WAY DOWN EAST.

Wm. A. Brady's "Way Down East," with its typical characters of New England, with its realistic stage pictures of their environments, its famous snow storm, and the other scenic features, will be the attraction of the Grand all this week. The popularity of this rural drama does not seem to wane despite its several seasons of remarkable success. The characters of the play have become old acquaintances, and seeing them again is apparently like a visit among familiar scenes. On the other hand, "Way Down East" has a clientele peculiarly its own. The purity and sweetness of its story and the moral it points appeal to a class of people seldom seen at other plays. Managers of theatres are authority for the statement that there are more strange faces in the theatre during an engagement of "Way Down East" than at any other time during the year.

What are the lasting attributes of a drama? What has given Wm. A. Brady's "Way Down East" such a hold upon the public that it can blossom like a perennial flower with every season and be greeted with full houses who will cry with its heroine and hiss at the villain? There must be something closely akin to human nature that can bring a play to this measure of success.

The above illustration represents Oxy-Acetylene Welding. This is a part of a steel Motor case which was cracked in three places, the cracks averaging 12 inches in length and from 1/4 inch to 1 inch in thickness. This case was welded in the works of the Toronto Railway Company with a portable Oxy-Acetylene Plant supplied to the Railway Company by the L'Air Liquide Society, 335 Queen St. West, Toronto. These plants will weld steel, cast iron, brass, copper and aluminium, and will cut steel in thickness up to 20 inches.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS are many, but the most profitable one that you can make and carry out, is not to neglect your eyes any longer. Do not postpone indefinitely what should be done today. You can buy eye-glasses, but if you lose your eyesight, that cannot be bought. If your eyes trouble you, or your old glasses do not suit, consult our eyesight specialist. Our Optical Department is conducted on the same money-saving plan as the rest of our store, and we guarantee satisfaction.
