

customs and behaviours differ in urban and rural Pakistan, between and within provinces, and from one ethnic group to another. The differences are determined by a variety of factors such as tribal and ethnic backgrounds, levels of education, and socio-economic status. For every guideline we present, there is a myriad of exceptions. Much of what you will learn will come from your personal experience and careful observation.