THE LAUGHTER OF LIFE

Copyright 1908 By MARIA ALBANESI

"He is certainly bold," Bertha said, with a faint smile. "But now, dearest, you ought to go to bed. You looked awfully tired when we were at dinner, so while I thought you were ill, and you have so much to excite you, I will come and say 'Goodnight' when you are in bed."

"Dear Uncle Edmund," she said hurriedly. "I hope so much you will be a little better in the morning. I want to have a little chat with you on a most important matter. It is a fact, that I should do with my marriage. I suppose I ought to have been prepared for this, but, indeed, it has taken me by surprise. Drusilla is so young, and somehow I have never thought about what I should do in circumstances like these."

"I'll give it myself, miss," Durning said. "I'll shut up now, miss," said Edna. "I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna. "I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna.

"I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna. "I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna. "I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna.

"I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna. "I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna. "I'll give it to you, miss," said Edna.

"The fact is, I wanted some relief. I have had Aunt Edith on my shoulders since breakfast-time. Connie is with Uncle Edmund, and each has one of her bad headaches, poor dear! So I have been trying to do some of her work—not very successfully. I am afraid. It is so natural for both to be so well and amiable with people even she doesn't like them, but I find it an awful effort. This doesn't explain, however, does it, why I came here?" Drusilla ended, with a laugh.

AMUSEMENTS
NIAGARA IN WINTER AT "STAR."
The Star Theatre in North End has still another scenic picture that is causing most favorable comment. This is a delightful tour round about Niagara Falls in winter time and indeed on the ice that formed at the very brink of the cataract. The comedy numbers include:—How Brown Got Married, and The Hungry Actor. The Two Pigeons is a strong pathetic drama. This show will be put on tonight for the last time; tomorrow the bill changes. Miss Anna Edwards, whose engagement is drawing to a close, is singing as acceptably as ever.

ALL NEW MUSIC AT NICKEL TODAY.
New music by all the performers at the Nickel today. The Merchants are going to sing something that has never before been heard in this city, namely, two of the loveliest duets from Johann Strauss's "The Gypsy Baron," considered the finest of the great waltzes. It is a rare privilege to hear these numbers by high-class artists and music-loving people are appreciating them greatly. Miss Anna Edwards will have a couple more catchy numbers in "The Only You For Me" and "Won't You Be My Baby Boy." The Orchestra has a new bill too. Last evening and yesterday afternoon the Nickel's new pictures were enjoyed. The historical story, "1776—The Hessian Renegades" and "The Engaged Bride"—a stirring Selig melodrama—were features of unusual merit. Tomorrow there will be new pictures, and on Saturday afternoon the children are to be treated to an extraordinary matinee. Watch for particulars of the new talent Monday.

BERNIE'S NEW PROGRAMME TODAY.
Today the Berlins will present their farewell programme, and they have chosen a splendid one. Miss Bernie will sing the waltz song from Romeo and Juliet; and a musical comedy, "Lovers of Music Look for a Treat, for this number has rarely been heard here. Miss Bernie will sing "Marta, from the opera, "Marta, and a surprise award her admirers. The duet will be that catchy number, "The Messenger of the Red, Red Rose, from the musical comedy, "Marcelle. This duet made a big hit when sung here during their previous engagement and many patrons requested its repeat. Ford Ward will introduce a number of new pictures. One that has rarely if ever been seen here is the disappearing bird and bird cage. A live bird in a bird cage and it is gone, and he will introduce many more as starting. The new pictures yesterday were exceptionally good. Justified is a strong dramatic picture, that has caused and will cause endless discussion, in fact more than any picture ever shown here. The question is, was he justified? While when the picture was being shown, it could have been heard to drop, so intense were the audience on the story. There are three other pictures as well. Last time for them today, New ones tomorrow.

SCHUMANN-HEINK
IN ZENITH OF CAREER
If St. John enjoys the privilege of hearing Schumann-Heink on the evening of October 4th the vast audience that will then gather to honor the diva will hear the wonderful contralto in the very height of her career. She is probably the youngest of all the really famous singers of the present age, being only in her forty-seventh year. It will be ten years yet before in the ordinary course of events she will show a diminution of her wonderful powers and even then she will be younger than Nordica or Sembrich, neither of whom are by any means past.

GETTING BETTER BY DEGREES.
Doctor—"So your insomnia is not quite so bad as it used to be?"
Patient—"Not quite, sir; sometimes my feet go to sleep now."
Doctor Transcriber.

A FASHION KILLED.
Women of England in the eighteenth century wore large hats. Samuel Rogers once travelled to Ranelagh in the same coach with a woman who was compelled to sit on a stool on the floor of the coach on account of the "inconvenient height of her headpiece. Hannah Moore, who was all for simplicity in costume, writes in her diary that she appeared one night on the stage with a mass of vegetables on his head and a carrot suspended for each side to the shame and confusion of many fair members of his audience.

DONT TRUST THEM.

He—"You never know when to trust these summer girls. Why, I was engaged to four at the same time last year and each one threw me over at the close of the season."

JUST AS GOOD.

He—"There's one thing I will say, you make quite as well as your mother used to make it."

GET THEM ANYWAY.

AIR OF MARS IS ALMOST DEVOID OF MOISTURE

Astronomer Leaves Decision as to Possibility of Life There to the Biologists
SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 15.—People on the Planet Mars, if any live there, breathe an atmosphere which is almost destitute of moisture. This is the conclusion of Director W. W. Campbell of the Lick Observatory who returned recently from making observations from the summit of Mount Whitney, the highest point in the United States. "Water vapor on Mars does not exist in sufficient quantities to be detected by the spectroscopic method," says Professor Campbell. "This does not prove that life does not or cannot exist on Mars. The question of life under these conditions is a biologist's problem rather than an astronomer's."

COPPER ON A LONELY BEAT STARTLED BY A TINY "PEET"

Finds a Bunch of Downy Chicks, Now He's in an Awful Fix, Sleep and Poultry Do Not Mix.
NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—Unto the ears of Thomas Knowles, a copper on his beat, there came a water rat sound, most strange on Water street, and it sounded like the good old farm where Thomas used to roam. "It was the cry of chickens small, a long way from their home."
Now, Thomas was a kindly man, as most policemen go, so he started to investigate, and found that down below in the cellar of a vacant house, beneath some coal and sticks, were three bagful of misery and also full of chicks.
He took them to the station house that fronts on Madison street—you have to hustle here a bit to get in all the feet—and there this very kindly man let loose these chickens small, but some of them could scarcely move and others not at all.
But there were those who did find fight, who ran with many a peep and hid beneath those sacred beds whereon the coppers sleep. Tonight was spent in catching them and also cursing Knowles, a fate which, often comes upon them. But really there was some excuse, though chickens are so sweet you do not care to go to bed and find one at your feet.

FEDDLY—"She is all the world to me!"

"What would you advise me to do?"

"Percy—"See a little more of the world, old chap!"
