BASEBALL

CANADIAN LEAGUE STANDING.

When Brownie Foreman tossed his first ball over the plate yesterday, a jeer from the Hamilton bench greeted the poorly-delivered sphere. Hagerty, with his twang, inaudibly added a word. The second ball took the third baseman in the back. Then big Elton swung his ten-pound bat, but the third ball also took him in a tender spot. The Hamilton players yelled altogether and several made a bolt for the coaching lines. But the bad beginning had a good ending, as Hagerty was caught going to third on a double steal. Then for two innings six men faced Foreman, and he struck out three of them, In the fourth the visitors scored a run, Elton making the first hit of the game. Congalton sacrificed him to second and McKevitt helped the big fellow over the rubber with a single. A lone single was made by Conwell in the fifth. Elton again opened the sixth with a safe hit. McKevitt was bound to keep even with the first baseman, and also took a single. This inning was exactly the same as the fourth, as both hits were made by the same players, and opened with Elton at bat and closed with Bradford. Run number two was scored in the seventh. Foreman seemed to have a fondness for the ribs of the Hams, and laid out Dean with a curve ball that made the second baseman roll over in agony. Someone in the grand stand was heard by Elton to remark: "Serve him right," and big Elton answered: "Let that person stand up. Where is the man mean enough to make such a remark?" Elton consoled Dean and then took the base as the runner. Baker's single sent Elton to third. Hagerty, who is a left-hand hitter, had struck out twice already, but now placed a short fly to left. Meara was just back of short-Meare's weakness and easily scored.

Foreman had no passes until the eighth, when Congalton secured the first one. Collins flied to Carey, and Foreman passed McKevitt. Bradford forced McKevitt at second, and double was almost accomplished Dean singled and scored Congalton. With two on bases Conwell struck

Baker was fortunate, opening the ninth with a base on balls. Carey was over-anxious to stop Hagerty's single to center and fell, the batter makin two bases. Elton flied to Smink, and Hagerty jogged to third, believing Smink would throw to the plate head off Baker, but Smink threw Ward, and Ward to Keenan, doubling up Hagerty. Congalton sent a line along right foul line for two bases. A Collins hit to Mohler the crowd rose but Mohler threw badly to Laroque Congalton cut the third bag, an England called him out, ending th

Dean and Congalton made for England and the former shoved the umpire, when a remark was made by a youth to which Dean responded "I wouldn't hit a one-armed man, but I would you." A disturbance seemed likely, but the vanishing of the umpire ended the scene.

Meara hit a long fly to center, openbases were made, but Dean overthrew the ball to Hagerty and Meara scored. Singles by Laroque, Keenan and Carey gave London another run. The errors of Collins and Bradford sent Keenan and Carey to bases in the sixth. Lohman scored both with a single, and came home himself, aided by an error of Dean, a wild pitch and an out at first.

After Laroque had taken his base on being hit by a pitched ball in the seventh, Carey made his third hit. Dean fumbled Lohman's grounder and both runs scored. Twice did London baserunners get nipped at first base by Baker in the eighth after making safe

Asked the reason for his trip, he replied that he went "to protect his interests." Just what these interests are he preferred not to specify. The Buffalo magnate has never felt especially cordial to Montreal on account of the traveling expenses, and has been heard to say that he thought another chosen at the time Montreal was given the Rochester franchise. During the summer he remarked that Montreal might be a good city to drop at the end of the season. Recently his views have undergone somewhat of a change, and it is not at all improbable that his object in going is to make a personal survey of the field. Despite the fact that it is announced as a fact that Arthur Irwin has bought an interest in the Washington league club, and will manage it next season, Mr. Franklin thinks it is improbable, and that Irwin will be doing business at the same old stand next season. "I do not believe he would give up such a rich certainty for a mere chance like that at Washington."

ELTON USED SPIKES. St. Thomas Journal: Elton, Hamilton's dirtiest ball player, nearly precipitated a serious row in front of the Grand Central last night. Coming up on the street car after the game some of the fans in the car chaffed the Hamilton players. When the car reached the Grand Central, Elton deliberately spiked a young man on the foot, the young man shoved Elton away, and Elton responded by shoving the young man's head through the car window. A well-known citizen about half Elton's size smashed him one under the jaw. Elton did not retaliate, one was enough for him. It is easy things he wants, boys or persons lacking muscular development. Elton paid for the car window, and thus escaped prosecution.
