The question of offering scholarships at various schools for students coming to Trinity was discussed at some length, and it is hoped that the Local Council may be able to give practical effect to the views expressed. Hardly any practical plan is more likely to be of permanent benefit to Trinity than the linking on of a number of schools by means of special scholarships. It is not a new idea for us, but hitherto the proposals have never been carried through.

Since the last issue of THE REVIEW, and in fact all through the winter the public lectures of the scheme appended have been in great request. But in some cases it must be rather annoying to a lecturer, after putting himself to considerable inconvenience to get to a place, to find a small audience. The question then arises if the game is worth the candle, and it certainly seems that if people wish for a lecture or a course of lectures, they should attempt to get together as large an audience as they can. This is only fair. The lectures are given that we may reach as large a constituency as possible, and that, if advisable, the claims of Trinity may be brought to the notice of the audience. That was the original intention of the system of lectures. It has partly been lost sight of, and a return may have to be made next year that too much energy may not be spent with no appreciable advantage.

The regular meeting of the Executive Committee of Convocation was held on Thursday, March 23rd. The business transacted has to be held over till the next issue

LECTURES, 1898-99.

GENERAL STATEMENT.

The Convocation of Trinity University offers courses of lectures upon various scientific, literary, historical, art and other subjects to the residents of the towns and cities of this Province, subject to the conditions stated herein. With a view to making arrangements for any of these lectures, correspondence is invited from clergymen and the officers of educational, literary and scientific organizations. One or more of the lectures may be chosen for any given place; but, the committee will limit the number of lectures where it may seem necessary to do so.

All correspondence about lectures is to be addressed to Rev. Professor Cayley, M.A., Trinity University, Toronto.
