

CONTENTS.

XV

	Page.
.....	184-220
.....	184
.....	184
.....	184-186
's time..	184
f prisons	185
informist
.....	185
prisons..	185
.....	185
.....	186
fish jaila,	186
.....	186
.....	186-192
.....	186
.....	186
s.....	187
resident
.....	188
.....	188
sible	189
.....	189
.....	189
.....	190
.....	191
schools...	192
states and
.....	192
.....	193
.....	193
n agency
.....	195
prisons of
.....	196
.....	196
lieut, but
.....	198
.....	198
.....	198
.....	198
.....	199
.....	202
.....	202
.....	203
.....	203
.....	204
.....	204
.....	205
.....	206
.....	206
.....	206
i how far
.....	206
.....	207
.....	208

MORAL AND RELIGIOUS AGENCIES—Continued.

AND RELIGIOUS AGENCIES—Continued.	Page.
Results of the religious influences brought to bear on convicts	209
The religious element might and should be made more prominent in our prisons	210
Moses C. Pillsbury's testimony on this subject.....	212
A daily service of prayer desirable.....	212
Pre-eminent value of pastoral work... ..	212
How far the after life of prisoners justify the hopes inspired by their conduct in prison	212
The correspondence of convicts a potent moral agency.....	218
To what officers this agency is committed.....	218
Should be confided to chaplains.....	213
Restrictions placed on correspondence	214
Character of convicts' correspondence	215
Proportion of convicts who write letters large.....	216
How far the correspondence of convicts is used to impart or deepen good im- pressions on their minds.....	216
Visits of friends another important moral agency	217
Influence of such visits generally, not universally, regarded as salutary	218
General visitors another potent moral agency.....	218
Prison officers, almost without exception, regard such visitation as injurious to the convicts.....	218
Large proportion of the visitors females.....	219
Prisoners may bring their burdens and complaints to the wardens.	219
Testimony of wardens unanimous to the beneficial influence of this liberty ..	220

SECTION SEVENTH.

SECULAR INSTRUCTION.....	221-239
Startling answer of a convict to the question, "Why do you not have better thoughts?".....	221
The answer suggests the whole philosophy of crime and reformation.....	221
To expel old thoughts and provide new and better ones the object proposed in the mental culture of convicts.....	221
Systematic and active efforts in this direction needed.....	221
How far the means of education are provided in Scottish and English prisons.....	221
History of secular instruction and libraries in American prisons.....	222-229
First notice of this in a report made to Senate of New York in 1822...	222
Next mention of it in Judge Power's report of 1827.....	222
Sunday-school opened that year in Auburn to teach reading.....	222
The privilege of learning eagerly embraced by convicts.....	222
All early prison Sunday-schools instituted with a primary reference to secular instruction.....	223
An act passed in 1829 by the legislature of Kentucky, requiring a school to be kept four hours every Sabbath.....	223
The same year, matter of interest on the subject contained in a report to the legislature of New York.....	224
Three items of interest, relating to secular instruction in prisons, embodied in the report of the Boston P. D. Society for 1841.....	225
The above items contain the first intimations met with in our researches of regular instruction in prison schools.....	225
This idea next year (1842) urged by a committee of the Connecticut legislature.....	225
A provision of the same year on the same subject, by the directors of the Wethersfield prison.....	226
The chaplains at Auburn and Sing Sing, at the same time pleading hard for an enlargement of the means of instruction.....	226
A debating society in Charlestown prison.....	226
An act passed in 1847 by the legislature of New York, providing for the appointment of teachers in all the state prisons.....	227