She slips on to the stage very quietly, so quietly that the audience, anticipating herentrance, doesn't realize for some minutes that it is really "Maggie Pepper" values that it is really motice a short, wiry, rather hard-faced little woman, with quick movements and tawny hair, the kind of weather-beaten girl you can find behind the counters of any big department store anywhere. Long hours, hard work, and confinement, have hardened the lines of her face. The day long endurance of the stupidity and bad manners of those who buy dry goods have given her that cold giance and the cynical curve to the lips. She is typical of the deft-fingered, nimble-tongued women who are "salesladdes" in retail stores, so typical that one catches one's breath as tho recognizing an acquaintance on the stage. The art of Miss Stahl is shown as the play progresses, for the hard cynical Maggie Pepper softens as she succeeds, becomes gentle and refined in the higher station, the tawny hair gains the lustre of gold, and all in all she typifies the woman who has worked and won. Miss Stahl and an entirely new supporting company will appear for her farewell performances in this thire-act Charles Klein play at the Princess Theatre next week. Seats go on sale this morning.

"Excuse Me" Coming.

Thirty-two pounds of rice is quite a quantity—bolled; it would be more than any Chinaman could dispose of at a sitting even the he were of a sedentary disposition and remained a long time at the table. But it does not mean so much to the "Excuse Me" company which will come to the Grand next week to present Rupert Hughes' episodical farce, because the members of the company are not obliged to eat it; they throw it. The scenes of "Excuse Me" are laid on board a transcontinental train en route from Chicago to San Francisco and as the train is about to leave its passengers are increased by the inclusion of a young man and young woman whom the others believe to be a bridal couple. Anticipating their company the passengers have prepared a cordial reception for them, and as the train leaves the station the bewildered youth and maiden are assulted with showers of rice and an old shoe or two. Recipes From Other Lands ECIPES from East and West" is a small cookery book containing recipes that sound very strange to our ears, but the combinations will doubtless prove savory when we try them, as they are the best-liked dishes of many countries.

The compiler of this new cook book, Euterpe Craies, has allowed certain English preferences to creep into all the recipes. Yet he or she, I have not decided which, does not hesitate to praise the favorite dishes of every nation.

The Welsh rabbit in this collection is the bona fide article. Before I give you the recipe let me tell you what a Welshman told me. He said, "It is rabbit, not rarebit, if you plaze you, mem, just like you American do be saying Cincinnati chicken when you mean smoked ham."

To make this very proper rabbit grate a quarter of a pound of well-flavored cheese (cheddar, if you have it) or high old cream cheese. Now put the following ingredients into the brazier in the order named: Four tablespoons of thick cream, four mustard spoons of made mustard, one tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon of vinegar, a sprinkling of white pepper and then the cheese. per and then the cheese per and then the cheese.

Have toast ready; it should be toasted on one side only and the untoasted side must be well buttered. When the cheese mixture is smooth and very hot spread it on the buttered side of the toast and eat at once.

Fried Sweetbreads is a popular Swiss dish. They blanch the sweetbreads in boiling water and remove the fibres just as we do. After they are cooled between two heavy boards, to make them firm, they are sliced in thin strips. These are egged and breaded and then sprinkled with Swiss cheese, grated fine, and rolled in more crumbs. The strips are laid in a frying basket and immersed in deep fat and fried until very brown.

Pan-dowdy is really a French way of making a great apple tart with a satisfyingly rich pastry shell. In France apples are as much a treat as oranges are here, and this old-fashioned dish of ours is a favorite there with particular diners.

oranges are here, and this old-lashioned dish of ours is a ravorite there with particular diners.

They pare and slice tart apples until they have enough to fill an earthen cooking dish with a layer two inches thick. A third as much sugar as apples is used. The baking dish is rubbed with butter and the apples and a tableshoon of apples is used. The baking dish is rubbed with butter and the apples and sugar placed in it; over this is grated a whole nutmeg and a tablespoon of butter pricked into bits is added with a cup of cold water. This is covered with a very rich pastry top about half an inch thick. It is baked an hour and kept hot thirty minutes longer. The pastry top will puff up beautifully and the apples beneath will be a fine rich red color.

It should be served from the dish it was baked in with plenty of dessert

EGGS ON TOAST.

The medical staff of the Western Hospital staff be distingted with the provincial legislation governing the manages ment of the institution. The basis of their grievance lies in the system by which proxy votes are used at annual meetings by the directorate, and a large delegation, waiting upon Hon. W. J. Hanna yesterday to the hospital staff, headed by Dean Clouse, urged that the special legislation governing the hours of the hospital be abandoned at the coming legislative session, and that the general hospital act be applied universally. At present a great injustice was being worked, and some men had been known to vote themselves into remunerative positions over the heads of more worthy and experienced officials. Whereas the staff members possessed one vote as the staff members possessed one vote as the staff members possessed one vote as the staff members possessed one vote and used them as he liked.

The history of the hospital was shown to have suffered by the practice and that the time we to have in general hospital was shown to have suffered by the practice.

The following papers will be read: "Pioneers of Peace." by Dr. E. Herbert Adams, and "The Iroquoian Loyalists," by F. O. Loft. The latter paper will take issue with impressions given at the Brock centenary celebration by a chief of the Six Nations Indians, respecting certain concessions or promises alleged by the Six Nations to have been made by treaty.

IRELAND GIVEN WARNING.

LONDON, Jan. 14.—(C. A. P.)—The LONDON, Jan. 14.—(C. A. The provincial courts decide in accordance with the laws of the Church of Rome, and the privy council is the only safeguard for Protestants, which ought to be a warming as to what would happen to Ireland under a Catholic parliament.

The newspaper expresses the hope that the United States and European governments can arrange, a common policy for the establishment of peace in Mexico.
