Captain John Taylor Tells a Montreal Reporter About His Grievance Against British Consul Stamford.

Montreal, June 17-Capt. John Taylor, of the three-masted schooner M. J. Tay-lor, is in this port at present. Capt. Tay-lor has a grievance. Capt. Taylor hais from Nova Scotia. His ship is registered in Parrsboro (N. S.), and has always flown what he considered the Canadian flag, the red ensign of the British mer-chant service, with the Canadian coat of arms in the lower right hand corport. arms in the lower right hand corner. Capt. Taylor related the reason for his grievance as follows:-"I had been sailing around the different ports of South America all winter, f and st January Lesailed into the port of Rio Grande Do Sul; in the Argentine Repub-lic, with cargo. We lay there for some time and as there were a number of ves els in the harbor whose masters were riends of mine, our flag; the Canadian sign, was flying at our peak most of. the time. Some three or four days after its first appearance I received a verbal warning from the British consul, Ray Stamford, that I was not flying the right flag. He ordered me to haul down our flag and run up the red ensign. "Well, I have knocked around pretty well and in the last few years I have been in a good many corners of the lobe and the Canadian flag was always bood enough for other British consuls. So thought it would do for Ray Stamford. I therefore took no notice of his warning. Then I did get it: I received a notice that I was liable to a fine of 100 iounds if I continued to fly that flag. The notice bore the stamp of the consulate nd ordered me to appear at the consul are with my flag the following day. "Well you know the British consul is a man's only friend down there if he gets n trouble, and I thought it hetter not to disobey, so I took the flag to him. He to disobey, so I took the flag to him. He or hand me to get out the Canadian confi-or time, and full the space with red bunk-ing_{4.7} $I_{\rm p}$ refuxed, and he had it done thing self. This I considered quite unjustifiable. "We Canadians were given the right to fly our flag in 1867. I have carried that flag at the masthead when lying in the midel of the British Mediterraneon guidel nidst of the British Mediterranean squal ron at the Malta dockyards and at Ca-diz, at Havre, and most of the Mediter-ranean, British North and South American ports, and there has never been ex eption taken to it until now
