TRAFFIC IS IMPEDED BY WATER SPOUT

Mill Street Worse Than Ever Between Eight and Nine O'Clock Today

STREAM HIGH IN AIR

Sloven Knocked Top Off Hydrant and Geyser Spouted Thirty Feet High and Flooded The Street—Stirring Times in Effort to Keep Traffic Moving

For about an hour this morning, people passing in Mill street were treated to an unusual sight, a small sized geyser which gushed forth at a tremendous volume from a few minutes after 8 o'clock until the chronometer in the Union Depot registered the hour of nine. Traffic was congested more than ever the case even in Mill street and considerable difficulty was experienced, owing to various causes of excitement, in forcing prancing and balking horses to shy past the water spout, which threw hundreds of gallons of the city's water thirty feet into the air, and for some time after, poured it forth at a lesser degree. The trouble was caused first of all by an outgoing freight train and backing, with full load on a heavy sloven, into a water hydrant on the west side of the street just under the overhead grain conveyor to the I. C. R. elevator. The upper part of the hydrant was forced off, and there gushed forth a powerful stream of water which shot into the air, breaking when it had attained an encouraging height, it fell to the roadway and poured over the pavement. The stream extended along the roadway nearly as far as the corner of Park Row, reaching a depth of several inches in some places, and threatening at times to run into the passing job machines by the Hassam Company. The telephone was reported to be bringing the city engineer to the scene, but up to 9 o'clock nothing had been done in the way of checking the water and the overflow continued until two or three hundred yards of water had collected in some places, and threatening at times to run into the passing job machines by the Hassam Company.
