Moved by C. R. H. Starr, seconded by S .Stevenson: "Whereas we have viewed with astonish ment, the very excellent condition in which Australian fruit is being delivered in Lon. don, and believing that this favorable condi-tion is mainly owing to the use of cold air nachines on the steamships by which the truit has been imported : Therefore resolved. that in the oninion of this committee it is o the utmost importance that steps should be taken to secure the introduction of cold air machines into steamers carrying Canadian fruits across the Atlantic in order that the risks attending the shipping of fruits and other perishable products be reduced to a ninimum."

On motion of R. Hunt, seconded by R. A Payne it was resolved to send copies of this olution to Sir Charles Tupper, the Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, and the differ ent steamship companies carrying Canadian fruit across the Atlantic.

The committee drew up a memorandum to Sir Charles Tapper urging that the Do-minion government should make such arregular weekly shipment of fruits and other food products, such as cheese, maple sugar, etc., during the progress of the exhibition, and suggested that the supplies might be limited and regulated through the Provincial Hortfcultural and Dairy Association, so that the Canadian branch of the "Colonia Market" should be constantly supplied, but not glutted; but in case of over supply, the surplus should be sold on the Londor market, and the cost of importation refunded to the Department of Agriculture. The committee in waiting on Sir Charles Tapper pointed out the fact that Australia was making a splendid fruit exhibit in the "Colonial Market," and that Canada should not be bahind hand. The few samples of Canadian food products put in the exhibition market were sold at extremely high prices, thus giving visitors a false idea of Canadian like the same energy in placing their products on the markets of the old world as our cousins over the line, it would no doubt in duce the young men of the province to settle down to farming and to develop their own country instead of drifting off into the States.

In conclusion, I may say that it is only the fact of my London agents not having the time to devete to the matter, without which success is impossible, and my not being in possession of Aladdin's wonderful lamp by which I could be, as it were, on both side of the Atlantic at once that prevents me from going into a business which would, I am confident, be mutually advantageous to both countries.

The book of Ecclesiastes was written by Solemon when he had arrived at an advanced age, and the text, the first verse of the last chapter, is a key note to all the verses that follow. We are enjoined to remember God, because in human nature to remember God, because in human nature there is such a proneness to forgetfulness. We find frequent repetitions of the words remem-ber in the Scriptures: Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy; remember ye were ser-vants in Exypt; these texts prove that men are apt to forget God, that notwithstanding sermons and Sunday schools, he is two often banished from the heart. stant question, "Will you have home rale or coercion ?" is thought by many to be with the masses. The Chamberlain Liberals reply that they will have home rule but not Gladstons's home rule. The Hartington Liberals say they will have local self-government for Ireland but not a divided supremacy. The Conservatives say they will have neither home rule nor coercion. But the Premier persists in his alternative, and the masses who attend his meetings cheer till they are hoarse.

The history of the past few weeks is calculated to teach that Gladatone's presentation of this alternative is open to the objection that I reland may have home rule and coercion also. In anticipation of the passage of the measure the arms act was introduced, not for the suppression of the National League, but for the suppression of the opponents of the league, The Belfast riote sufficiently prove that some form of coercion would need to follow the passage of Gladstone's measure, Instead of reported Fenian uprisings we have now wild accounts of Orange armles drilling by moonlight. Instead of United States auxiliary Irish forces there are wild tales of the loyal contingent from Canada, In one case as in the other it is mostly talk. Yet if Gladstone would be exactly correct he would say, "will you have my home rule scheme with probable coercion."
