

BODIES THAT ARE HOTOHOUSE PLANTS

Houses and Offices Likened to Black Hole of Calcutta

Quarantine for Colds—American Lecturer Gives Advice Concerning Influenza and Treatment of Pneumonia.

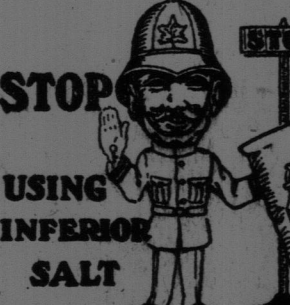

(Montreal Gazette.)
That the majority of the houses and offices in Canada are as unsanitary as the Black Hole of Calcutta, and that a great many Canadians by living in such an atmosphere have gradually turned their bodies into hot-house plants was the statement made last night by Dr. J. C. Elliott, who is conducting a campaign at St. James' Methodist church, in his lecture on the Cure of Colds, Influenza, Pneumonia and Tuberculosis.

According to the lecturer, people have an incorrect idea of how they contract colds. Wet feet and chills were commonly supposed to be the primary causes of the common cold, but the inhabitants of Alaska and the Arctic regions are not susceptible to this disease until they come into our milder climates, and as for the statement that wet feet produced a cold, Dr. Elliott said if many people got their feet wet often than they do, they would be more likely to be immune from that complaint.

An old adage was blown sky-high by Dr. Elliott, that one should stow away and starve a fever. The practical and scientific method of treating a cold was to stay away from the dinner table altogether, keep the body warm, and stay in bed for a couple of days. The speaker made a strong protest against the habit of sending children suffering from a cold to a public school, and prophesied that in a very few years quarantine laws will be enforced in the schools against the common cold just as against the more serious diseases.

Dealing with influenza, Dr. Elliott said that the plague of this disease which swept over the world a few years ago was only second in malevolence to the black plague of the fourteenth century. Its ravages of human life were enormous. It had been computed that in India alone it claimed six million victims, and from the latest reports there had been at least 13,000,000 deaths from influenza all over the world, while the plague raged. "What it really was nobody knew," said Dr. Elliott. "The physicians neither knew its cause nor its cure."

In Los Angeles while the epidemic was at its height there was no room in the hospitals for patients. Those institutions were filled with their own nurses and attendants, who were affected by the disease.

disease, with the result that camps were formed in the open air, and by keeping the patients in these camps warm, and giving them no food, better results were obtained than in many of the hospitals. "What I have said regarding the common cold applies equally well to influenza," remarked the lecturer. "The man or woman who takes care of the body by proper dieting, regular bathing, and scientific breathing can become practically immune to influenza."

Danger of Pneumonia.
"The danger of pneumonia comes from the fact that it is a stealthy disease," said Dr. Elliott. "Before you are aware that you are the victim of anything more malignant than a common cold it has forced itself on your lungs, and in a few days you are fighting for your life." In most cases the remedies adopted by physicians to fight pneumonia proved unavailing, but the lecturer had seen a remedy used that in every instance had been successful. It was to make a pad of flannel, having in the centre of the fold one ounce of wormwood, and having steeped this pad in hot vinegar, to apply it to the chest of the patient underneath the bed clothes, taking care not to let any air get near the patient, to leave this pad on for ten minutes, and by repeated applications for from three to six hours keep the sick person with a continual freshly steeped pad on the chest for that period. After physicians had frequently given up all hope of saving life, Dr. Elliott had seen this remedy completely turn the tide of the disease in a few hours.

In reference to tuberculosis, Dr. Elliott said that no child can inherit anything more from tubercular parents than a weak lung, and if children were dressed as they ought to be, as lightly as was consistent with sanity and were kept in the open air, the death rate from the white plague would be materially decreased. The old-fashioned remedy called the "rest-cure" had been the cause of thousands of deaths from tuberculosis.

STAR GLOBE CIRCLER ARRIVES IN STATES

Miss Miller of Chicago has Covered 900,000 Miles in Forty Years and Hasn't Stopped.

(New York Times.)
One of the first cabin passengers who arrived yesterday from Antwerp via Cherbourg and Southampton on the Red Star liner Lapland, was Dr. Emile Gallenaerts, professor of Ophthalmology in the University of Brussels, who is making his first visit to the United States. He will go first to Washington to attend a conference, and then make a six weeks' tour of the principal medical colleges to lecture on the ophthalmoscope, an instrument upon which he says he has worked for thirty-two years to bring to perfection. The professor declares that the instrument has revolutionized eye examination methods.

Another passenger was Celeste J. Millar, known as the Chicago globe-trotter. She told the reporters that she had traveled 82,000 miles in the past six months in Europe, and by the time she reaches her home will have covered 900,000 miles by sea and land in forty years. Miss Millar carried a cane which she regarded as a mascot, and which she said had saved her life on three different trips around the world, either in beating off hostile natives or procuring chicken for her tiffin in villages where she could not make herself understood. She went through Palestine and Syria when travelers rode on horseback and slept in tents, and says she was the first white woman to cross the Andes from Buenos Aires to Valparaiso on mule-back, more than thirty years before the railroad was constructed. During her forty years of globe-trotting she says that she had been on 200 steamships and twice as many trains and never missed being at the pier or station on time.

FOR CHOIR MEMBER.
Between thirty and forty of the members of the choir of the Exmouth street Methodist church met at the home of E. E. Thomas, the choir leader, last night, and tendered a novelty shower to Miss Mabelle Shaw, one of their number who is to be married soon. Miss Shaw received many beautiful and useful gifts. The evening was pleasantly spent with games and music, and refreshments were served.

LEARNING FROM THE WEST.

Kentucky Tobacco Growers Engage an Efficiency Expert.
That the selling methods so successfully practiced by the fruit growers of California can be applied with equal success to marketing other agricultural products is being demonstrated by the tobacco growers of Kentucky, according to C. S. F. McCready, of Winchester, Ky., who as in New York. Mr. McCready says that the Kentucky men were dealt a heavy financial blow as a result of the demoralization of their market in 1920, and therefore organized for protection under the leadership of Judge Robert Bingham, publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal, formerly owned by the late Henry Waterson. The first move of the organization, he said, was to engage the selling expert of the California Fruit Growers' Association at a salary of $500 a day to come east and put the Kentucky product back on a sound basis.

1920 per cent. over the price for 1920 when the market for the tobacco crop of 1921 was opened at Owensboro, Ky., last December. The market has continued strong and active, and the tobacco growers are jubilant, for they see an end of the fluctuating prices which have caused many of them to go under. The Kentucky Tobacco Growers' Association now has ninety-seven per cent. of the tobacco growers as members. Its members own land estimated to be one-tenth the area of Kentucky. The association has the backing of a hundred banks in the state.
"The key to the explanation of these vastly improved conditions is that a grower is no longer forced to dump his crop on the market and take the best price he can get. If he does not like the price offered, the association gives him the use of a warehouse to store his crop until the market improves. And while waiting, he is now able to borrow from the banks fifty per cent. of the market value of his crop. Thus the market is automatically stabilized, and there is little danger of a recurrence of conditions that existed in 1920, when the growers used most of their crop for fertilizer, as it meant only further loss to haul it to market."

Tag on Wrist Read: "Larus; Boy, March 22."
Stepping to his automobile, after paying a visit of half an hour to a friend at 40 St. Matthew street, Montreal, the other night, O. W. Barwick of Iserwald, Ltd., 155 Notre Dame street west, was surprised to find the back seat of his machine occupied by a baby boy. No one seemed to know who had placed it there, and Mr. Barwick decided to report the matter to the police. He drove to the St. Catherine street west station, and reported to Lieut. McRae. Examination of the baby showed that it was about a week old, and in good health. It was sent to headquarters, and placed in care of the matron, Mrs. Albert. Around the baby's left wrist was a small silk band holding a small tag. On the tag were the words: "Larus; boy, March 22." Investigation was started with a view to finding who the parents are and how it came to be placed in Mr. Barwick's automobile.
