COUNTY COURT CHAMBERS.

COUNTY COURT CHAMBERS. In county court chambers yesterday in C. B. Lockhart and H. C. Smith v. Benjamin Dean, W. W. Allan, K. C., applied for the discharge of the defendant from arrest. The grounds were that the cause of action was the same as that of a summons issued by the plaintiff and A. C. Smith in his lifetime against the prisoner defendant and Elizabeth J. Dean, his wife

Mr. Allan contended that the cause of action being the same, the defendant could only be arrested upon a judge's order or the filing of an affidavit that he was immediately about to leave the province.

J. B. M. Baxter, contra, contended that the identity or otherwise of the causes of action must be judged by the writs, and could not be determined at this stage upon affidavits; also that the plaintiffs were at liberty, if they pleased, to commence an action by summons and, having abandoned it, to commence another by capias. The special affidavit was only required when arrest was sought in an action aiready commenced. His honor refused the application to set aside the arrest."

The November number of the North American Review illustrates in a striking way the success with which the editor of that prince of periodicals adjusts it to the prevailing interests of the time. In "A Decade of American Finance," the veteran financier, Jay Cooke, takes the public into his confidence in relation to some monetary happenings of the ten years between 1863 and 1873. W. D. Howells is at his best in his characterization. of Emile Zola, his genius and work. J. A. Hobson, a well-known English economist, discusses the probability and the practicability of our recourse to "Compulsory Arbitration in Industrial Disputes." F. W. Reitz, formerly secretary of state in the Transval, asks resarding the present situation in South Africa. "Is it Peace." and he answers the question in the negative, contending that no terms of peace can be binding which were signed by men with, so to speak, the knife at their throats. Karl Blind contributes some "Personal Recollections of Virchow." A very attractive feature of the number is a fine poem by Edith Wharton entitled "Vesalius in Zante," which is a distinct addition to American poetry of the highest class. Wolf von Schierbrand reviews with admiration "Ambassador White's Work" in the United States embassy in Berlin. Sanuel J. Barrows examines the laws passed during 1901 by the various legislatures in the country, with a view to ascertain the "Tendencies of American Legislation." R. Leoncavallo, the distinguished Italian composer, tells "How I (Wrote 'Pagliacci.") John Barrett gives the results of his observations, during a recent protracted visit, to various parts of China, as to "America's Position and Opportunity in China." Chief Rabbi M. Gaster writes of "Roumania and the Jews," showing the cruel and inhuman treatment to which his people are subjected in that country. Dr. W. E. Griffis traces the "Development of Political Parties in Japan." Lady Henry Somerset narrates "The Story of Our Farm," pointing with gratification to the success of the work done at the industrial zie D Small, for Bangor; Greta, for Moncton, N. B.

Mr. Deinstadt would like to know where the new missions mentioned in the second section, as an extension of the Mill Street Mission, would be established. Rev. J. C. B. Appel stated that four places have ben mentioned, namely: Haymarket Square, Lower Cove, Mill street and Indiantown. Fairville and Carleton would later be taken in. Mr. Deinstadt stated that as the matter was not definite, the section had better be referred back to the com-tion considerable work was being done by St. Mary's church and also in Glad Tidings hall. Work in the latter was not suspended during the summer. He moved the reference of the section. Rev. Dr. Raymond thought an attempt to pledge the alliance's endorsement before the details of the sche were known would be a mistake While wishing Mr. Whitney God speed, yet he was interested in another mission at Haymarket square. Rev. H. H. Roach stated that the Glad Tidings Mission was not touching the great mass of boys which the new mission would reach. It was not the intention to impede any other mission. Rev. A. H. Foster said the root of the whole matter lay in the fact that many of the men present were rather cloudy as to whether the Mill street mission would accomplish much. He did not know much about it or about its boys. Several from his own church had been taken there. He did not know whether more would be done for main question is: Do we think the principle of the mission is a good one? Rev. Mr. Deinstadt said he was not antagonistic to Mr. Whitney. FOR A NEW TRIAL.

Mr. Mullin Still Fighting for Frank Higgins's Life-Appeals to Supreme

D. Mullin, K. C., left for Fredericton last night. Today before the full bench of the supreme court he will apply for leave to appeal in the case of the crown against Frank Higgins, now under sentence to die Dec. 18. His plea will be based on the claims that certain members of the jury were unduly prejudiced against the prisoner and had so declared themselves, even after they had been sworn in, and that evidence, notably that of the accomplice, Goodspeed, was irregularly received. He will also enter objection to certain sections of Judge Landry's charge to the jury. Should the bench decide to grant him the required leave, the case will be argued in extent at a later date during the present sitting, when a decision allowing or forbidding a new trial will be handed down. Should their honors however, decide today that Mr. Mullin's contentions are not strong enough to allow them to consider an application for a new trial, the case will end right there, and between Frank Higgins and the hangman's loose will stand only the possibility that the mercy of the crown may inervene. While in legal circles in this city Mr.

Mullin's gallant fight for his client receives strong and merited commendation, it is the general opinion that the decision today will go against him.

MULOCK BANQUETTED.

TORONTO, Nov. 3.-Mulock was banquetted tonight by the Mulock Club. The most interesting portion of his speech : eferred to the compulsory arbitration act introduced in the last session of parliament, and which will come to again at the next session. Taking the recent coal strike as his text, he showed that five months would have been saved in that case had such an act been in force in Penn-sylvania. He thought much of the criticism already passed upon the act was ill-considered. He pointed out that under the present voluntary act the department has been able to intervene successfully in several disputes, and he particularly referred to the coal strikes on Vancouver Island and in Nova Scotia.

They are dying like rabbits and there seems to be nothing to check the death rate. The march of civilization has increased the death rate from Nome north. Two years ago the devastation began, and it has continued since. When the natives began to wear civilized man's clothing and drink white man's whiskey, then begon their decline."
