Greatest Film Success Aply Described as the "British Birth of a Nation"

Undoubtedly the greatest film success that has played Toronto in more than a year is the stupendous all-British production, "The Better 'Ole," which is the attraction at Taylor's Lyceum, May 2nd. This production takes one right up to the front line trenches with the British Tommies and takes you right in to their every day life more than any other motion picture production that has ever been staged. Old Bill, Bert and Alf might be thought unusual characters, but many returned heroes who have spent long weary months in the trenches declare that these humorous musketeers may be found in nearly every part of the line. They portray the type of men that England sent against the barbarous Hun, who made a determined but unsuccessful bid for world domination. "The Better 'Ole" might well be called the "British Birth of a Nation."

Memorials of Our Heroes.

A statement on the work of the Imperial War Graves Commission, signed by Mr. Rudyard Kipling, announces that memorials to commemorate the parts borne by particular armies, divisions, or regiments in campaigns and battles, such as, to name only a very few, the Canadians at Ypres, the South Africans at Delville Wood, the Australians at Amiens, the British at the breaking of the Hindenburg line, will be advised upon by a fully representative military committee.

"Sir Frederic Kenyon recommended that in each cemetery there should stand a Cross of Sacrifice and an altar-like Stone of Remembrance, and that the headstones of the graves should be of uniform shape and size. Plain headstones, measuring 2 feet 6 inches by 1 foot 3 inches, were, therefore, chosen, upon which the cross or other religious symbol of the dead man's faith could be carved and his regimental badge fully displayed. The regiments have been consulted as to the designs of these badges. In due time, wherever a man may be buried, from East Africa to North Russia, his headstone will carry his regimental badge identifiable the world over.

"The commission feel that relatives should, if they wish, add a short inscription of their own choice. These will be at the relatives' expense, and it has been found necessary to restrict the length of the inscription to 65 letters. Every cemetery will keep registers of the dead buried there.

"It is inevitable that there must be single graves and groups. There is a strong sentiment among all ranks that such scattered graves look lonely; and the instinct of the service demands that those who fell by the wayside should be gathered in to rest with the nearest main body of their companions. That is what the commission, with all due care and reverence, proposes to do."

All letters should be addressed to secretary, Imperial War Graves Commission, Winchester House, St. James' square, S.W. London.

HIGHER THAN MERE BRAVERY

Soldier's Decoration Conferred as Reward for Assuaging the Thirst of Emperor Napoleon.

There is a good story of one of Bonaparte's veterans, who, after the distribution of medals of the Legion of Honor, which he expected but did not receive, could contain himself no longer and went to the emperor to demand satisfaction.

"Do you not remember, sire," he asked, "that when we were in Egypt and you were thirsty I, alone, had a melon, which I shared with you?"

The emperor smiled, saying, "I thank you again, my good man, but giving a melon to a thirsty man does not necessarily carry the cross with it."

The soldier broke into furious speech: "And was I not at Arcola, at Marengo, at Austerlitz? Did I not go to Santo Domingo and cover myself with glory in every battle? Yet you cannot remember a melon! Pshaw!"

The emperor smiled again. "Why did you not tell me all that before?" he asked. "Of course you shall have your cross."

"But is it for the battles or for the melon?" the soldier demanded. "Any fool can go into battle, but not every man can give a melon to his general when his general is thirsty."

"Quite true," remarked the emperor, laughing, and, taking the cross from his own breast, he pinned it to that of his old grenadier. "Let it be for the melon," he said.

Lavish Display.

"Poor old duffer. He saved all his life and died before he could enjoy his wealth."

"But somebody will enjoy it."

"That's true. His widow has the satisfaction of giving him a funeral that was expensive enough to make the old gentleman turn over in his grave."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

In The Spring-Time.

Any fool knows enough to carry an umbrella when it rains, but the wiseman is he who carries one when it is only cloudy. Any man will send for a doctor when he gets bedfast, but the wiser one is he who adopts proper measures before his ills become serious. During a hard winter or the following spring one feels rundown, tired out, weak and nervous. Probably you have suffered from cold or influenza which has left you thin, weak and pale. This is the time to put your system in order. It is time for house-cleaning.

A good, old-fashioned alterative and temperance tonic is one made of wild roots and barks without the use of alcohol, and called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form. This is nature's tonic, which restores the tone of the stomach, activity of the liver and steadiness of the nerves, strengthening the whole system.

CENTRAL BUTTE, SASK.—"I have used the 'Golden Medical Discovery' for a number of years and am pleased to recommend it as a blood purifier. I know it has no equal. I think my boy would not be alive to-day had it not been for the 'Discovery.' I also keep it on hand for coughs as it differs so from other medicines, instead of upsetting the stomach as cough syrups do. It is good for the stomach."—Mrs. Fanny Wood.
