

Angora Goat

The Angora goat is a native of a district of Angora in Turkey, Asia. It is a domestic animal peculiar entirely to that place, and reared in great numbers by the peasantry. The hair is soft and silky, and from eight to nine inches long. The silky quality of the fur is ascribed to the peculiarity of the atmosphere of the region, and when removed from their native environment lose much of that distinctive beauty. Angora Goat is used principally in garments for children.

We have manufactured specially some excellent stoles in Angora Goat and Grey Lamb. Also many jackets, Ruffs and Muffs in Angora Goat and Iceland Lamb for Children's Wear.

NEED FOR ENTHUSIASM.

Yesterday afternoon and evening the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church held their semi-annual meeting in East Queen-street Church. The afternoon meeting was largely attended by delegates both from Toronto and from various parts of the province. Mrs. Cochrane presided over a business session, at which the reports of the half year were presented. The past six months has been most successful and great progress has been made. There had been 40 new auxiliaries organized and the whole membership list showed an increase. Even in places where there was no auxiliary there was found growing interest in mission work.

ANGORA HEAVY RUN Quality Heavy Good

Prices Generally Easier Was the Story at the City Cattle Yards Yesterday.

Receipts of live stock at the City Cattle Market were 121 cars, composed of 1415 cattle, 1120 sheep and lambs, 1000 pigs and 100 calves.

The quality of fat cattle was not good, being about the same as in the previous year, few of the good to choice kinds, and too many light weights and poor cases of wool on old cows.

Trade was reported by drovers and dealers to be the worst of the season, for both buyers, stockers and feeders, with prices easier.

Exporters.
There were no straight loads of export cattle. A few odd lots were taken from loads with a few export bulls with all there was to be had.

Butchers.
Prices were lower today than at any time this season for the bulk of butchers' steers, 1000 to 1200 lbs. each, which were very scarce, sold as high as $4.50 per cwt. for a few.

Feeders.
Feeders were plentiful and cheaper than any time of the season. Receipts of 1000 lbs. each, sold at $3.75 per cwt. Feeders, 800 to 1000 lbs. each, sold at $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt.

Stockers.
Stockers were plentiful and cheap, especially the light and medium weights, which could not be sold at any price, and were left on the market.

Milk Cows.
About 1200 cows and springers sold at $30 to $40 each. More good cows have sold recently, as there were several dealers ready to buy. H. Hooper was one of the buyers, who is reported to be wanted. Mr. Hooper stated that he would be on the market.

Veal Calves.
About 100 calves sold at mechanical prices, 100 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.50 per cwt. Something extra good brought $3.50 per cwt. McDonald's calves, 100 lbs. each, sold at $3.25 per cwt. Light calves that brought $3.50 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.
Over 3000 sheep and lambs were heavy, over 1000 lbs. each, sold at $3.50 per cwt. Lambs sold at $4.50 per cwt. Few pigs bringing the same price as last week.

PLOW GUARD FENDER.
The World publishes to-day a cut of the standard car in use on the Liverpool street railway, particularly with reference to the new form of plow life-guard, with which it is fitted. This life-guard was adopted last year and the fitting of the cars with it was completed in June, 1903.

CATTLE MARKETS.
The annual report of the general manager for the year 1903, made and approved by the Liverpool Tramways committee of the town council on March 24 last, the following reference is made to the life-guard and the fatalities which had occurred:

The fitting of the cars with the Liverpool plow guard was completed in June. This life-guard has in every instance served the purpose of its design, which was to prevent a person knocked down from passing beneath the underwork of the car. The total number of persons who have been knocked down and got under the platform of the car during the year was 111.

Of this number 45 were pushed clear of the platform by the plow guard, and 66 were injured. 36 were pushed clear by the plow life-guard and slightly injured, 27 were pushed clear by the plow life-guard, but required medical attendance, and three were killed. In the three fatal accidents the car was entirely closed, or with side screens and open roof.

The service has proved highly satisfactory and is attracting general notice in Great Britain. It will be observed from the cut that the life-guard protects not only the front and rear of the car, but also the sides, thus preventing any person, thing from falling or rolling between the trucks. The life-guard is effective and sufficiently shown by the report of the general manager.

LESIE IN THE EAST.

Alexander Wheeler followed suit. George Ritchie was quite a stranger, but appreciated his spirit. Altogether, however, it was an opportunity for a man of election, he declined to avail himself of it, and very cheerfully resigned.

J. W. McLean, with his hat full of words, and J. C. Scott, a similar desire from the rear of the hall. Capt. Troy removed his hat and laid it on the chairman's table, refreshed himself with a glass of water, and addressed himself to the audience.

Capt. Troy's Advice.
"Now gentlemen, it's all way. There's a good deal of people looking for nomination, and they all want the best end of the stick. I'll tell you the way to do it. Put David Leslie, never vote for anything but a workman. Never put a lawyer or a doctor in. If you do, you're beat. Put your own workman."

"How about a captain?" asked someone. "Don't want it. Not looking for it," replied the captain, as he hat down. The times were a little better than they were, and they all went to the polls. The list of names was read, and the ballots distributed to the present.

John Ewan spoke of the Grand Trunk Pacific scheme as a tremendous work, the pattern of the country. He found that there was a disposition to attack their leader on account of his history. This had been tried before, and failed. It had been tried against Tracy, who was now fighting under the name of the "New Leslies."

Knob Leslie Chosen.
An alleged extract had been published from a speech by Knob Leslie, a member of the "Protestant Board," but Senator Chisholm denied the charge. This was a very interesting matter, as it was a matter of the province or city was more interested than Knob Leslie's speech.

A mass meeting will be held in the school house tonight, the 14th inst. at 8 o'clock, at which the railway will be discussed. The meeting will be held in the school house tonight, the 14th inst. at 8 o'clock, at which the railway will be discussed.

MEETING IN BROOKTON HALL.
No Opposition to Bridge at Lansdowne Avenue.

The meeting held in Brockton Hall last night, on the subject of the proposed bridge at Lansdowne-avenue, the by-law in regard to which will be voted on the 22nd inst., developed absolutely no opposition to the scheme. The hall was well filled, and from all outward appearances, everyone present was seized with an idea of the advantages to be derived from the bridge.
