shore forget the disappointment of not having the next sail.

A large circle of moving motion kept step in that popular song, "The Old Dandy Mule," having lots of onlookers. This ended the day's pleasure, which all enjoyed. The Nile lodge members present were under the care of Bros. Grummett, McLain and Sheppard. The Porter's Hill members walked up from Bro. John Horton's, who kindly made them put their horses in his barn and stables. The South Star lodge was in charge of Bros.
S. McPhail, J. McDonald and R. Cox.
The lodge driving up in procession, a white steed leading their van, was much admired by our Leeburn sisters. The badges of the two lodges also drew forth much admiration. Our visitors, brethren and sisters, are jovial, and have lots of air about them, and we hope each lodge will do its best in furthering the temperance cause in its section. Some members of the Paramount lodge were also at the picnic, and from Goderich F. Blair, J. Patton, H. Hawkins and others; Mr Sheppard, an old teacher of No. 5; A.
Irwin, teacher of Auburn; A. and J.
Rapson, of Constance; W. and John Watters, of Carlow. The latter gave a deep yarn to a group of listeners of a pleasure sail along the Welsh sea coast in which he took part. A vote of thanks is due Mr Chisholm for the use of his field for the ball playing, and to J. Shaw, of Dunlop, for the loan of dishes. The members will hear at the week night meetings of the lodges the experience of their fellow members who had a sail on the bounding waves at the picnic at Lee-burn, Ousep's Birthday, 1889.

Mr Chas. Johnston, Clinton, who has been very unwell, from reason of an absence, is again capable of enjoying his favorite pastime, fishing.

Artist Uhl, who is painting ex-President Cleveland's portrait for the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, says that his subject is a most patient and pliable man. During the sittings Mr Cleveland was as docile as a child and made a model model, so to speak. He was conversational but dignified, stately in pose, but graceful and easy; not handsome, but impressive, massive.
