THE WESTERN FAIR

Dog and Cat Show This Year Will Be Big Attraction.

This is the third year that the Western Fair has held a dog show in connection with their exhibition, Both shows held have been a success, and this one promises fair to surpass them Those who have exhibited in the past have all been well pleased with the treatment received, and are ready to come again. This is the first attempt at holding a cat show, and judging from the great interest taken it will certainly prove a success. Beautiful ribbons have been provided for each prize-winner in both departments in addition to the cash prizes and fine list of specials. Exhibitors in both these departments must have their animals benched and caged by o'clock on Tuesday, Sept. 14, as the judging commences Tuesday afternoon. Entries for both dogs and cats positively close Tuesday, Sept. 7, after which a catalogue of the entries will be printed before the opening day of the show.

The corn, too, in some localities has growth, but as it has been practically ready for harvesting for some days, the damage will not amount to much, though one man reports that acre after acre of corn through the county has been completely destroyed. He was evidently judging from his individual case, however, as further re-that it was only the heavy dew that preceded the frost that saved a very serious damage, as the tomato vines and corn were very heavily frosted, without in many places damaging them, while the extent of the frost was shown in that in many places ice was standing on the pools of water in the morning.

It is generally admitted that another such frost might be followed with far more disastrous results.
