

PRICES REMAINING AT WAR STANDARD

Trade Lively—Help Plentiful—Furniture Higher—Relief Applications Increase.

Many people are asking, "What are the tradesmen going to do now that they are deprived of the old excuse, 'on account of the war'?" The annual Christmas sale is less than a month ahead, and the question of prices will affect the buyer this year probably more than any recent year.

The best of shoppers during the war have been the munition workers, who have been able to spend liberally owing to their large wages, but now that munitions are at a standstill in the city and many of the munition workers are either out of employment or working at a reduced rate, their attitude toward the tradesman and his present prices is of interest. So far there has not been any great disposition on the part of the public to hold off for reduced prices. The large departmental stores and smaller places of business are just as crowded as ever. The goods on the shelves are the same as before the war, and the sales thus far are lively. There is no appreciable reduction in the prices of goods, such as staples and domestic in the drygoods line, up to the present, though it is expected that eventually prices will drop nearer to their old level.

In the food lines some commodities, such as jams, will not change much until the next pack is received, but all goods of foreign importation and manufacture are likely to fall to lower prices in the near future.

Furniture.

In the furniture lines prices are likely to go up temporarily, and the manufacturers are not accepting orders for future delivery at the wholesale prices of a year ago. A walk along the leading streets of the city with show windows filled with the coats, fancy goods and Christmas displays, all ticketed at about the same prices as prevailed up to the talk of peace, and a stroll through the great department stores and other places of business will show that they are as crowded as ever with eager shoppers.

One of the larger furniture stores was doing a rush business yesterday without the special advertisement of a sale announcement. The change in the talk of peace began is mostly noticeable in the numbers of applications for employment. The big stores are now finding a plentiful supply of all sorts of help. Many people who have been working at munitions and in other kinds of war work have anticipated the conditions during the past few weeks and have wisely husbanded their wages, so that at present there are few indications of general depression, the charitable and relief organizations of the city are finding that the applications for relief are greatly increased.

The authorities at the house of industry received just double as many applications for relief last month as the previous month, but most of this is due to there having been so much sickness in the city and not because there are great numbers of people out of work. The general opinion of tradesmen is that prices will likely continue for some time, but that the cost of living will be easier in the near future.

BOYS' NAVAL BRIGADE PRIZE DISTRIBUTION

Fully two hundred members of the Boys' Naval Brigade and their friends assembled in the St. Lawrence Market last night for the presentation of prizes awarded to the winners in the fall regatta of the organization, held at Long Pond, Centre Island, over a month ago.

A naval ensign, to be carried on route marches and special occasions, was presented to the brigade by A. G. Mathews, a member of the executive. Chief among the prizes awarded were: The Jarvis Shield, presented to the brigade by Commander Aemilius Jarvis, hon. president of the brigade; the McCrae Cup, given by Hugh C. McCrae, an officer of the Navy League and brigadier of the Strathcona Shield; a donation from the late Lord Strathcona; the Royal Canadian Yacht Club Cup and gold, silver and bronze medals from the Navy League of Canada.

The executive of the brigade is endeavoring to secure another training ship, probably the "Pinta," now in commission as a war vessel, to replace the "Wave Crest."

Y.W.C.A. TO LOOK AFTER WAR BRIDES

Hostels Arranged, Guides Appointed for Ports and Large Cities.

For some time past there has been much speculation as to just what was to be done for all the English war brides who will begin shortly to arrive in Canada in large numbers. It is estimated that there are 40,000 of these women, many of whom have small children and almost all of whom are totally ignorant of Canada or Canadian conditions.

The Y.W.C.A. is already on her way to England to take charge of affairs at that end. Workers will be arranged for and whenever there are 200 or more English girls to sail on any one ship, a woman will be sent with them to take a kindly and sympathetic interest in these new Canadian citizens. On the trip over she will advise and help any who wish her to do so, and endeavor to make their coming to Canada as pleasant as possible under the conditions.

Mrs. E. A. Barrington-Ham, the English secretary of the Y.W.C.A., is already on her way to England to take charge of affairs at that end. Workers will be arranged for and whenever there are 200 or more English girls to sail on any one ship, a woman will be sent with them to take a kindly and sympathetic interest in these new Canadian citizens. ## EVERYBODY LIKES "THE BETTER 'OLE'"

A Play That Has Made Toronto Laugh and Weep for Two Weeks.

"Have you seen 'The Better 'Ole' yet?"

"Have I seen it? Well, rather. I've seen it twice and it's the best thing I have seen in Toronto yet."

This conversation was overheard on Yonge street the other day, and that this film picture has been appreciated in Toronto is demonstrated by the daily line-up, reaching from the Allen Theatre to Yonge street.

The three modern warriors—Bill, Bert and Alf—have made the greatest hit in Toronto's history of movie stars. Everybody likes them, and everybody wants to see them, what they did in the trenches and just how they did it.

"The Better 'Ole," a film version of the successful play by Bainsfather, has proved to be a sensational success, as its authors ventured it would be. Taken all round it is the finest British picture ever produced. No foreign picture has ever surpassed it in its power, humor, pathos, production and acting. It has taken six months to bring it from scenario stage to the finished film, and the time has been well spent. The film goes much further than the play, is a study in connected scenes, and it introduces some new characters.

The picture is a succession of stinging scenes, which exhibit a "punch," with alternating flashes of humor and humanity, connected by the witliest sub-titles ever seen on the screen. One or another is constantly before the eyes. A tear can hardly start to trickle down the cheek before it is checked by laughter, which dries it up. Never was there such a mingling of tears and laughter as in the showing of this picture. The prolog, which outlined in a succession of striking scenes what we are fighting for, will do more to bring home to all than thousands of speeches. There are times when the acting is so expressive that the motionless attitude of the players brings tears to the eyes. There are scenes so touching and so tremendously powerful that one forgets that one is looking at a picture. It is the first time since the Pearson and Company, and not the first picture produced by George Pearson, but his very best.
