FALL SHOES

The changing atmosphere will soon demand the putting aside of light Summer Shoes and demand something more in keeping with the season. Our Fall Stock of Men's and Women's New Shoes were early on the shelves this season, and that they are popular with our customers is evidenced by the big trade done lately. The most popular styles for both men and women is a narrow toe with a very low heel for men and a fairly high one for women—but then we have all shapes and patterns.

CANADIAN STORY IMPERIAL'S FEATURE

Splendid Adaptation of Novel "Isobel"

Rae Eleanor Ball again captivates her hearers — Bumper bill greatly enjoyed.

With Rae Eleanor Ball and Arthur Huskins as the central figures in its programme of refined entertainment the Imperial Theatre was packed again yesterday afternoon and evening. The high standard set by the big house never seems to lower. The present bill is more than ordinarly good. Doubtless the chief attraction is James Oliver Curwood's Canadian Northwest story of the snowy wastes entitled "In Defiance of the Law," which is merely a filmed-version title for the well-known novel "Isobel." Star players enact this strenuous tale of the north and it takes the best part of a whole hour to produce it upon the curtain. During that time watchers are spellbound with the intensity of the story—a narrative of an outlaw husband, whose wife pluckily saves his life; bad Indians, a faithful squaw, the Northwest Mounted Police and a pretty little baby girl. There is much human interest in the photoplay and those who enjoy consistent fiction will like Mr. Curwood's popular novel.

Rae Eleanor Ball added more triumphs to her long list. She played Dvorack's superb Humoresk delightfully; captivated her hearers with Hubay's "Zephyrs" and in the line of popular music rendered a number of Scotch airs in medley form. It was a genuine treat, one that everybody enjoyed for Miss Ball's artistic work cannot but appeal to even the most untrained taste. Arthur Huskins, too, was much enjoyed. He sang "Come Sing to Me," a charming little number, and responded to his usual encores. The orchestra kept things moving with its splendid playing.

In addition to the three-part film feature, the Imperial showed a fine Essanay picture in which Francis A. Bushman played the leading role. This was entitled "The Countess," and dealt with Russian Nihilists, a newspaper man and a lady of high rank and culture. Mr. Bushman was ably supported by Miss Beverely Bayne and the production was unusually good. There were war pictures also—in the Hearst-Selig Weekly—and two Lubin comedies.

Tomorrow the motion pictures taken of the local Knights of Pythias on their Decoration Day will be shown. A private showing of these pictures proved them to be splendid, clear, bright and actual portraits of the men participating.

CITY COUNCIL TO DEAL WITH SCHEME TO BUY WATER AND POWER PLANT

Montreal, Sept. 14.—The Board of Control's report in favor of the city purchasing the Montreal Water and Power Company's business at an approximate amount of $7,700,000, which was definitely decided upon by a majority of the members of the board this afternoon, will be considered by the City Council at a meeting on Thursday.

ANNAPOLIS PATRIOTIC FUND.

"Annapolis Royal and the whole county of Annapolis has adopted a plan of raising a patriotic fund that might be copied elsewhere," said George E. Corbett, who is at the Royal.

"The incorporated towns as well as the county have levied an assessment to meet their contribution of $15,000. Everybody under this plan has an interest in the fund and pays in proportion to his wealth. Nobody is required to go around collecting."

Mr. Corbett said crops in the valley were seldom better.

CITY COUNCIL AWARDS TWO CONTRACTS

Tower Street work to cost $867 while Queen Square paving will cost $2,517.32.

Commissioner Russell was given authority to have an overdraft of $3,500 made for the ferry department, by the city commissioners at the meeting yesterday afternoon. The commissioners pointed out that there were bills amounting to $1,700 at present due. The marine insurance premium had to be paid at once. Commissioner Russell said that so far this year the receipts had been $4,699 less than for the same period last year, which was caused by the decrease in the winterport business last season.

The contract for the sidewalk and retaining wall in Tower street was awarded to Peter Ferris at $867. The contract for the paving of Queen Square went to Moses, French & Simon at $2,517.32.

The commissioner of water and sewerage was authorized to purchase several water meters.

Those present at the meeting were Mayor Frink, Commissioners Potts, Wigmore and Russell with the common clerk.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The following departmental accounts as certified by the comptroller were ordered paid:

Treasury Department—$113.71.
Public Safety—$644,96.
Public Works—$3,570.0.
Water and Sewerage—$3,872.24.
Harbors, Ferries and Public Lands—$1,644.41.

The commissioner of water and sewerage was given authority to purchase three 3 inch meters, three 2 inch meters, six 1 inch meters, three 1½ inch meters and six ¾ inch meters at an estimated cost of $1,000 to be charged to water maintenance.

The Atlantic Refineries Ltd., in a letter asked that the $20,000 of their $100,000 deposit with the city as a guarantee to complete the plant be returned to them. It was pointed out that on account of the present financial stringency the money would be an accommodation to the company. The plant has been about completed and the spirit of the agreement with the city had been carried out. The mayor was given power to act in the matter.

The matter of warehouse accommodations for the shipment of potatoes to England was discussed. J. B. Daggett, secretary of agriculture, asked for the use of a warehouse. The commissioner of harbors, ferries and public lands will act.

M. W. Jones sent in a bill of $11.10 for damage done to his house by blasting operations in Victoria Square. The commissioner of public works will take the matter into consideration.

John Mullin sent in a communication concerning his dismissal from the employ of the city. The letter was referred to Commissioner Potts.

Tenders.

The tenders for the sidewalk and retaining wall in Tower street were as follows:

Peter Ferris—$867.
A. R. C. Clarke—$973.
Moses & French—$930.

The tenders for the roadway in Queen Square were as follows:

Moses, French & Simon—$2,517.32.
A. R. C. Clarke & Son—$4,487.49.
E. W. Green—$4,868.68.
Tobias, Corey & Stevens—$2,800.30.
Ernest Ryerse—$6,019.00.

Commissioner Russell and Mayor Frink then spoke of the conditions at Partridge Island where the artillery company is in training and pointed to the need of apparatus for exercising. The commissioner and the mayor will visit the island soon.

CLASSY VAUDEVILLE AT LYRIC THEATRE

Two Acts Either of Which is Worth the Price of Admission — Excellent Pictures.

The Lyric Theatre management provided another excellent programme for its patrons yesterday, and in every way held up the high name of this comfortable house. The vaudeville acts at the Lyric this week deserve special mention and should be seen by all. The Musical Cragg in pipe organ music and sleigh bell selections provides a fine act that is well worth hearing, while Bordreau and May with song and dance entertain in a manner to please both young and old. The little Irish girl and the big Frenchman, as they are known, will hold the boards the usual length of time, and during their stay are sure to make many friends with the St. John theatre going public.

The Weekly News, always a feature worth the price of admission, this week, shows how Salem was destroyed by fire. This picture is really remarkable.

Chapter one of "Shorty Escapes Matrimony" is a first class film and rounds out a very pleasant performance.

POLICE INQUIRY CONTINUED; MUCH EVIDENCE SUBMITTED

Hon. J. D. Hazen, Senator Thorne and Others Express Their Views of Force—Chief Clarke on Stand Tells of First Quarrel With Commissioner McLellan.

At the police enquiry yesterday Chief Clark, who was on the stand during a part of the day, presented his annual reports, showing that for many years he had been making requests for more men and improvements in order to increase the efficiency of the force. Senator Thorne said the administration of the police force had been rotten during the last two years, and declared Commissioner McLellan's investigations had not been in the interests of the citizens or the force.

Senator Thorne, called, knew the chief a long time, had seen him on several occasions about thefts in his firm. The chief had handled the cases very satisfactorily, so far as his firm was concerned.

To Mr. Baxter he said damage had been done to his store during the riot. He thought the police authority should have taken precautions against a strike; he saw only one policeman at Market Square that night.

Q Do you think the supervision of the police force is efficient?

A I think the supervision of the police force has been rotten during the last two years. I do not think the Chief has been allowed to have sufficient control of his men.

Witness said the Chief had been interered with, and this affected discipline and efficiency.

To Mr. Mullin—Witness said he was on the scene of the riot at 8 o'clock He thought twenty resolute men could have prevented the disturbance at that time.

Mr. Baxter—What do you call interence with the Chief?

Senator Thorne—Well, I judge from the investigations held the non-appointment of officers, and various actions of the common council that the Chief did not get that support and assistance that would enable him to satisfactorily organize and control the force.

Worse Now Than Formerly.

Mr. Thorne said sitizens generally felt the police protection in the last two years was worse than four or five years ago. If in the commissioner's place, he would not let the city suffer because he did not think the Chief efficient, but would appoint more men.

Senator Thorne said he did not believe the Chief of Police should be appointed by the common council. He would not allow his feelings to the Chief to interfere with his attitude to the force.

Mr. Mullin—Would you, because of personal feeling toward the Chief, refuse to pay the men the 25 cents extra granted by the council?

A. No. I certainly think the men should have received their money.

To Com. McLellan—Senator Thorne said investigations conducted by the Commissioner had not been in the interest of police or citizens. You could not get efficiency or discipline if the heads of a department were quarrelling.

Prior to two years ago he thought the police force was fairly effective; he did not say it had been free from criticism. His opinion of the Chief was that he had discharged his duties fairly well. He would not admit that the police administration had been non-efficient two years ago. He thought the police force should have been increased, as there had been more work to do in the last few years.

Found Chief Efficient

Hon. J. D. Hazen was called.

To Mr. Mullin he said he was attorney-general of this province from April 1908 to October 1911. During that period he frequently came in contact with Chief Clark in connection with the administration of criminal justice. So far as his experience and observation went he thought the chief discharged his duties in a very efficient manner.

Mr. Baxter—You are speaking of the handling of major cases?

Mr. Hazen—Some of them could not be classed as major cases.

Mr. Baxter—You are not speaking of the ordinary duties of the police in the city, patrolling the beats, etc.?

Mr. Hazen said he was speaking of his dealings with the chief in connection with the administration of criminal justice. While attorney-general he handled most of the criminal cases himself. He had felt very satisfied with the manner in which the chief had conducted the prosecutions in the cases he had to do with. The chief frequently consulted him about other matters.

George McKean had once reported to the chief that lumber was taken from his scows. Steps were taken which put a stop to these thefts.

L. R. Ross, terminal agent of the I. C. R., had frequently to see the chief about various cases. He thought the chief did everything possible to help the railway out, though not always successful in tracking thefts.

George A. Henderson was police clerk before and ever since Chief Clark was appointed. He had personal knowledge of the administration of law. He had no fault to find with that part of the police work, but did not know about the internal government and discipline of the force. He thought the chief was efficient and attentive to his duties.

To Mr. Baxter, witness said he only referred to matters coming before the police court; he did not know anything about matters that had not been attended to. He thought the chief had to be on duty long hours, and had to do a lot of work.

Allan Gundry, jeweller, told of having stolen watches returned through efforts of the police.

Wm. O. Stapleton, manager of the five and ten cent store, had reported cases of trouble and theft to chief and police. The chief always tried to help them out. More recently his store had had no trouble.

Chief Clark

Chief Clark sworn. To Mr. Baxter he said he was appointed chief in 1890. Very soon after his appointment he inaugurated a new system, after studying police management in Boston. The changes made were to keep a record of criminals, to photograph them, and to keep reports of criminal cases and have reports kept by the sergeants. He also inaugurated the plan of getting reports from second-hand dealers, reports on holes in streets, issuing of building permits, etc. When he was appointed, squads of three or four men went out with the sergeants on different beats. He put on one night patrol and one day patrol sergeant in the southern division. For a long time there was no night sargeant in the North End. These patrol sergeants reported where they met the police officers and anything going on.

In 1890 he had forty-six officers and men including himself. Now he had forty-four men, including himself. Conditions had changed; now with permanent street work going on he had to put men to handle traffic in some places all the time, moving picture houses made additional work.

When he took charge he only found one Marshall manual. Later he asked the Safety Board to authorize the printing of a manual; he compiled a manual, and it went through several sub-committees, but he was never authorized to print it. Recorder Jack thought the manual was a good one. In his annual reports he had referred to the need of a manual.

In 1892-93-94, the chief recommended the appointment of seven more officers. Later he asked for eight more men. He asked for a contingent fund, but never got one.

To carry on a case he often had to pay out money from his own funds, and take the risk of getting it back.

In 1898 the chief recommended a police telegraph system and patrol wagon, and arranging so that day men should work 10 hours and night men 7 hours. He wanted a reserve on duty at the station, because with the coming of telephones people wanting the police called up central station instead of going out to look for a patrolman.

Wanted More Men.

The chief read extracts from his annual reports, for many years, making and reiterating recommendations for the improvements of the force, practically all of which were ignored by the Common Council. In 1910 the chief reported 10 or 12 more men were needed to give efficient police protection.

Mr. Mullin—What is the item of $1,776.12 in the police account for last year?

A.—That was paid I think to the detective who was brought here to try to bribe me. The total bill was for $2,327, but some $600 was paid by the insurance people.

Q.—Did the detective catch any fire bugs?

A.—No. But the police caught six.

Q.—Did this detective try to bribe you?

A.—Yes. If he had gone farther I would have arrested him.

Continuing, witness said after Com. McLellan was elected, the commissioner came to his office. Their relations then were friendly. They talked matters over. He spoke of the needs of the department, especially of a manual, showing the commissioner a manual he brought from London, and submitting to him the manual he had compiled. The commissioner said he would supply manuals. The chief told the commissioner his manual being compiled years before should be revised. After some time the chief went to the commissioner and got his M.S.S. back.

The First Quarrel.

The chief said he voted for McLellan and was friendly with him for a while. The first time he noticed that anything was wrong was one day in the station when the commissioner said in his abrupt way:

"Do you think you're head of the police department?" I said 'Yes.' The commissioner said: 'Well, you are not; I'm the head.' I told him he should consult the Recorder. He said there were plenty of lawyers besides the Recorder. I said 'Well, see the judges, there is no need of us quarrelling over it. You are head of the safety department, which has to do with the police but I think I'm head of the police."

Mr. Mullin—What caused this outburst?

A.—I don't know. We were just talking over police matters. It was before I had had any friction with the commissioner.

Some time later the chief was asked to swear in special policemen at the sugar refinery. The commissioner made a noise about this, saying "The d—— C.P.R. thought they owned the city. I pointed out it was the sugar refinery wanted special police, and he said they were all one.

Again, the commissioner came into the station and asked if a man named Savage was arrested last night? I looked at the book and said 'yes, for drunkenness.' The commissioner said "The d—— policemen don't know when a man is drunk. I got the commissioner into my office and told him he was not treating me or himself right; there would be no discipline if he came in swearing at the men. The commissioner said he was not excited, but I told him he was.

At the request of Mr. Mullin, the chief read a memorandum he had made of this occurrence. The commissioner said Savage had been taken out of his house and was not drunk. Savage pleaded guilty and was fined $8.

In May, 1913, Chief Clark called up Commissioner McLellan on the telephone and asked how they could arrange for holidays for the men, being four men short. The commissioner said: "You are running the show; don't ask me,' and rang off.

Chief Clark told of other times when he tried to get advice and assistance from the commissioner, without success. Then he had no further talk with him until the council passed a resolution reducing the force to one man, and he took out an injunction.

The enquiry was then adjourned till Thursday at 10 a. m.

Morning Session.

At the morning session C. E. Farrand, formerly manager of the Brayley Drug Co., referring to the pipe stealing case, said that the chief called at the warehouse with a bunch of keys and a screw-driver. "This was before I had missed any goods. The chief showed me pipes which he had in his office and I told him we never had any pipes like that in our store."

To Mr. Baxter the witness said a Mr. Pyne had come to his place and told his book-keeper that Ira Perry had been stealing from the warehouse. "I testified before the chief of police that there was nothing stolen from the warehouse."

To Mr. Baxter the witness said that he had sent for Kavanagh because he had told Pyne. The witness said: "I had later met Com. McLellan and the commissioner said I must be a friend of Perry's, but that he could have Perry get fourteen years."

J. R. Haycock, John McAvity, Eustace Barnes, Patrick Mooney, J. M. Roche, Henry A. Brennan, claims agent of the C. P. R., and G. Heber Arnold testified to having had dealings with the chief and in general finding him courteous and attentive to duty.

Horace A. Porter, barrister and secretary of the Exhibition Association, said he had to go to the chief every year in regard to special men and found the staff provided was very satisfactory. Special mention was made of their efficiency in 1912.

Fred R. Taylor, of Weldon & McLean, solicitors for the C. P. R., said he had frequently come in contact with the chief of police and always found him courteous and attentive to his duties.

To Mr. Baxter, he said he was solicitor for the Bank of Montreal and King street merchants and was surprised to learn of King street being without protection.

HOME RULE ON STATUTE BOOKS THIS WEEK

Announcement by Asquith yesterday--Bill to make it inoperative for year — Welsh church Bill also on books.

London, Sept. 14, 3.55 p.m.—Both the home rule bill and the Welsh disestablishment bill are to be placed on the statute books this week. Announcing this fact in the House of Commons this afternoon, Premier Asquith said that tomorrow he would introduce a bill providing that no steps be taken to put either act into operation for a year in any event.

Imparting to the House of Lords today the government's intentions in regard to the home rule bill, the Marquis of Crewe somewhat simplified the statement made in the House of Commons by Premier Asquith. He pledged the government to introduce a bill to amend the home rule bill, and promised that it should be dealt with before the home rule measure became operative.

The amending bill would not necessarily exclude Ulster, or any part of Ulster, he said, as the whole temper of Ireland had changed greatly for the better since the outbreak of the war.

EIGHTH EPISODE WINS THE APPROVAL OF ALL

Million Dollar Mystery Retains Deep Interest of All—Unique Theatre Has Fine Bill.

The eighth episode of the Million Dollar Mystery intitled "The Wiles of a Woman," was again the big feature at the Unique Theatre yesterday afternoon and evening when the hundrds who are eagerly following this marvellous photo-play sought and gained admittance, and went away fully satisfied. All are now looking forward to next week when the ninth episode will be shown.

The eighth episode deals with a dangerous adventure in which the Countess is engaged, and to say that the several audiences were deeply intrested would be putting it mildly. Norton's scape from the sewer is one which all should see.

"The Ten of Spades," a Majestic film, together with the Reliance drama "A Lesson in Bridge," add much to the programme, while the Keyston comedy "Between Showers" provided the merriment in the real old-fashioned style.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Mary J. Moore.

The death took place at an early hour yesterday morning of Mrs. Mary J., widow of William J. Moore, at her late residence, East St. John, in the 75th year of her age. The funeral will take place this afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Albert E. Ford, of East St. John.
