

fall her, for Lucy had been sufficiently independent to be in position to escape the distasteful suit of Duncan Reiston, while Lillias was helpless to avoid it.

For the present George resolved to remain at Matthew Greigson's cottage. He could not bear the thought of leaving Argowan without again seeing Lillias, and he thought she would wish and expect this like-wise, though doubtless she must be suffering dreadful distress in her ignorance of what had become of him. Knowing nothing of the acquaintance he had formed with Matthew Greigson, she had no means of knowing that he had come into such a snug haven of refuge; how keen, therefore, must her anguish be as she thought of him wandering homeless in that snowy winter night. George's first desire was to relieve her of this keen anxiety by finding some means of acquainting her with his whereabouts, though he did not well know how to manage it. Matthew, however, was able to suggest the means.

"Mrs Rendal at the south lodge is the very woman to help ye in this," he said. "She and Lillias are great friends, and will no doubt be able to communicate with each other. Now, you are going there at any rate for your luggage, and

"That's it," cried George, catching at the suggestion. "If Mrs Rendal is to be trusted, the way has opened."

"Fully trusted," said Matthew, very emphatically, and Lillias endorsed the statement. Thus assured, George set out about midday to find his way to the south lodge.

It was the same gate at which the coach had set him down on the day of his arrival, and here Captain Gibson had intimated that the luggage would be sent, under the idea, no doubt, that George would leave by the coach again on that very day, and pass beyond the sphere of their knowledge for ever.

The value of newspapers is by no means appreciated, but the rapidity with which people are waking up to their necessity and usefulness is one of the significant signs of the times. Few families are now content with a single newspaper. The thirst for knowledge is not easily satisfied, and books though useful—yes, absolutely necessary in their place, fail to meet the demands of youth or age. The village newspaper is eagerly sought, and its contents are eagerly devoured. Then comes the demand for county news, province news, national and foreign news. Next to the political come the literary, and then the scientific journals. Lastly, and above all, come the moral and religious journals. This variety is demanded to satisfy the cravings of the active mind.

THE REASON WHY

Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphorus and Calceyas is called a Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic, because Phosphorus constitutes more than half the material of the human body, and is absolutely essential to the growth of Bone, Muscle and Nerve, which cannot attain full development without them. They promote a good appetite, perfect digestion, create pure, healthy, vitalizing blood, and supply the waste constantly going on in the system as the result of mental and physical exertion. Being combined with Calceyas, the Peruvian Bark, the only specific for Chills and Fever, and that condition of Nervous Prostration and General Debility arising from low vitality and excessive diseases, it forms an elegant and agreeable, invigorating Tonic, purely physiological in its action, that may be taken safely under all circumstances, and in all diseased conditions of the body, as it builds up the constitution in the same manner as our daily food.
