

ST. JOHN

Thursday will not soon be forgotten by the hundreds of citizens, who to the sound of whistles and bells, anticipated the world struggle was nearing an end, even though from many sources came the word that reports were not official. The streets were lined with crowds of citizens, who to the waving of flags of every hue, cheered themselves hoarse for the Allies. Buildings were transformed as if by magic, and ere long flags and bunting were everywhere in evidence. Business in many cases was practically suspended, and the still late in the evening anxious crowds frequented the telegraph and newspaper offices for confirmation of the reports. On the other hand, in the midst of joy making, how many sympathetic hearts went out to the thousands of those who alone have felt the toll of war, and how many there were who, though rejoicing for humanity's sake, felt most keenly perhaps than ever before the price that some have paid for victory.

There was triumph, triumph, triumph down the scarlet gleaming street; The town was mad, a man was like a boy, A thousand flags were flaming where the sky and city meet; A thousand bells were thundering the joy. There was music, mirth and sunshine; But some eyes shone with regret; And while we stun with cheers our homing bravos, O God, in Thy great mercy, let us never forget! The graves they left behind—the bitter graves.

When the system receives a shock of any kind, the heart becomes weakened, the nerves unstrung, the appetite poor, faint and weak feelings come over you, you can't sleep at night, and you wonder if life is worth living.

To all those who suffer from nervous shock we would recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as the best remedy to tone up the entire system and strengthen the weakened organs.

Mrs. J. J. Bunyan, Pilot Butte, Sask., writes: "I have used Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills after having suffered from a terrible shock to my whole system. I was so utterly weak, and nervous, I could not sleep at night, and my appetite was very poor. I could not walk across the floor without trembling all over."
