CELEBRATION OF JULY 12 HERE IS NOTABLE SUCCESS

Big Parade Viewed by Thousands—Speeches at Barrack Square.

With ideal weather conditions prevailing and plans previously formulated being carried out without a hitch the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the foundation of the Orange Lodge of New Brunswick in this city on Saturday was an outstanding success in every way. The mammoth parade through the city streets, the high tone of the speeches and the elaborate fair held on the Barrack Green all combined to make the day a memorable one.

Immediately following the parade Grand Master Brewer and County Master R. G. Magee addressed the assembled Orangemen and their wives. Mayor Pettit bade the visitors welcome to the city. The speeches of the day were delivered from a platform in front of the grand stand on the Barrack Green. The speakers were A. T. Brewer, grand master, of Fredericton; Rev. A. L. Tedford, of St. John; and Rev. A. D. McLeod, of St. John.

In the evening supper was served on the grounds and hand concerts and numerous games were enjoyed. The proceeds of the day will go to swell the funds of the New Brunswick Protestant Orphanage.

It is estimated that there were about 2,000 in the parade, with many coming from various parts of the province for the celebration.

Mount Purple Lodge, No. 29, Lorneville, was well represented. Five of the older members of the lodge rode in a barouche. They were Alexander McAllister, John Byers, John O. Robinson, William McMasters and William J. Ewart.

Lodges which marched in the parade and were not previously mentioned were:—

Guardian, No. 5, Musquash.

Coronation, No. 121, Lorneville, W. J. McAllister, Master.

William, No. 70, Fairville, W. Golding, Master.

Courtenay Bay, No. 8, East St. John, L. McFarlane, Master.

Dominion, No. 141, North End, G. McQueen, Master.

J. Ferguson is Master of Lorneville lodge.

On their return to the Barrack Green the parade lined up in two long files. The hands were turned to the left and, facing the advancing parade, played until all were assembled on the grounds. The music ceased and Samuel J. Holder, grand marshal, announced that Grand Master H. T. Brewer would then deliver a short address. From the back of his mount Mr. Brewer told the assembly that it was a very proud day in his life to be allowed to lead a body of men from New Brunswick and the city of St. John had done itself proud, he said. He thanked them for their attendance and trusted that when the time came round again for a celebration here the membership of the order would have doubled and that the parade would be twice as large as Saturday's.

County Master R. G. Magee spoke also from his mount. He thanked them all for their attendance and said that the parade was a success. The finger of criticism could not be pointed at the Orange Association that day, for they were all men. He was thankful that there was not one man of the 2,000 in the parade who was not himself.

Welcomes Assembly.

The marshal then introduced His Worship Mayor Pettit. Three cheers and a tiger greeted his appearance as he arose in his barouche.

The Mayor said that there were times when it was unpleasant to suffer from the heat but that Saturday was an exception and that all were pleased to suffer for their cause. He bade the visitors welcome. St. John was pleased to welcome them.

"We know the past, the present we live and the future we look forward to," he said. "The cords of friendship, charity and benevolence now stand for more than they ever had in the past and he hoped would mean still more in the future. The world had changed, he said."

During the great war, he said, no one ever asked a man if he was a Christian or what religion he professed. All fought side by side and many died for the one cause.

Love and loyalty, he said, would save the world; the love of one man for his fellow man, and the loyalty of all to their country and their flag. The old feeling of antagonism had died away. All lived now together in harmony. The motto of the day should be, he said, "equal rights to all, special privilege to none."

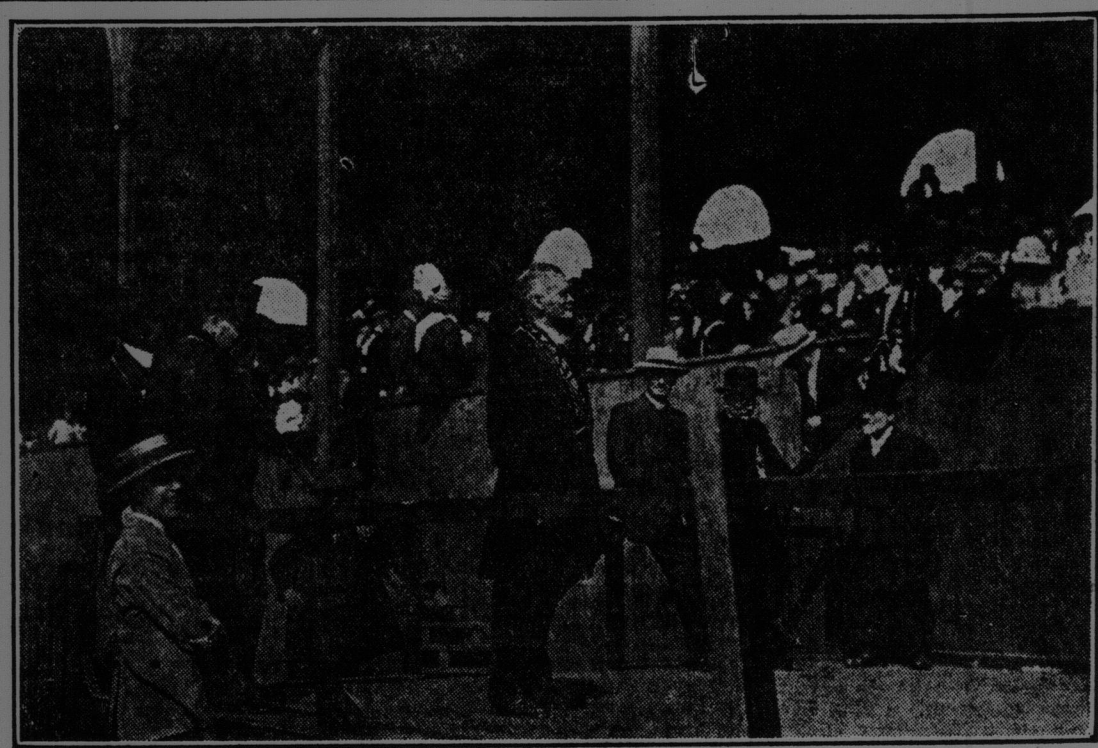

As chief magistrate of the city of St. John and as a member of the Orange order, he said that it was his proud privilege to welcome the visitors as they deserved to be welcomed. He said they were a credit to God and to their country, for they had done more towards the upbuilding of Protestantism than any other order.

Before Grand Stand.

This concluded the programme of speeches for the moment, but later all repaired to the grand stand from the platform the speeches of the day were delivered by Grand Master H. T. Brewer, Rev. A. L. Tedford, and Rev. A. D. McLeod. R. Wills, grand treasurer, was chairman and introduced the speakers.

Grand Master H. T. Brewer, in opening his address, said that the day was a great one for St. John and the Province of New Brunswick. One hundred years ago, he said, the first Orange Lodge was organized in New Brunswick in or near the city of St. John. This was one of the reasons why the order was eager to stage their celebration in St. John.

Grand Master Brewer Speaking at Observance

funds raised for the Protestant orphanage by the Orange Association to see the good they were accomplishing.

Appeals for Funds.

The membership of the order included some of the best men in New Brunswick and those holding the highest positions, said the Grand Master. There were some black sheep in the order, but it was impossible for anyone to point to an Orangeman who had been given a high position and had not turned out true.

While the Protestant orphanage was not directly under the auspices of the O. O. B., he said, the organization was mainly responsible for it. He urged all to be generous in their support of the institution. The Grand Lodge of N. B. was pledged to the extent of $2,000 a year towards its upkeep, he said, adding that the grand treasurer could not pay that pledged sum unless all the members were more liberal in their contributions.

Concluding, he said, "You can count on me and you will have the best in me for the Orange and Protestant cause while I am your grand master."

Rev. A. L. Tedford.

Rev. A. L. Tedford was then introduced. At the outset Mr. Tedford said he was proud to be associated with the others on the platform and to be a member of a cause such as had been manifested in the parade. St. John was to be congratulated in having such a parade through its streets, he said.

"We are Protestants and, as Orangemen, represent the cream of Protestantism," he said. "You Orangemen," he said, "stand loyally for the vital facts of the Christian faith, and should be the choicest of the great body. You should always keep the torch held high. Be faithful to the church, the Book and all that is noble and true and worthy."

"All Orangemen stand for the constitutionality of the laws, and should be on the alert today," he said. For, he said, there were laws on the statute books of New Brunswick and the Dominion of Canada which were not being respected today as they ought to be. All should stand behind the laws created for the good of the land and should insist that the members of Parliament representing the people should also stand for the laws, he said.

Says 'Lack in Life.

"We should grant special privilege to none or claim it for ourselves," he said.

"There was a great lack in this life of today," he said. "Not long ago in Chicago a boy was hanged for murder. He had been a good boy. After he went to school his associations there changed his life altogether. He had become a murderer as a result of the spirit of his daily life. How, he asked, could one expect truth and loyalty in the young when the Bible was not in the schools, if the school was the one place where the Bible was most needed, he said, for it was necessary for those young lives to realize the vital things of life."

How did the Bible stand in the life of the individual? he asked. If home and church were the only places for the Bible was it any wonder, he asked, that the young were beginning to think that their fathers and mothers were old fogies and the church a back number. If the Bible was in the school they would not think this, he said. Education, he said, should be saturated with the Bible.

In concluding he appealed to his audience to think of these things; see to it that the laws were maintained, and that the land was kept free. He appealed to them to be a credit to their association and leaders in the holy life.

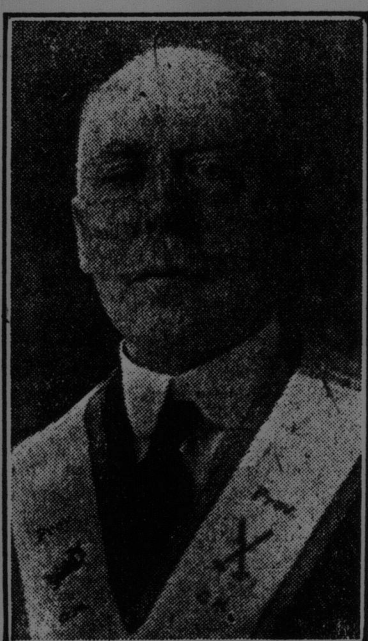

Rev. A. D. McLeod.

Rev. A. D. McLeod in opening, said: "The Orange Lodge is the most sacred institution in the world today outside of the Church of God, and because it is, all Orangemen are hypocrites. Anyone that took God's name in vain, was not only offering an insult to God, but was violating the obligation of his order," said Mr. McLeod.

The Orange order was instituted as a result of the Battle of the Boyne and brought a two-fold blessing to the land, he said. It was a blessing to the Church of Rome because it had given it a liberty which it would never otherwise have enjoyed, and it was a blessing to the Protestant Church because it had given them a liberty which they would not otherwise have enjoyed, Mr. McLeod said.

Many misunderstood the Orange Order, he said. Members were pledged to stand by and help Catholics and also to stand by and help Protestants, he said.

"If everyone in the land was an Orangeman there would be no immorality in the country," he said. "There would be nothing unclean in the land from a moral point of view. Every one would treat the members of the opposite sex as he would wish his sister, daughter or wife to be treated."

treated," he said. This should lift up the Orange Order in the estimation of those who did not understand it, he said.

"You should show to the world that you are standing true to your obligations," he said in conclusion.

The singing of God Save the King concluded this part of the programme and the audience dispersed on the invitation of the several speakers to be taken themselves to the dining room where supper was being served and to the pike where different games were being played.

Garden Party and Fair.

The garden party and fair held on the Barrack Green during the afternoon and evening was a grand success. The South End Boys' Club was converted into a dining room where hundreds of dinners were served by an efficient committee from the L. O. B. A. At the conclusion of the dinner, tables, chairs and dishes were removed and the floor was crowded with dancers. Dancing was also enjoyed in the Armory.

The Carleton Cornet Band played a concert on the grounds during the evening, while the Pipe band and the Drum Band, made up of Fairville and Lorneville men, gave a short concert in one of the buildings.

The dancing arrangements were in charge of Mrs. J. Taylor, and Worshipful Mistress Mrs. A. McKinnon. Mrs. C. Stevens, Mrs. D. Jewett, Mrs. J. McIntyre and Mrs. H. Brown, who were assisted by other members of the L. O. B. A.

Those in charge of the booths were as follows: Ice cream, Mrs. F. Dryden; soft drinks, B. Logan; candy, Mrs. R. Jones; ice cream and cakes, Mrs. A. F. McKinnon; beer, J. Long; hardware, Alex. Chisholm; House-ware, Councillor William Golding; wheel of fortune, W. E. Lawson.

A considerable sum of money was raised for the Grand Lodge Orphanage Fund.

A pocket book containing some keys was found on the grounds and was given to an orphanage by Harry Selton, the secretary.

Among the Oldest.

Among the oldest men in the parade and one who was frequently applauded along the line of march, was James McKinnon, Sr., of German street, 25c. He is 87 years of age and is still active. He was one of the past masters who rode in a barouche. Mr. McKinnon was perhaps not the oldest man in years but the oldest member of the order in the procession. He joined the L. O. B. in 1887, and later on transferred to Johnston L. O. B. No. 28. For the last 67 years he has been a staunch member. It is reported that Mr. McKinnon never misses a meeting of his lodge, and also finds time to attend meetings of other lodges. Although an old man he has a remarkable memory and can memorize the lectures. After the parade on Saturday afternoon Mr. McKinnon spent some time at the garden party and enjoyed conversation with many of his old friends.

Another veteran was James Dunlap, 86 years old, who belongs to Vernon Lodge No. 1. He came from the north of Ireland in 1864 and said he was a member of the order for about 40 years. He is an active man as was also his friend, David McPherson, 78, who came to this country from Scotland in 1873. Mr. McPherson is a former member of the order and was on hand at the Barrack Green for the celebration after the parade.

Christopher Burnside, who now lives at Rotherham, was also at the celebration. He has been in the order 44 years. He belongs to Kinnear Lodge. Simon Graham was another of the veterans on hand. He belongs to Portland Lodge, No. 141, and has been a member of the order for 50 years. Andrew Moore, of Black River, was another member of long standing among those taking part in the celebration.

In Order 50 Years.

Another of the senior members of the order attending the celebration was George A. Price, of Salisbury, 78 years old, but still going strong. He is a member of McLaren L. O. B. No. 86, Salisbury, and has been associated with the order for half a century. He said that he was about to receive the medal given to members of the order who have been in it for 50 years. Never has he missed a July 12 celebration, nor did he intend to miss one as long as he was able to attend, he said.

TAMMANY SPLIT OVER SELECTIONS

Fears Disaster Because of Religious Issue Raised in Convention.

The nomination of John W. Davis and Charles W. Bryan has split Tammany, says the New York-Herald-Tribune. Two of the most important figures in Tammany Hall, Senator James J. Walker, majority leader of the state senate, and Representative John J. O'Connor, who hails from the home district of the late Charles F. Murphy, did not attend the night session of the Democratic convention when the brother of William Jennings Bryan was nominated for vice-president.

Representative O'Connor, who was taken under Mr. Murphy's protecting wing after his graduation from Harvard, protested against any of New York's votes being cast for Davis, shouting on the telephone floor:

"Remember the telephone floor raise!"

Many prominent up-state Democrats also abstained themselves not only from the night session, but the day session at which Mr. Davis was nominated.

Refuse to Run.

So badly split is the party throughout the state that Tammany fears it will have to draft Governor Smith to run for re-election, as it has learned that virtually all who were aiming for the nomination for Governor a few weeks ago have dropped out of the race.

Many Democrats now holding office are said to be unwilling to run for re-election next fall.

The leaders make no attempt to conceal the fact that the religious question will be dominant in the campaign and how to camouflage the Ku-Klux Klan so that it will not react on Governor Smith in the event he runs.

But Tammany is fearful that the local officials and a new state legislature and members of the House of Representatives. The loss of the state senate, now controlled by the Democrats by one vote, is practically conceded by the Democrats. And the next delegation to the House from this state will be Republicans, in the opinion of Democratic leaders.

It was said in authoritative circles that many prominent Democrats in the state now holding public office, whose terms expire December 31, will not run for re-election. One of them said:

"Davis is tied up with Morgan; Bryan is tied up through his brother with the Klan. I certainly will not run for re-election and I know others of a like frame of mind. It is not that I fear to face certain defeat, but I cannot square either the platform or the ticket with my conscience."

Mayor Hylan on his arrival at City Hall was asked what he thought of the nomination. He replied:

"I am still a progressive Democrat and will continue to fight for a government as Abraham Lincoln said-of, for and by the people."

To this state sent the Mayor would add nothing.

It was learned from unimpeachable sources that powerful groups identified with Tammany Hall and other Democratic party up-state forces, which make up the sinew and backbone of the New York state machine, are preparing an open campaign against Davis and Bryan.
