SALVATIONISTS AND THE WAR
(War Cry)

A loud-mouthed grumbler got into a tram car, and seeing a Salvationist in uniform, said: "What yer doin' fer the King and country?"

A military looking man sitting in the corner said: "You can stop all that talk, my man. I'm a recruiting sergeant, and I've had twenty Salvationists from our town through my hands in eight days.
They were such fine fellows that the doctor passed them at once."

Then he added: "Are you out of work?"

"Yes," came the whining reply. "Ain't done nuffink fer six weeks."
"Six years would be nearer the mark," answered the drill sergeant, "but to test your patriotism you can get out with me at the corner; there's a recruiting centre there, I'll get you through."
But the grumbler had had a sudden change of mind, and was missing.

The other day the sergeant of the company in which are the two sons of Major Rose (Assurance), said to one of them: "I'd like to talk to the people who say, 'Why don't the Salvationists fight?' I could tell them that two of my Bandman Lionel Kingston, son of Major and Mrs. Kingston, of the West London Division, left for the front on Thursday as a corporal in the Royal Engineers, in which he will serve as a motor dispatch rider. Our comrade has been in the Bristol Citadel Band for a number of years.

In New Zealand's Expeditionary Force to the front there are many Salvationists, amongst them being seven Bandmen from Wellington City. Brigadier Hopkin and Staff Captain Greenfield are each represented by a son.

DREADNOUGHTS
Dreadnaughts have never been in action. When they engage it is possible to picture the damage they will do to each other, when we say that on some of the latest type the entire fire of fourteen inch guns weighing 11,500 pounds, can be directed on any given target. These guns each carry a projectile weighing about 870 pounds, and have a range of fifteen miles. The muzzle velocity is 8-600 feet a second—Victoria Colonist.
