A Brief Account of our Pleasant Experiences with The Canadian Weekly Newspaper Party on our Trip abroad
By H. B. ANSLOW

London, July 1.—This letter will consist chiefly of extracts from papers, and are republished to convey to our readers something of what the old Newspapers thought of the Canadian editors. The first two are from the Paris edition of the New York Herald.

(New York Herald Paris Edition) June 26)

"Tired but cheerful after their tour of the battlefields where their fellow Canadians fought with valor during four years, 172 representatives of Canadian newspapers reached the Gare du Nord, Paris last night. For the next three days they will be the guests of La Bienvenue Française. Their headquarters will be at the Hotel Moderne, place de la République, and the Lyons-Palace Hotel, near the Gare de Lyons. An elaborate program of entertainment has been arranged, with the participation of prominent government officials.

At nine o'clock this morning, a pilgrimage will be made to the tomb of France's Unknown Soldier, where General Gérard will receive the delegation on behalf of the French Ministry of War. An hour later, ten autocars will carry them on a tour of Paris, and the capital's streets will echo, for the first time since the singing of the Armistice, with the sounds of "The Maple Leaf Forever" and "Oh, Canada!" This afternoon will be devoted to visiting the Chateau de Versailles, the delegation to be escorted by Senator Pelissier. An official reception by the mayor and City Council of Paris will follow at the Hotel de Ville.

At nine o'clock to-morrow morning the party will leave for the first time since the signing of the Armistice, for Versailles, where the Triangles will be visited and the visitors invited to luncheon under the portico of the Grand Trianon palace—an honor never before conferred on the Press. After visiting the Versailles Chateau, under the guidance of M. Perat, the curator, the Canadians will return to Paris to attend a banquet offered by La Bienvenue Française at the Cercle Interallié. As a token of his affection for Canada's soldiers, Marshal Foch has consented to preside.

Saturday morning, at 9:30 o'clock, the Cité Universitaire, in which Canada is to have a considerable colony, will be visited. Receptions have also been arranged by the "Petit Parisien" and the "Petit Journal" and at 4 p.m. many of the delegates will be the guests of Mme. Ernesta Stern at her home, 68 Faubourg Saint-Honoré. Most of the delegates will leave Sunday morning for London, but arrangements have been made to obtain special accommodation for those who desire to remain in Paris during the Olympic games.

(New York Herald, June 28)

"My fondest memory is of the valour and the earnestness of that great Canadian corps which landed at Dieppe early in 1915 and fought up to and over the crater of Vimy to victory," was the tribute of Marshal Foch to Canada's army at a banquet at the Union Interallié last night. One hundred and seventy Canadian editors and their wives were the guests of honor.

Mr. R. Davies, organizer of the Canadian tour evoked long applause by his assurance that should the peace of the world and the rights of humanity, the freedom of peoples and the principles of justice ever again be menaced, Canada's sons would fight as before by the side of the French people.

The Hon. Philippe Roy, the Canadian Commissioner-General in Paris, pleaded with the Canadian editors to use their editorial influence towards bringing America into closer harmony with France and England, and also towards obtaining American membership in the League of Nations.

The French Government was represented by M. Banaset, commissioner in charge of physical education of the French Army; representatives of the Ministries of Labor, Public Works and many notable French citizens, including M. Louis Loucheur, former Minister for the Liberated Regions; Marquis de Talleyrand and M. Bas de Jouvencel, secretary of the Bienvenue Française, (Canadian Gazette, London July 17)

Not the least important among the many visitors have been the Canadian editors. They will carry back to their impressions of all they have seen and heard in this country, and will do much to enlighten their readers as to the Old Country, its people and its conditions. Doubtless they will remember the words of Lord Birkenhead, who, in addressing them, said: "The problem which requires settlement to-day, which requires all the statescraft in your cutie, and which is whether or not, in close and harmonious association, on terms of equal co-operation, we may preserve the British Empire—which the changed political and social developments have ever been afforded—a loosely associated free and equal brotherhood of great and self-respecting communities. If that association is to be preserved, first and foremost there must be absolute equality between each daughter state and the home country. There must be no question of our dictating policy to you, nor you dictating policy to us." These are the words which will not easily be forgotten, and will, we hope, be carried back to Canada, if only to demonstrate the fact that Imperialism is a day does not imply any desire on the part of the Old Country to interfere in any way with the complete autonomy of the daughter states. We should bear in mind that objections to the word "Imperialism" if once it were understood what it really stands for to-day.

The members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association were officially welcomed at New-haven last Sunday on their arrival from France by Mr. J. Obed Smith, Mr. Philip Dawson, and Mr. P. H. Han Murphy, and Mr. W. E. Cranfield, of the Canadian Official Press Bureau.

(London Times, July 1st)

The delegation of proprietors and editors of Canadian Weekly newspapers now visiting this country had a busy day in London yesterday. During the morning the full party of 170 went to the Houses of Parliament, where they had as conductors for a tour of the buildings Sir Harry Brittain, Sir William Bull, Sir Philip Dawson, and Mr. P. H. Han Murphy. The visitors were the guests at luncheon of Lord Riddell, and in the afternoon they attended a reception in Kensington Palace to meet members of the Society of Women Journalists. Fifty members of the delegation were present last night at the British Empire Exhibition Ball at the Guildhall and another group visited the publishing offices of The Times including—

Youngest Generation Takes To Syncopation

Elmer Hader

Berta Hader

"Owe my life to Carnol," says Mr. Sinclair

Following a railway accident, after other medicines failed, he got relief from two bottles of Carnol.

The following letter needs no comment from us. We leave Mr. Sinclair to tell you about his experience in his own words—"I was very much run down and nervous following a railway accident some years ago. Medicines failed to give me any relief, so I decided to try Carnol. I did not have any faith in patent medicines, but a friend of mine said Carnol was far superior to any other of the so-called patent medicines. 'Give it a trial,' he said, 'and let me know the result.' I am glad to say this wonderful medicine has done for me what no other medicine has done, and it therefore gives me great pleasure to give this evidence in favor of Carnol. I would advise all business men who feel, after the strenuous life of the world, that they need a building up tonic, to take Carnol. It will not only know its splendid qualities.

After using the first bottle I noticed a marked improvement. My appetite improved and I was able to eat even raw potatoes and onions would be as welcome as apples. I slept like a baby and after a refreshing sleep, I was able to take up my strenuous work of the hustling insurance agent. This work calls for considerable nervous energy in closing business and I can say, with confidence, that no superior tonic in the medicine line is available. I get that your company give this letter a most conspicuous place, so that everyone may know what a great medicine is before the public as a restorative tonic and flesh builder. I say, with all confidence, I owe my life to Carnol. Nothing equals this medicine."—Gordon M. Sinclair, Chatham, N. B.

"The very youngest of that active younger generation has taken to syncopation," says Berta Hader, who, in partnership with her husband, Elmer Hader, evolves cut-outs that American youngsters all over the country adore.

those who thought that newspapers could govern the world. Newspapers had no executive power. Newspapers however, were responsible for disseminating opinion or what they described as such. (Laughter.)

It was difficult to describe a thing unless it was understood, and one of the best ways to obtain understanding was to meet those who could tell them about things. In tours like the one undertaken by the Canadian delegation the members were able to meet journalists of other countries and to obtain at first hand information which would be of great value to them when they returned home. Everyone who took an interest in his country must be aware that the British Empire and the world were faced to-day with difficult and trying problems. It was therefore most important that at such a time those who represented so large a section of Canadian opinion should come to London to study these problems from our point of view and to give us the opportunity of hearing what they thought themselves about the problems.

Mr. W. Rupert Davies, proprietor of the Renfrew (Ontario) Mercury Union, replied. He referred to a recent suggestion that Lord Brimham and a member of the Empire Press should go out as Governor-General of Canada, and said that he hoped that they would soon see Lord and Lady Burnham installed at Ottawa. They in the Dominions all loved the Mother Country, and in what they regarded as the premier colony of the great British Commonwealth they were trying to do their duty by inculcating British ideals and preserving British traditions. When they needed in Canada was population, and at times they could not be just as particular as they would like to be, but in the Canadian Weekly newspapers they had a Press which went into the homes of the people who came from various countries and was read by fathers, mothers, and children. He was always proud when he read papers edited by members of their association to see how well they were trying to fulfill the responsible duty which rested on them.

At the reception in the State Apartments at Kensington Palace given by the Society of Women Journalists the members of the delegation met Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll. The Duke of Connaught and Lady Patricia Ramsey were also present, and the visitors spent an interesting and enjoyable afternoon.

FAULTY NUTRITION

Many of the ailments of grown people may be traced to faulty nutrition. Well-fed children or adults withstand weakness better than those who are indifferently nourished.

Scott's Emulsion

supplies the weakened child or adult with food-factors that other foods often fail to furnish in needful volume.

Not a great deal of Scott's Emulsion is needed—but a little regularly often means restored vigor and strength to those who are rundown in vitality or who are weak.
