THE TRUE WITNESS AND CATHOLIC CHRONICLE.

or £28,000 more than in honor and conscience they were entitled to retain.

والمحافظ المراجع التراجع المحافظ المحافظ المحافظ

The doings of the great Sees, as was but natural, have been still more flagrant. The Bishop of London, indeed, and the Bishop of Winchester, may plead that the new arrangement was not operative on them, and was only to take effect on their immediate successors : but even granting the strict legal force of this plea, what shall we say to the good taste and self-denial which; in times of unexampled Cliurch destitution, has allowed these dignitaries to receive, in the space of the fourteen years from 1836 to 1850-London, £77,259 more than he would have done at £10,000 a-year-and Winchester, £53,166 more than would have been paid him at £7,000? And yet £10,000 and £7,000 respectively, were the sums which both these excellent Fathers in God admitted to be the very utmost that it was good for future Bishops of Ref what a sume or use any name, style, or the in respect of such be taken to give any right to any such Bishop to assume or use any name, style, or title, which he is not now by law entitled to assume or use. have been paid him at £7,000? And yet £10,000 London and of Winchester to receive. But what shall we say of Durham, who confessedly comes under the new arrangement, and had £8,000 a-year assigned him as his Parliamentary income? On what plea is it that in the fourteen years that have since elapsed, this "bland absorber" of fat things has pocketed £191,658 instead of £112,000-i. e. £79,658 more \pounds 191,658 instead of \pounds 112,000—i. e. \pounds 79,658 more than he was entitled to under his bargain? Well might Sir Benjamin Hall remark that these are facts. Freeman's Journal states that it is not at all unlikely called, robbery and peculation.

Hitherto, we have taken only the case of those prelates who have annually received more than their Parliamentary allowance; equally characteristic are the proceedings of those who have received less. These gentlemen, finding that they had been somewhat deceived in their calculations, have absolutely refused to pay what they solemnly engaged to pay when appointed to their sees. Thus the Archbishop of York, the Bishop of St. Asaph, and the Bishop of Ely, at the present moment owe no less a sum than $\pounds 14,225$ to the Ecclesiastical Commission; and the total of the moneys due on this account amount to upwards of £40,000. Charles Surface himself could not have lighter notions of obligation, or a stronger objection to liquidation, than these spiritual non-solvents. "Any one," said Sir Benjamin Hall, " who looked at the return, would be perfectly astounded that any gentleman would suffer themselves to be dunned as they had been by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The result was, that £42,500 was due to the Commissioners, which ought to be now used for the purpose of augmenting small livings, and paying such men as the poor miserable clergymen in Wales."

not to be got over; well might he exclaim that if that Mr. Keogh will, on Friday, move a clause pro-, other people did this, it would be called, and rightly hibiting common informers from suing for penaltiesthe clause in fact on which he was subjected to such shabby treatment on the previous debate.
