Plans for extensive fall and winter work, as outlined some weeks ago, will be further considered at another meeting of the special unemployment committee of the Social Service Council Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The city engineer's advice that he has more work than can possibly be accomplished this fall and must necessarily be carried on through the winter months, is received generally as a good omen for the future. There is a growing, persistent feeling among citizens, however, that if the present city councillors actually contemplate acting upon any of the different suggestions to undertake certain public improvements they are allowing valuable time to slip state. WAGE REDUCTIONS treal This Afternoon.

Montreal, Sept. 28 .- Many leaders and representatives of several great railway unions arrived in Montreal this morning for the preliminary session of the railway conciliation board, which begins its sittings here in the courthouse this afernoon. It was anticipated that the board's inquiry will be held in private, although Mr. Justice MacLennan, chairman, stated yesterday that in his opinon the proceedings would be open. They should be," he said, "as they affect 35,000 men and about 150 women." S. N. Berry, senior vice-chairman of the Order of Railway Conductors, and W. G. Chester, chairman of conductors of the Canadian Pacific system, howto have escaped early this morning durrequest a private hearing.

The conciliation board, which will inquire into the wages reductions recently announced by the Canadian Pacific, Canadian National, Grand Trunk and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway was applied for by employees of all these lines. Their representatives are optimistic as to the result of the board's sittings. The wage reductions in ques-tion are identical with those announced by the United States railway board, but the employees of Canadian lines are protesting against them, con-tending that they received no increases until the cost of living had soared to a peak where it became impossible to live ecently. "I can't see that it has come down, either," said Mr. Berry.
