The "Farm Journal"

Has now been combined with the

"RURAL CANADIAN,"

And the circulation which was formerly about 20,000 copies per annum will soon fall not very far short of that number each month. To those therefore who really desire to dispose of their property, and to whom a speedy sale is an object, there cannot be a better means of finding a purchaser than by advertising through its columns. The rates to owners have been put very low, and the Company make special efforts to dispose of the property of those who pay for the advertising. Parties having desirable and attractive properties for sale will do well to communicate at once with
