TEACHING A HORSE TO JUMP. It May be Done by Coaxing, Lunging or Driving.

There are three methods of teaching a horse to leap—coaxing, lunging and driving. In the coaxing method the young horse is turned into a small paddock having a low hedge or hurdle across the state. centre. In plain view of the pupil a rider on a veteran jumper should take him over this hurdle several times.

The trainer then goes to the opposite side with a measure of corn or oats and calls the horse, shaking up the grain and pouring it with his hand back and forth The boundary will in the receptacle. The boundary will soon be cleared, and when a few mouth-fuls have been eaten the station of the instructor should be at the other side of the hurdle and the lesson repeated.

of the hurdle and the lesson repeated. If this be done daily the hurdle may be gradually heightened.

The habit of jumping is thus acquired without those risks which attend a novel performance when a heavy burden oppresses the strength and whip and spur distract the attention. The horse's body, says Country Life in America, is not partially disabled by the imposition of a heavy load before the powers are taxed to the utmost and his capabilities are unfettered.

The second method is ternied lunging. A long rein or cord is attached to the bit and the animal is exercised in a circle in which a hurdle has been placed or a shallow ditch dug. A long lashed whip, applied at the proper moment, will keep him up to his work. Soon the horse will enter into the spirit of the occasion, and by unmistakable signs will manifest his enthusiastic enjoyment of the exercise.

The third method, driving, is exactly what its name implies. At first the obstruction should be slight. Any open space will answer the purpose, an earth or sod surface or tanbark being preferable. Long reins, a straight bar or snaffle bit, a long whip and patience and perseverance are required.

All things considered, the driving method is the quickest and surest way of teaching the horse to leap. When he has become somewhat proficient, having thoroughly learned what it required of him, the saddle may be cedled into requisecond method is termed lunging

Almost any young horse can be taught to leap. Of course his proficiency will depend on the care bestowed on his depend on the care bestowed on his training, and on his general characteristics of wind, limb and nerve. An ordinary cob or Morgan will attain the proficiency of an Irish hunter, but any horse that is used for a saddler will be of far greater value to his owner if he can be taken occasionally for a cross-country ride and put over ditches and low obstructions.

HOW DID SHE DIE? The dead girl's stomach, however, is in the hands of a Columbia University professor, who will make a chemical analysis of its contents. Although the murder is supposed to have been com-mitted on Wednesday, June 9, the exact cause of her death has never been exact cause of her death has never been ascertained. But it will be a quiet funeral, and no one will know anything about it but the members of the family, if I can avoid it."

Aside from the positive identification of the body, there were few developments in the case here to-day. Chu Gain, manager of the Port Arthur restaurant in Chinatown, who was detained last night as a material witness, was held without bail until Tuesday. He has admitted that he knew Elsie Sigel well and had incurred the enemity of Leung Lim and that both he (Chu Gain), and the girl had been threatened with death. He will be sweated by the police before he is released.

In the afternoon two Chinese called at the Sigel home in the Bronx, ignorant of Mrs. Sigel's removal to a sanitarium, and asked to see "our mother angel," a name which Mrs. Sigel earned because of her mission work among the Chinese. One of the men said he was cau Sam, a brother of Chu Gain, who is under arrest. Chu Sam said that Chung Sin, who disappeared simultaneously with Leon, borrowed $250 from his brother, Chu Gain, on the Tuesday before the murder and on the following day wrote that he would be out of town for some time. Chu Gain is somewhat of a capitalist and is president of a Chinese loan association.

Before going to the morgue, Mabel
Sigel discussed the case, saying among other things that Elsie had been in love with an army man in Wyoming. The mission in Chinatown where Elsie Sigel taught has been closed BITTER FOR THE FATHER.

Paul Sigel told Police Captain Carey o-day that his daughter's intimacy with he short haired Chinese of the dowr to-day that his daughter's intimacy with the short-haired Chinese of the dowr-town missions had been a source of great bitterness to him for years. He could not believe in the piety of Chinese who insisted, each of them, on having a good-looking white woman to teach him the conning of prayers, and he had put his foot down on Elsie's converts coming to his house, but Elsie and her mother could not see it that way. They believed that every yellow man who thumbed a Bible and droned a hymn was a real brand plucked from the burning, and they rejoiced keenly whenever they could persuade a coolie to lay aside his red and black dice, buy a suit of American clothes and snip off his pigtail. There had been, too, some question of Elsie marrying Leung Lim, who had been the choicest of her converts. Mr. Sigel said that was a step that no white girl should ever take.

Leon, as Leung wrote his name in English, pursued the girl with attentions for the last few years. He went about with her and her mother, called at the house and attracted a vast deal of unfavorable comment from the neighbors of the Sigels, who did not like the idea of Chinese visiting the houses where they lived.

WERE THEY IN CHICAGO?

Chicago, June 21.—The police yesterday received information which may result in the capture of the two Chinese who are wanted in New York for the murder of Elsie Sigel. W. J. Conley, an employee of the Parmalee Transfer Company, said that two Chinese answering the descriptions of Leon Ling and Chung Sin, arrived at the Grand Central station over the Paltimore & Ohio Railroad from Washington at 9.45 o'clock last Friday mornig. They departed, Conley said, almost immediately, for St. Paul, over the Wisconsin Central Railroad. Conley said the men had tickets over the Canadian Pacific Railroad for Vancouver, B. C., but that they refused to allow him to check their baggage, which consisted of two trunks. One Chinese, who was well dressed, travelled firstelass, while his companion travelled second class.

Detectives were assigned to gather further details.

NO LIMIT NAMED. To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—Regarding speeding on the public streets, will you kindly inform me through your columns, what rate of speed is allowed the Hamilton, Ancaster & Brantford Railway within the city limits? Some of these cars, especially those late at night, come tearing and roaring down street at, I am sure, twenty-five miles an hour, at the very least, much to the discomfort and disturbance of Hess street residents, to say nothing of the risk to life.

If there is a limit I would suggest that the police get out their stopwatches and time the Hess street climb, and thus extend the good work they have instituted in seeing that auto drivers live within the law. Perhaps the railway people could be persuaded to contribute a few dollars to the civie treasury via the Police Court, Yours, etc.,

Hamilton, June 21, 1909. To the Editor of the Times
