

'Tis gone ! The fancied scene has fled,
The lawns and forests cease to reign ;
Their short-liv'd verdure now is dead,
And nought but leafless boughs remain.

"Hungry dogs will eat dirty puddings."
This is a true proverb. When a man, is hungry almost any bread and butter answers the purpose ; but generally at any other time we prefer the butter and cheese of Mrs. Trim to that of Mrs. Slush. It will not do, however, to be over nice and particular about the taste of our food, and unnecessary varieties and delicacies. This proverb gives a hint at our morals also. Take heed to your ways, and let not passion and lust govern you, for dirty water, you know, will quench fire, and a good drunk will cool a burning lust. "A man is known by the company he keeps." But, gentlemen, there is no fear of your losing reputation or health by dealing largely in the mud line. If of your business, it will bring clean money ; and money, you know, as I before told you, will do wonders. Old Jathro Gripe was counting over £125 just received for the tent of some of his farm, widow Worthy, poor, lame, and with a sick daughter to take care of, came up and solicited charity, and to my astonishment, as he had a little money on hand, he gave her a coat.
