

2,

Cambridge University Press beside it.

Montreal (McGill as a centre helped so much when it) had a "Canadian Naturalist & Geologist" which was, & is yet - though extinct in last year - a great reference work - then the Canadian Record of Science followed which McGill Professors & men kept going.

Now we have no such quarterly or monthly magazine of true scientific character where McGill men can record their scientific discoveries & work from time to time.

Governmental publications are not available for the general run of University men - unless employed by the Government.

Nevertheless, I try to throw out the suggestion that The Cambridge University Press might find some Montreal backing just as the Oxford University Press had a Toronto backing. I hope to return in Canada about Dec. 15th & with best regards & wishes.

I am yours very sincerely,
H. M. Allen,
