About Wools. You know, or at least you ought to know, our prices for Wools. If you don't we would like you to compare these prices with those usually asked for the same qualities:

Berlin Wools, 4 and 8 fold, soft and fleecy, 6c a skein 90c a pound. As to the question of prohibition, Mr. Spence thought there had been perhaps a more definite expression of opinion upon it than any other issue of late years.

Dr. Macdonald's Suggestion. Dr. Macdonald urged that the Dominion Alliance instead of waiting till the bill is framed submit their representations at once as to what they would like to see in it. To this he would suggest that a committee be appointed to wait upon the Government. Rev. Dr. Saunders supported this proposal. The question of what voters' lists should be used was talked over, and the impression prevailed that by the time the vote is taken the new franchise law will be in force.

Mr. Henderson, M.P., made a strong address upon the prohibition measure. He spoke of Sir Oliver Mowat's attitude, and pictured him as holding up his sanctimonious hands last year. Sir Oliver was fount of talking of burdens, compensations, etc.

Dr. Macdonald: What have we got to do with Mowat in this meeting? Mr. Henderson: But we find so do with him last year, and my own impression is that we may have much to win him yet. [Hear, hear.] The whole thing is a political question.

Whiskey in the Yukon. Mr. J. M. Dougall of Montreal was favoring to interpose the Government upon anything that was not a foreign conclusion. He urged that the Government take steps to see that liquor is kept out of the Yukon district.

IT'S A MONUMENTAL JOB.
The McKim-Mann contract for building a narrow gauge railway from the Stikine River to Teslin Lake as presented in Parliament yesterday is much worse than the public have been led to believe. It is an iniquitous project in every sense of the term. There is no protection to the public. Everything in it is in the interest of the contractors and those behind them. Mr. Blair made a labored effort to defend the contract, but the more he explained the worse it appeared. The road is, say, 150 miles at the most. It is through a comparatively easy country. It is to be built of second-hand rails. The ties are on the ground. The grading for a narrow gauge railway is extremely light. It will not cost $10,000 a mile, or anything like it. The only plea put forward is that of urgency. There is no genuine emergency. But for this temporary emergency, nearly four million acres of the pick of the gold fields of the Yukon are given to the contractors. A monopoly of the worst kind, under no regulation for years, is created, development in other directions is prevented, and the hold of the great railway monopoly on Canada is vastly strengthened. The World trusts that the project, as outlined in the contract, will not be sanctioned by Parliament, but that it will be delayed in the House and defeated in the Senate. Let the Government withdraw their bill, make a contract for building the road, compensate the contractors for any loss, avoid monopoly and keep the mining lands for the people. The project as outlined, if attempted to be carried out or sanctioned by Parliament, will justify in the defeat of the Laurier Government. The Drummond Commission, the Crow's Nest Pass, the old C.P.R. deal, are not in it with this last project.

AN IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.
In the speech of His Excellency the Governor-General at the opening of Parliament there occurs the following passage, which will everywhere be received with the greatest satisfaction: "The action of the Imperial Government in denouncing the treaties with Germany and Belgium also affords most satisfactory evidence of their desire to facilitate your efforts to promote the closest possible commercial relations between Canada and the remainder of the empire, and will, I trust, contribute materially to the development of Imperial trade." This would seem to indicate that there are to be further efforts on the part of the Government to promote inter-British trade, and we heartily wish that there may have every possible success.

Although there is no doubt that it was the Canadian Government and Parliament which struck the first blow towards abolishing the treaties, it must not be forgotten that the move immediately caused by their denunciation was the following resolution passed by the conference of Premiers during the celebration of Queen's Jubilee: "The Premiers of the self-governing colonies unanimously and earnestly recommend the denunciation of the early commercial treaties with Germany and Belgium as a step towards the closer relations between Great Britain and her colonies."

Not only did the Premiers thus request the British Government to denounce the treaties, but they also proposed in such event to endeavor to obtain in their respective colonies preferential treatment for English goods. In an interview with a Reuters representative Sir George Turner of Victoria said that he was now prepared to ask the people of his colony to increase the duties on goods from other countries. He said also that the conference had achieved much in making the Premiers acquainted with each other's views and with those of the Imperial Government, but to discuss these matters would require a month of daily conferences at the Colonial Office without the distraction of entertainment. The holding of such conferences periodically was also approved by the Premiers, and it is therefore natural enough to enquire when the representatives of the colonies are likely to meet again. As was said by the London Times, so long ago as July 5, 1897: "These communities are now ready to draw closer the ties which bind them into one empire, as soon as the wisdom of statesmen, the maturity of public opinion and the growth of the material links shall enable effect to be given to the wishes shown by all."

Now, these are fine words and fine phrases about closer union, preferential trade and Imperial federation, but it is uncertain as to when these are to be translated into positive and effective deeds. We have nothing of this sort to expect from England, for her statesmen are waiting on the Continent. In Liverpool, on Jan. 18 last, Mr. Chamberlain declared: "It is not for us to take the initiative. We would rather follow than lead; but what I think we have already accomplished is to convince our colonists, wherever they live, however far their home may be from the centre and the Mother Land, that we, at any rate, are prepared to meet them more than half way in any approach which they may make to us, or in any desire which they may express for this closer union."

"The Life of Champagne." "The Life of Champagne" Opera Company will be at the Grand to-morrow evening. This management has to that end has engaged the best talent, and other than Richard Golden and Katharine Gilmore in the leading roles, each of whom has been in the theatre for several seasons, now co-stars in a large lot of pretty girls who know how to sing and dance, secretary of the orchestra from the brushes of Walter Burdett, and a complete and complete orchestra. Those who witness this opera thereafter the receipts have increased rapidly until they exceeded all previous records. The same thing will happen again. The receipts for 1898 will, we venture to say, exceed those of 1897. Notwithstanding the poor month the company are putting on we notice they are still able to pay 10 per cent. dividends, build up a fund of estimate means into the suburbs and do not, aside a large sum to strengthen their already impressive reserve.

The most important point in regard to the new question is the ascertainment of the lowest price at which gas can be sold and still allow the company its maximum dividend. We have had several reductions during the past ten years, but there is nothing to prove that the rate last struck is the lowest the business will stand. As a matter of fact everything goes to show that the strength of the company would not be jeopardized in the least if a much larger reduction than has heretofore taken place were made.
