ANGELS EVERYWHERE. There fit a myriad angels About this earth below; And in and out our thresholds Their footsteps come and go, While in our very blindness Their form we do not know.

They sing to us in music, They smile on us in dreams— They talk to us in echoes The worldly spirit dooms But chirping of wood-birds And chattering of dreams. They make light in our corners, They purify our air; They take our banes unconscious And guide us unaware. The presence of their ministry Is sweetly everywhere.

They sit up in the nursery, And kiss the babes to sleep. Across the holy heart's place They join their hands, to keep From blotting out the home shrine The tears that sad hearts weep. They lurk about the sick-room, And trace upon the wall Quaint legends for ailing souls— When twilight shadows fall— The dim world drifting past us, A thing not worth recall.

Then sit they by the bedside And hold our passive hands, And talk to us of strange things That health scarce understands, Till home-like to the soul grow Uncomprehended lands.

They sketch the shadow-groups, And the pictures 'twixt the bars, And point with finger pure To the tranquil vast of stars, While breathing holy peace On the daylight's petty jars. They kneel beside the children Who say their evening prayer, And fit beside the mother Who passeth down the stair, Wish peace writ on her forehead Across the print of care.

And when the door is shut, And the hurried day is gone, They stand beside the father Whose laboring brow is bent, And pay him down the blessings The children's prayers have won.

"A CALAMITY TO IRELAND AND A DISGRACE TO ENGLAND."

During the debate in the Imperial Parliament on the appointment of Mr. Justice Day (an ultra-Tory Catholic) as one of the commissioners for the Fenell enquiry, the Grand Old Man stood a tall point against the appointment in Ireland. Mr. Justice Day, it appears, is an Englishman with very anti-Irish views, which he does not take any pains to conceal on any occasion, either public or private. In fact, one of his conferees on the Belfast Commission, a Mr. Adams, wrote to a Liberal member of Parliament, who produced the letter in the House, stating that Mr. Justice Day expressed opinions to him on the Irish question which for pure prejudice could not be surpassed for bitterness by those held by the most rampant Orange landlord in the House. This is one of the men who is to try Parrell and the Irish party. No wonder they preferred a Scotch court. Here is the extract from Mr. Gladstone's speech on the subject:—

"The First Lord of the Treasury has said that probably if he had communicated with the opposition benches it would have come to nothing. I cannot, however, admit that the matter was one of any difficulty at all. I know that if the right hon. gentleman had drawn his judges by lot he would have done better than he has now (Opposition cheers). I can at all events say confidently that there are a dozen or more judges to no one of whom would objection have been taken if criticism had been made. The question is not what are we to say to the right hon. gentleman when he says that Mr. Justice Day had not been convicted of any offence (laughter and cheers). But in a question of a man being appointed to an office of extraordinary delicacy, in the discharge of which he is deprived of the aids and safeguards which he is habitually guided, there ought to be no suspicion or possibility of objection even in such a case as this, and under these circumstances I am called upon, like others, to perform a very painful duty. I lament that the Government have appeared to treat this as a sort of perfunctory duty, without careful, thorough, and minute inquiry. I perfectly admit they were entitled to proceed without making any private communication to us; but the more responsibility upon themselves (Opposition cheers). The Government must be aware the statement of my right hon. friend, and even the lighter statement of the hon. gentleman who for the Scotland Division of Liverpool, disturb man's minds and impair the feeling of absolute confidence in me, every one of whom ought to be above suspicion. Under these circumstances, I say that the objections taken by the whole mass of those who are to be tried is an important element in this case. Behind them there have a people (loud Irish cheers), and behind that people, in my opinion, there is a widespread sentiment of sympathy throughout the whole range of the whole civilized world (cheers), and derisive cheers from the Ministerial benches. Gentlemen opposite, toss their heads, but that is only a convenient method of conducting Parliamentary operations. Mr. S. Gadge rose to explain. Mr. Gladstone, amidst laughter, said he was not alluding to the hon. gentleman. Continuing, he said—I say to these gentlemen let them produce to me from the compass of civilized literature the name of any author of vituperated literature the name of any author of vituperated literature who has made an investigation of the relations between England and Ireland, and who comes to any other conclusion than this one—that these relations, taken in the mass, have been a calamity to Ireland and a disgrace to England (loud Opposition cheers). I say these cheers are not returned, and the head is not tossed. I feel, sir, that an absolute duty is laid upon me to do what I can to procure justice, and the administration of justice, free from criticism and suspicion, and without passing any condemnation upon Mr. Justice Day (a laugh) whose character is honorable, and who is undoubtedly competent to discharge his legal duties. I should give a most decided vote against the insertion of his name in the bill (loud cheers).

LANSDOWNE AGAIN. We hope that Quebec city will receive no title from Her Majesty for any services rendered during Lansdowne's term of office. By today's cable we are told that Chapeau, Abbott and Stewart are to be recognized. Cover them from head to foot with titles, it will make no difference to us in Canada. It is the record we look at, just as a commercial man will look up the standing of his customer before he gives him increased credit. Lansdowne's opinions may out the Tories, but to the masses they will always fall flat. He was not popular in Canada, and if we mistake not, he could not be elected as a Tory among Tories. Lansdowne is a dead letter in Canadian household. Whatever he has suggested towards Canada, before Her Majesty's Government, will have no weight with us.—Quebec Telegraph.

TO BE KNIGHTED. LONDON, Aug. 20.—Several Canadians are about to be knighted in recognition of their services during Lord Lansdowne's administration. Among the names mentioned are those of Hon. J. A. Chapeau, Hon. Oliver Mowat, J. J. C. Abbott, Mayor of Montreal, and MacLeod Stewart, Mayor of Ottawa.

A MONTREALER DROWNED. SAD FATE OF A ST. PAUL STREET MERCHANT WHILE BATHING AT A SUMMER RESORT.

Mr. A. J. Turcot of the well known wholesale millinery and fancy dry goods firm of St. Paul street of this city, was accidentally drowned yesterday afternoon at Beaconsfield. It appears he had but recently returned from New York, where he had consulted some specialists regarding a certain operation which had been deemed advisable, and which was about to be performed. In the meantime he was enjoying a few days rest with his family at Beaconsfield. Yesterday morning he intended to come into Montreal by the 8 o'clock train, but he missed the bus to the station and he was obliged to wait until the next train at 11 o'clock. In the meantime he went to the river for a swim with his young brother-in-law, Master Vallieres, a lad of thirteen years. While in the water the young lad said he found the water too cold and proceeded to the boat house to dress. While dressing he turned round to look for Mr. Turcot but could not see him. He at once gave the alarm and Mr. D. Hinch, who happened to be driving along the shore, drove at once to the village and stated that Mr. Turcot was drowned. Inside of ten minutes fully twenty persons were out in boats looking for him, but no trace of him could be found. Young Vallieres as well as Mr. Fred Birks and Mr. Raymond Biomere dived repeatedly but could not find the body. Some two hours later however Mr. Edward Mitchell found the body about twenty feet from the large boulder at that place. The water where they were bathing was only five or six feet deep, and as Mr. Turcot was an excellent swimmer, it is thought that he must have taken a cramp. The Coroner was notified and will hold an inquest this morning. Mr. Victor Theriault, undertaker, left for Beaconsfield last evening to bring the remains to the city. He leaves a young widow, who is a daughter of Mr. C. Vallieres, of Quebec, to whom very general sympathy will be extended in her sad bereavement.

A FIGHT WITH DESPERADOS. SCRANTON, Ohio, Aug. 20.—The Sheriff and a posse had a fight with a band of desperados at Marion, in the interior of this county, Friday afternoon, and one of the Sheriff's party was wounded. Five of the outlaws were captured and this morning were lodged in jail, and six others, comprising the worst element, are at large in the hills, heavily armed and defying the Sheriff to take them. The men are wanted for breaking up the soldiers' reunion at Marion Thursday. There are in the band seven brothers of the Gilmore family—a desperate set—and three brothers named Hunt. Louis Gilmore is the leader. The men are all criminals. The first disturbance took place when Alfred Robinson, Republican representative from this county, was delivering a speech in the soldiers' camp. Marion Gilmore began a drunken row, and when admonished by the authorities to desist, a pitched battle ensued. The Gilmores and Hunts retired to a barricade in the hills, brandishing their arms and defied the whole camp to take them. The Sheriff arrived on the scene and, forming a large posse, succeeded, after a hard struggle, in capturing James and Elias Gilmore, Mont Richard, Floyd Hunt and Jake Davidson. The other rioters repelled the sheriff's approach with Winchester rifles. A stormy battle followed, and all engaged dispersed in the wood fighting, and were not heard of again until the sheriff reached a telephone station yesterday morning and sent word that, except George Wilson, who was slightly wounded in his arm, all his men were unhurt. Two of the Gilmores fell in a fight, but neither of them has yet been captured.

A man invented a chair which can be adjusted to 800 different positions. It is intended to make a twelve-year boy almost comfortable in Sunday-school.

"Mother, the schoolmies made fun of me 'cause I couldn't spell 'maid right.'" "How did you spell it, Johnny?" "M-a-i-d-e." "Of course that is wrong." "Yes; but I was spellin' 'old made'—a girl made a long while ago."

SONG FOR THE NATIONAL LEAGUE. From Dublin Castle has been eped. A mandate o'er the land, The People's League must die, 'tis said, 'Tis now proclaimed and banded; The People answer: "No, not so; If they or we must yield, The People 'tis that down must go. The League will hold the field; Proclaim it, and blame it, One tyrant may, 'tis true; To slame it, or tame it, Is more than they can do.

The people's League is great and strong, It spreads from sea to sea; To end the reign of wrong, And set a nation free; And till the glorious task is done, Assail it as they may. No power that lives beneath the sun Shall take its life away. Still daring, unafraid, 'Twill work for Ireland's weal, And quail not on the foe; For paper, lead, or steel. We know that are our strife is o'er With tyrants, thieves and knaves, Our nobles men may suffer sore; Or sleep in prison graves; Such pains as these are Freedom's price— Amen, amen, say we; We'd pay it twice—we'd pay it thrice— For Ireland's liberty. So loudly, and proudly, We tell our foes to day, We scorn them, we spurn them, And dare them to the fray. —T. D. SULLIVAN.

GLADSTONE BACKS PARRELL. LONDON, August 20.—Mr. Gladstone, addressing a deputation of Liberals of Barreham who had presented him with a vase, said the Government had treated Mr. Parrell with gross inequality when they refused to allow an enquiry into the Times' charges against him by a select committee of the House of Commons. The charges against Mr. Parrell, he said, would, if proved, destroy everything he valued, political power and position, but he was going to be tried on vague generalities. Mr. Gladstone declared he would never have Mr. Parrell guilty of personal dishonor. The charge, he said, might last for a year, which would mean pecuniary ruin for Mr. Parrell.

THE AMERICAN IRISH. It is now two years since I first stated my conviction that the roots of the agitations and disturbances which have convulsed Ireland and shaken England were to be found in America. The events of the past twelve months have more than confirmed my original views. But although I had always felt that without Irish-American aid, that material assistance which always forms the real sinews of business as well as of war, the efforts of Mr. Parrell and his party must have been comparatively feeble, I never completely realized the true feeling of the Irish in America until I had myself moved among them, and in the cities and states of the Union appreciated to the full the existence, three thousand miles away, of a people numerous, comfortable and contented, but its crowning virtue is that of nationality beyond all belief, and impelled to action by a deep-seated hostility to the English Government.

ANCIENT BATTLE AXES. The other day, at Knockbarron, Kings county, Ireland, while a number of men were engaged in cutting turf, and when at the depth of fifteen "spiks" they came upon two battle axes of ancient date and workmanship. The largest of the two, weighing one pound and three quarters without a handle, was evidently the property of a knight. Upon the blade delicate carvings are plainly traceable, and that it was wielded with vigor and effect is proven by the fact that both sides are covered with blood stains and the small one, which is quite plain, also saw good service. It weighs one pound and a quarter and is gapped and blood stained as the other.

THE COZY HOME. There are all sorts of adjectives which may be called upon to describe the home; it may be grand, stately, hospitable, beautiful, merry, crowded, ample or elegant, but its crowning virtue is that of coziness. Coziness is a sumptuous and splendid, the home may lack the quality of coziness, and bare to foresters, it may possess it. For coziness does not depend on carpets from Eastern looms or rugs from the land of the Moslem, or easy chairs or pillow lounges, or flowers in the windows or fruits on the table; it is a matter of the things that are done and the people who dwell in the home; it is the give it its tone and atmosphere. The cozy home gathers to itself a thousand fragrant memories, around its hearth a thousand dear associations cluster. As years go on we forget many things, and names once familiar are seldom on our lips, but the cozy home abides in our hearts, and we wish for our children that which our parents gave to us.—Miss Mabel Dodd, in Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE ENGLISH HARVEST. LONDON, Aug. 20.—The returns show an increase of 10 per cent in the acreage of English land under wheat cultivation as compared with last year, while the acreage of oats shows a decrease of 6 per cent. The number of cattle raised as compared with last year shows a decrease of 4 3/8 per cent; of sheep 2.7 per cent decrease, and of swine 4 6/8 per cent increase.

WISE WORDS. There is no worse thief than a bad book. We want not time, but diligence, for great performances. The best things in life cannot be borrowed, they must be all our own. Ill fortune never crushed that man whom good fortune deceived. A brain might as well be stuffed with sawdust as with unused knowledge. It is not what we know that makes education, it is the use we make of it. Age does not depend upon years, but upon what experience has taught us. He who has less than he desires should know that he has more than he deserves.

COMMERCIAL. FLOUR, GRAIN, &c.—The market remains firm, holders being very confident owing to the fact that they cannot replace present stocks except at a material advance upon the present prices. In Manitoba strong bakers, sales have transpired during the week at $4.60, straight rollers at $4.60 to $4.70, and extra at $4.30 to $4.40. There were few sales of fat exporters. All space for next week has been taken at current rates which will probably be 50 to 60c in excess, notwithstanding lower cable reports which look as if a considerable number of cattle had already been purchased in the country.
