Sir Alfred Jones Into the Labor Conditions Prevailing in Canada, A short time ago the press recorded a new departure in the investiga tion of industrial phenomena by Si Alfred Jones. He selected a number of intelligent and representative British workmen in various trades, and sent them to Canada and the United States to study conditions in their respective callings, not restricting them to time or locality, but require ng a comprehensive report of their impressions. Most of the dele Most of the delegate summary of their reports has been published in The London Daily Ex-press. Mr. Abraham, who is a min-er widely known through his influence among the men devotes a large part of his report to conditions and prospects in Canada He declares no ambitious youth need The country thousands of farmers with sufficient capital to tide over the first two years. The Canadians he regards as a nation of workers, and he finds them very happy and highly contented, having congenial homes and being given strong and incontrovertible blessed with an exceedingly brilliant sky. known in this country through his prominence in the Parliamentary movement of the British workmen, finds a very buoyant and hopeful demeanor on the part of the workers, combined with a great deal of push condition of life. combined with a great deal of push and originality. He also finds a franker and more businesslike relationship between capital and labor than in the old country, with a growing feeling toward arbitration.

Trades unionism he regards as a growing force, and he cites an inase of half a million in the membership last year. On the subject of the minimum wage, he says: "I found an entirely different policy in operation in America to that obtaining among employers in this country, a minimum wage being paid to the worker of average ability, while the extra skillful and capable are paid an amount extra to the average man. The British employers who seek to compensate for their deficiencies as captains of industry by the reduction of both wage and living standard of the workers should be reminded of the ever-increasing wage of the American workman. Not only is his wage increased, but the American worker has not, like his British brother, to give a maximum of service for a minimum wage. Whereas in this country the highest quality of skill and energy is claimed by employers to constitute 'average ability,' superior proficiency in America receives extra remunera-

The impressions of Mr. Edward Washer, a delegate to the Bricklayers' Association, seem less favorable, and he compares the general effect of labor unions in the two countries to the disadvantage of the United States. He regards it as strange the workmen, possessing the franchise, do not send labor repre sentatives to Congress, and do not even elect representatives on local governing bodies. In his own trade that matters are entirely different from what they are in England, the man who lays the most bricks being considered the best man It is quantity, not quality, that counts, and workmanship is not so Mr. Washer seems to have found the same regard for quantity rather than quality in the unions themselves. Every workman, he says, belongs to some union, and the shop assistants, newsboys, shoe-blacks, barbers, bakers and streetcar men all have good unions. Sir Alfred Jones intends to publish the reports of all the delegates in book form, and it will no doubt prove a valuable contribution to the literature of industrial and economic research.

Condensation, If science goes on discovering new ans of condensing things for us there seems to be every reason to believe that the time is at hand when existence will mean nothing but tabloids from the cradle to the grave. The great French chemist Berthelot declares it quite possible to exist without any of the foods we now possess, even milk being dispensed with, but at present the process too costly to be of use, but he hopes some day that the cost may be overcome. And as another French chemist has invented a method compressing sea air into tabloids it is obvious that life will not worth living at all in the coming by and by if the pilule system is adopt ed. We shall care nothing for early asparagus or strawberries; aucks and gaine, salmon and the spring chicken will cease to be, and the flying machine means of locomotion will render us indifferent as to scenery.
