Had to Wait His Turn. In the days of Gen. Sam. Houston, duel-

ing was much more common than now. After removing to Texas Gen. Houston happened to give offense to a political opponent, who felt his honor disfigured to such an extent that he sent a challenge to Houston. The bearer of the challenge received courtly civilty. He handed the written challenge to Gen. Houston, who read it and taking up his pen wrote something across the back of the folded paper and placed it in a pigeon hole of his desk.

He then went on to entertain the bearer of the challenge with the pleasant conversation for which he was noted. After a time the man began to grow impatient, and reminding the General of the challenge, asked him if he was going to reply. 'Oh yes," said Houston, "I am going Well, are you going to accept the challenge of my friend?" 'Certainly I will accept it."

"Will you fix the date for to-morrow?" "No, not to-morrow." "Next day?"

"No, not the next day either."

"Well, will you fix the date?" "No, I am not able to fix a date. You saw me number your friend's note; it is No. 49. There are forty-eight other blanked scoundrels ahead of your friend and I must take them in turn. As soon as I have killed them off I will return to your friend; but he will have to wait until his turn comes.

The bearer of the challenge bowed himself out; but of course his friend's turn never came and it is not probable that he was anxious for it to come.-Knoxville

They do not seem even distantly related to the heap of huckaback and damask which the fingers of the muititude handle on the bargain counter. They are as fine as silk, the bird's eye weave of the background close and soft. They are big affairs. They have drawn work as delluate as lace, and embroidery almost as fine as that on christening robes for their adornment. Sometimes the embroidery is of pale pink and blue, but usually it is in linen tints.
