CIVIL AND RELIGIOUS LIBERTY.

OTTAWA, July 19th 1877.

To the Editor of the True Witness:

DEAR SIR,—It was with great pleasure that I read your leading article on the late Orange demonstration in Montreal. The sentiments contained therein, I can assure you, will find a ready echo in the hearts of almost every Irish and French Roman Catholic in Ottawa as well as all over the whole Dominion. Too long have we submitted to those insulting and fanatical parades in Ontario. Not only on the 12th July, but on almost every public holiday have Orangemen appropriated to themselves the opportunity of making a display of their disgusting exhibitions—flaunting their banners and playing the airs of such doggerel compositions as "Kick the Pope," "Croppies lie Down," "Protestant Boys," &c.

How can the sympathizers of such an organization, (if there be such among intelligent Protestants) call this "civil and religious liberty"? Is this the doctrine that teaches "peace and good will to all men"? Can any Government imagine that by the toleration of such fanatical institutions, they can possibly cement the different elements of a country like ours? Most assuredly not. What has the so-called victory over the pusillanimity of an English King 188 years ago to do with the people of this country, who are composed of component parts of nearly all creeds, race, and color? While we can respect and honor the man or body of men who may possibly meet together for the purpose of giving public expression of their filial affection and devotion to their fatherland; it is beyond the power of human endurance to stand tamely by and see the faith and country we hold dear to our hearts wantonly insulted by a horde of ruffians, headed by bigoted demagogues such as paraded the streets of Montreal on Monday the 16th inst.

Here in Ottawa we have a press and class of people who hold their eyes up in holy horror at what they call the Sabbath desecration by a few boys who amuse themselves by playing a harmless game of ball or take part in other juvenile sports, but we heard nothing of that when on Sunday night last, 16th inst., the gallant defenders of "civil and religious liberty," thronged our public thoroughfares at half past eleven o'clock with their instruments of death in their pockets and murder in their hearts, making night hideous with their howls while embarking on board of the steamer Queen for Montreal, their band playing that "classical" piece "Arise ye sons of William." No; we were told next day that the "boys" were in excellent spirits and cheered lustily. On Tuesday, 17th inst. we were again favored with another grand rally of the "friends, &c.," on the occasion of the return of the Ottawa contingent of Montreal "heroes," and I am sorry to have to state were accompanied by the usually liberal portion of our citizens composed of the St. George and St. Andrew's Societies, but while stating this, I think it is but fair to add that many of the members of those two Societies refused to turn out, declining to give offence to their separated brethren by countenancing a few rampant bigots who could not refrain from giving vent to their vicious malignity by playing their party tunes while passing the Roman Catholic Cathedral and on through their line of march up to Cartier Square, where they had a grand powwow. One fellow tried to distinguish himself in the ranks by constantly waving a dirty broom with an equally dirty Orange sash. As a grand final of the days proceedings an Orange rowdy by the name of Garity, accompanied by a brother chip named Smith, fired upon a poor half-witted youth named Dounet, aged sixteen, under the pretence that he was assaulted. The bullet lodged in the arm of the boy, and up to the present the doctors have been unable to extricate it, it is feared amputation will be necessary.

Now, sir, is this a state of things to be tolerated in a mixed community like ours? How long will those mistaken fanatics comprising the Orange order be galled by such firebrand and mercenary travellers such as Doudiet, Chiniquy, &c., whose only aim is to incite inflammatory and unwholy passions in their auditors for their personal ends? They are a disgrace to the cloth they wear.

In conclusion, I am happy to be able to inform you that your excellent paper is creating a considerable interest for itself in Ottawa; on all sides do I hear its praises sounded and encomiums lavished on its able management. Continue in the work you have so nobly begun, and the people being educated through the means of your valuable journal will ere long be roused to a thorough sense of the duty they owe to themselves and their country.

Regretting Mr. Editor, the amount of space I have taken up in your important paper, and wishing you all success in the gallant stand you have taken. I am, dear sir,
 Yours, etc.
 A CONSTANT READER.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S CHURCH, GUELPH.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PLANS.

The following is a description of the plans prepared for the erection of the Church of Our Lady of Guelph:—The church consists of nave and aisles, apsidal chancel, transepts, chancel ambulatory or surrounding aisle, and numerous chapels, which will be dedicated to the tutelary saints of the church, radiating from the axis of the chancel and from the transepts. The total interior length will be over 200 feet; width of nave and aisles, nearly 70 feet; width across the transepts 12 feet; and height from floor of church to ridge of main roof, 82 feet. The basement, nearly the same area as the church, and 13 feet high, will be lighted and ventilated, and with the basements of the numerous chapels as class rooms, will form spacious school rooms, lecture hall, &c., while its height above the ground will give additional dignity to the church. The great twin towers, flanking the nave front, with its magnificent rose window and vast portico, will be each over 250 feet in height, while the graceful spirelet at the crossing of the nave, &c, transept roofs, will reach to a height of over 150 feet. The entrances and exits through it are spacious, free from draughts, and sufficiently numerous for even this vast edifice. The ventilation, heating, &c., will be carried out on the most approved principles. The style of the building is that of the early 14th century—French Gothic—and will be carried out in its purity in all the details, carvings, frescoes, decorations &c. The exterior views on all sides of this grand edifice are bold, varied and picturesque, while those of the interior, with its forest of pillars and pointed arches; its great traceried windows of different designs; its numerous chapels, seen in the distance through the openings of the great chancel, give ever-changing perspectives at each step. Great dignity is added to the interior by the grand triforium which extends all around the church between the great arcades and the clerestory windows. It is a novelty in this country, being the only one of its kind in the Dominion, and will, consequently, be an additional characteristic of this great building, which, when finished, will not only be a landmark of our future city but also one of which the whole Dominion may well feel proud. The triforium will contain over 500 sittings. The beautifully designed traceried windows, which light the church, will in time be filled with stained glass of gorgeous hues, speaking in their silent language the grand lessons and the sublime legends of holy Scripture, while the walls, pillars, and ceiling will continue the glorious narrative in magnificent frescoes, rich carvings and costly mosaics. One church has been designed and is being carried out under the superintendence of the architect, Mr. Joseph Connolly of Toronto.—Guelph Mercury.
