Grass Snakes.
The somewhat natural prejudice which exists against vipers is extended, unfortunately—though not, perhaps, unnaturally—to everything resembling a snake, and on this account the common grass snake is often needlessly destroyed. It is perfectly harmless and in its fresh, grayish green skin is quite unmistakable, yet if suddenly encountered in a hedge or in a ditch death is generally its portion. The way in which, on its own account, it deals death to frogs is somewhat awful in the denouement. The victim, seemingly to realize the hopelessness of any attempt to escape, becomes literally paralyzed with fright and, leaping with entangled power, is soon seized by a hinder leg and drawn into the jaws of the enemy. The adder's method of feeding is similar, but death is more speedily from the wound inflicted by its tubular teeth. The grass snake altogether lacks those teeth and swallows its prey alive. A frog has been heard to scream after being entombed—London Times.

Joker's Column

THE DIPLOMAT.
"Oh, Miss Tuttleton," said little Bobbie, who had been kept after school, "whenever I see you I can't help thinking of experience."
"What do you mean?" the lady demanded with a great deal of asperity.
"Experience is a dear teacher, you know."
Then she gave him a pat on the cheek, and said that he might go if he would promise not to make faces at any of the little girls again.—Chicago Record-Herald.

HE COULD GET OFF.
The train rushed through Albany at the rate of seventy miles an hour. As the conductor came through the smoke collecting tickets he announced that there would be no stop until they reached New York. A young man offered his ticket and asked if he could not get off at Poughkeepsie.

"Yes," answered the conductor, "you can, but no one knows where you will find it."
TOOK RESPECTABLE.
A lady returned from the country to find her town garden denuded of all bulbs and plants, and a few months later a very worthy old woman told the lady's former housemaid that she had taken the flowers.

"People was beginning to steal 'em, my dear, and I felt sure your mistress would rather they was took respectable."
Bobby—Mamma, will you give me a cent if I'm good all day to-day?
Mamma—But don't you think it would be nice to be good of your own accord?

Bobby—I guess not. The teacher said it was better to be good, even for a little, than to be good for nothing.
Humane Officer—My man, do you feed your horse with punctuality?
Cabby—Oh, no, sir! I mostly feed him on oats and hay!

SO SOON.
James McNeill Whistler and a friend strolling through a London suburb met a small boy. Whistler asked him his age.
"Seven," the boy replied.
"Oh, you must be more than seven," said Whistler doubtfully.

"Seven," insisted the boy, rather pleased at being taken for older.
Turning to his friend Whistler said: "Do you think it possible that he really could have gotten as dirty as that in only seven years?"
TOO PAINFUL.
Five or six men were standing outside a factory, discussing in a general sort of way the personal habits of other people. Several funny "bits" were said, but the funniest of all, in the opinion of those who overheard, was uttered by a huge navy, whose looks certainly did not contradict his statement. "I'm sure I dunno," he said, "them chaps manage 'as combs their hair every day. I only combs mine once a week, and then it very nigh pulls my yed off.—Edinburgh Scotsman."

IN HIS MIND.
"My dear," murmured the sick man to his wife, "I am hearing the golden streets. I hear strains of sweetest music sweetly in its beauty."
"John," said his wife, "what you hear is a photograph in the next flat."
"So it is. Darn those people anyway. No consideration for their neighbors. Go and tell 'em to stop that infernal racket at once!"

THE CONTENTS.
A school teacher had told her class that when they wrote compositions they must not copy from things they had read, but that they must be original. "Think for yourself," she said, "write what is in you."
What was the teacher's surprise to find this in the next batch of compositions:—
"When we write compositions we are not to write what we read, but what is in us. In me there is mi hart, mi lungs, and my stummick, and a piece of pie, and in apples, and a silk of kandie!"

HIS MONEY'S WORTH.

John S. Heald of Portland has been connected with the Maine Central Railroad for about thirty years as claim agent, and has had some mighty funny experiences. He was a witness to the following years ago in the station at Waterville, Maine:
An old "hayweedy" looking man walked up to the lunch counter, seated himself on a stool, placed his bright-colored carpet bag on the next stool and partook of a hearty lunch. He passed the young man a 81 bill to take out the price of his lunch, 50 cents, and was surprised when the young man said: "Not any change, sir, your carpet bag occupied a seat, and we must collect for that."
The old man looked dazed for a second only, and then replied: "All right," and opening the bag, "old carpet bag, I have paid for your lunch and you shall have it."
Quicker than a flash he threw in a nice pie, a plate of doughnuts and several sandwiches, and departed amid the shouts of every one in the station.

WISE DADDY.
When Daddy was my age, he knew At least five times more than I do, That was because he read and read, Until he just had filled his head With all the things you learn at school, From fractions to the Golden Rule.

My dad, he had no time at all To spin a top or throw a ball, But soon as school was out, he had To run and hurry home like mad To do the errands for his dad. He'd do them all and not get mad, And then he'd sit right down and pore His history and grammar o'er. And that's why Dad is so smart now, Then when I go to ask him how To do a sum, he looks at me And then most weeps in misery, And drops his paper and says: "My! When I was half your age, and I Got such a easy 'zample, Ned, I used to do it in my head."

"I make him feel so bad that he Simply can't do the sum for me."
It is understood that an agreement has been reached between Canada and Britain, whereby British newspapers and periodicals will come to Canada at greatly reduced rates. Postmaster-General Lennox will likely give the details of the arrangement in Parliament and to the public at once. The decision reached at the Congress in Rome to force letters of one ounce, instead of half an ounce for two cents from Canada to Britain will take effect at once, instead of in October as previously arranged.

Bismarck's Love of Authority.
At 9 p. m. we took tea with the king. I was seated opposite him when a footman came and whispered in my ear that Bismarck desired to see me. Great embarrassment! Pucker having told me I might leave the table, I did so. The king inquired what was the matter and permitted me to go. Bismarck had nothing of particular importance to tell me, and I suspect that he only wanted to show that he had the right to send for his employees even when they were with the king.

VALUABLE MEDICAL PRESCRIPTION

Recommended by a Well-known Toronto Doctor, Whose Love for Humanity is Greater than His Prejudice Against Proprietary Medicines.

The following very valuable prescription, by an eminent and successful physician, will be appreciated by many who are suffering from the grippe, cold, cough, pneumonia, or any throat, lung or stomach trouble, or run-down system, as it is a certain cure, and will save many a doctor's bill. It is almost a certain preventive as well:—
"When you feel that you are taking cold or have chilly feeling or aching in any part of the body or head, or feel weak, tired, dizzy, unfit for work, pain in the head or back of the neck, do not neglect these dangerous symptoms, but send immediately to your druggist and get a bottle of Psychine (pronounced Si-keen), and prepare as follows:
Psychine, 2 teaspoonfuls.
Sherry, whisky or water, 2 teaspoonfuls.

Choice of the latter can be made according to the judgment and profession of the patient.
"Mix thoroughly and take regularly before each meal and at bedtime."
This prescription has been used in thousands of cases and has been so generally successful that a number of leading physicians regularly prescribe Psychine in their practice for any of the above troubles, or any run-down, wasting or constitutional difficulty. It is the most reliable and valuable home remedy. It tones up the entire system, giving a feeling of youthfulness and vigor, adding many years to the life of those who use it.

"Years ago I was almost a physical wreck and was suffering with lung troubles. Friends and neighbors thought I would never get better. I began to despair myself. Losing faith in my medicals, I resorted to another one who recommended the use of PSYCHINE. It was surprising how the prescription effected its end. I seemed to gain with every dose. Inside of two weeks I was able to attend to my household affairs. There are no symptoms of return from the flow. There are no symptoms of return from the flow."
MRS. HENDERSON,
St. John, N.S.

"I had been suffering from La Grippe. My lungs were weak and I had a cough, but Psychine cured me."
MRS. H. BEAN,
Chapelville, Ont.

Psychine can be procured from any druggist at 50c. and $1.00. It is a very valuable medicine.

Why Bulls Hate a Red Flag.
In the first place, says an English writer, red is a color to which cattle are unaccustomed, so that they naturally are supposed to be startled by its very novelty. Scientists show the sensation of red to be the complement of that of green, being induced by exactly opposite affections of the retina. If the eyes of cattle are constructed on a similar principle to ours, the continual contemplation of green, as in trees and herbage, must produce a state of retinal fatigue, producing a violent excitement of the retina immediately a red substance is presented to view.
