

You are Welcome To this way to white teeth

All statements approved by high dental authorities

You see white teeth wherever you look today, for millions of people use a new teeth cleaning method. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. You are welcome to a ten-day test, and you owe it to yourself.

Film dims the teeth

The teeth's great enemy is film. It clouds their beauty and it destroys the teeth. Most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

Film is the viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Very few people escape the effects of it.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea, which attacks 95 in 100.

The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve film, so old methods fail to end it. Dental science has for years sought the right way to combat it, for tooth troubles have been constantly increasing.

The method has now been found. Convincing clinical tests have amply proved its efficiency. And now the way is embodied, for daily use, in a dentifrice called Pepsodent.

Three unique results

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin long seemed impossible. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But now a harmless activating method permits its constant use.

Two other new-day requisites are also found in Pepsodent. So this tooth paste in three ways brings whiter, safer teeth.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Results are clear and quick, and our book explains them. Make this test and judge them for yourself. Cut out the coupon now.

A Gift

A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent is sent to all who ask. See coupon.

Hr. Grace Notes.

Mr. James Adams arrived here from Sydney Friday night last, to spend the summer in the old town with friends and acquaintances, and all are pleased to see him in the best of health.

Capt. Charles Webber, son of the late Capt. George Webber, arrived from Bell Island last Saturday, by Stewart's motor boat, to spend the week-end with his home folk. The steamer of which he is Mate, is at present at Bell Island. Mr. Webber had command of a ship some time ago in foreign seas, and had a hard time of it, meeting as he did with very untoward weather conditions. Twice he had to put back to port, having in both cases been disabled by the loss of a spar and other such set-backs. Captain Webber is looking O.K., and his many friends are pleased to see him, and regret that his stay was so brief. He returned to his ship Sunday afternoon.

Mr. William Simmonds, of the Telegram staff, St. John's, arrived from that city Saturday night on a brief visit to friends.

Empire Day—Empire Day, 1920, was celebrated by our townspeople to the full. While some took themselves to the country, there to enjoy the pure air, some others repaired to their gardens and tilled before and after the intense heat of the noon and afternoon. Many were the motor cars, each laden with happy sight-seers, that sped North, West and East. Each car was decorated with the flag of the Empire—the flag that flew in defiance to the greatest, deadliest and most inhuman power the world ever heard of: Strife. In the early morning the Orangemen paraded to Carbonear and attended service at the Methodist Church there. In the afternoon, Miss Maud Butt, Principal of Victoria Street School, together with her pupils, went a-picknicking in the country, and enjoyable is no name for the time spent by one and all of the children. The day, being one of the best of the summer, it was difficult for anyone to do anything but enjoy one's self. It is to be hoped that the good Queen, to whose memory and respect, the day is kept, was not forgotten in the prayers of our people. A State Convention of the Knights of Columbus was held during the day, and was attended by representatives from the different Councils of the order in the island. In the afternoon a dinner was given to the State Officers by Dalton Council, No. 1448, at the "Retreat" Hotel, and the usual toast list gone through. In the evening a dance was held in the Academy Hall, and was largely attended by Knights and their lady friends. An orchestra from St. John's having been engaged for the purposes, assisted by Mr. James Garland of Hr. Grace, added to the enjoyment of the evening. Great praise is given to Mrs. Bailey for the pleasant way in which she catered to the wants of her guests. And then, as the sun sank down behind the Western hills, having smiled and blessed those beneath it, many happy and refreshed children, many thankful men and women of the upper walk, and many feet weary and thankful pedestrians of the poor rank, having done their bit to the betterment of their families for the coming season, retired, and found themselves back again in the land of dreams in the arms of sweet Morpheus where the early morning found them. And others, as the moon smiled down on the sleeping town, danced until early hours. And thus, Empire Day, 1920, came to a close.

Miss May Dooley, daughter of Constable Dooley, who has been ill more or less for some weeks past, is suffering from an attack of La Grippe or some kindred sickness, is, her many friends will learn with pleasure now on the road to complete recovery, and will be about again soon.

Mr. Harry Stevenson left for Montreal by Tuesday morning's train.

Master George Sheppard, son of Mr. H. Sheppard, who had been in the Hospital at St. John's for some three months past, returned Saturday night, and is now very much the better for his visit. He will no doubt be O. K. again in a short time.

Fresh salmon was on the market Monday and Tuesday morning and sold readily at 20 to 30 cents a pound. One fisherman had quite a good catch—and may be get many more, say all of us. Many were the side glances at a string of fresh fish, too, Tuesday, but that was not so plentiful. This is the first of both fish that has been on the market here for the season, and the hope is entertained that it will be followed by large catches. Fish is cheap, while pork is almost to be ignored—still a local farmer (and one it is said, now on the Food Control Board), is biting the ends off the people's purse!

Schr. Dorothy G. Snow arrived Tuesday to go on dock.

Miss Irene Wells was in town this week from the city to spend Empire Day with friends. She returns Tuesday morning.

(The envelope containing the above notes is date stamped Harbor Grace, May 26, and St. John's May 27, yet it was not in the Telegram Box at the East End Post Office on Saturday, 29, nor was it received at this office until yesterday morning's clearing.)

It speaks volumes for our up to date mail service with a Minister of Posts, to boot, that a letter mailed in Harbor Grace on Wednesday, May 26, and received in St. John's the following day, should have taken three extra days, going the rounds somewhere, before being received by the addressee. But such is the case. The P.M.G. may have the covering envelope as evidence, if he wishes.—Ed.)

and Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

L. C. MORRIS.

CHAPTER X.

A VISIT TO CHINA TOWN.

We had often heard about China town in New York; hence it was only natural, when a chance offered, that we should go and see it for ourselves. This was the Blue Line Touring Cars. These cars are very popular, and they are a big trade every day. Each car has sixteen passengers, and in addition to the chauffeur, carries a lecturer. The lecturer's place is near the driver, and as each point of interest is passed, he shouts through megaphone, and recites the particular history of the place. We had two cars in these cars, and had two different lecturers. Both of these gentlemen did their work well, and though they themselves must be tired by their recitals, to the stranger it is very novel, and not a little instructive.

Having passed several points of interest, our instructor announced that the next stop would be at China town, and that all who wished to follow him, could see for themselves a place of worship. This most we did. There were two other parties ahead of us, so in all there were about fifty visitors, the most of them being strangers to each other, all imbued with the one desire, to beat on the same purpose—that of seeing a real Chinese Joss

House, or place of worship. This sanctum is located at the top of the building, and is approached by a very narrow and old fashioned stairway. The building is one of the many of its style in the row, which was at one time a centre of English speaking residents. The entire locality is now owned by wealthy Chinese Merchants, and is thickly populated. Many of the tourists do some trade at these stores, and the amount of cash that changes hands must be large. The wares are mostly of Chinese make, and they bear the insignia and impress of oriental life, and they seem to speak to the Western purchasers, and to say to them, "We are of the misty and mysterious past; before you were a people we were a power, and the traditions which we followed in the East, we mean to perpetuate here in the West."

The scene within the Joss House is perplexing—it is almost distressing. Such a place should be avoided by those who are of delicate health. The climb up the stair-way, and the dimness of the place are too much of a tax for any to undertake who are not of sound mind and strong nerves. Some of our party did not ascend to the Joss House, and we were very glad they did not do so. True it is, they missed something very strange and unusually quaint, but sometimes too big a price is paid for curiosity, and it is an easy matter to make this mistake in such a place as that of which we write. At every point the lecturer instructs his company, and so was it at the Joss House. The mystery of the shrines, and the meaning of the sacred fire, and the benediction of the High Priest, and the devotion of his followers were all explained, and as far as the duties of the lecturer permitted, they were faithfully performed. We learned something, and yet we did not learn anything. We saw for ourselves a living illustration of Chinese heathendom. We saw the density of these people in the light of divine revelation; and we called to mind the words of the prophet when he said "Darkness shall cover the earth and gross darkness the people."

We could not think otherwise than this. Around us we beheld the emblems of a deity and the shrines of a God, of whom the Palmist said, "Eyes have they but they see not, ears have they but they hear not, mouths have they but they smell not, feet have they but they walk not. They that make them are like unto them, and so is everyone that trusteth in them." The men before us believed in these emblems. They looked upon them as really existing, and whatever of faith, or hope they exercised, were centred in them. Thus they attend the Joss House, believing that it is possible to commune with Confucius, and to consult him upon business affairs. In this, the Chinese are like all other people. They feel the burden of life, and they want something that is greater than themselves, and they seek it in their religion. Such is the longing of the heart the world over, both without and within the bounds of Christendom. Greater than man must be that which satisfies them. In their darkness, the heathen seek for the greater from that which is lesser; and in their forgetfulness, Christians seem to miss the greater also.

Fads and Fashions.

A dress of tan linen has a vest of checked gingham ruffles. Hats have a tendency to show much of the hair in back. With the white skirt short coats of striped jersey are worn. Tulle wraps for evening are made on very simple lines. Knotted Swisses, white with red dots, have red ribbon sashes. Soft saliors of ribbon, straw and wool will be worn at resorts. Bathing blouses are dainty with lace and sprigs of embroidery. Bunches of silk crocheted roses trim an overblouse of tricolour.

The Lambeth Conference.

The arrangements for the Anglican Lambeth Conference are now nearing completion. It will be the greatest gathering of Bishops which has ever taken place on English soil, and, as representing Churches, it will be exceeded in numerical significance only by the Methodist Ecumenical Conference, which meets in London in the autumn of 1921. It is expected that about three hundred bishops will attend and among them will be Bishop Asrial, of Dornakal, the only native Indian bishop of the Anglican Church. Dr. Davidson will be the first Archbishop to be twice President of the Conference, for he was in the chair in 1908. On three occasions he has acted as secretary, commencing his work in this capacity forty-two years ago. The qualifications for attendance are stringent; only active diocesan are permitted to take part in the Conference, and this will exclude about sixty bishops who are now resident in the British Isles, but who have resigned their Sees. It is interesting to note that seventy-two of the members of the Conference come from America, and one hundred and seven from "overseas." The Conference meets at Lambeth Palace from July 5 to 10. Then it adjourns until July 26, meeting daily after that until August 7. On Sunday, August 8, there is to be a concluding service in St. Paul's Cathedral, the preacher being Bishop Gailer, of Tennessee. The agenda is a heavy one, and includes such important subjects as Reunion, the League of Nations, Industrial and Social Problems, and the Position of Women in the Councils and Ministries of the Church. The Conference has no executive authority, but from the nature of its constitution its decisions carry almost supreme influence within the Anglican fold.
