"The Backward Atlantic Provinces." Sounds interesting? If you would like to learn more about this provocative topic (and perhaps air an opinion or two of your own) drop in at the Student Centre (All Purpose Room) at 1 o'clock of a Thursday within the next two weeks or so. A study group is in progress. Representatives of the faculties of Forestry, Geology and Economics will provide a well-rounded coverage of the aspects involved. We welcome you!

On Thursday, November 1, Mr. J. A. Parks, agricultural economist of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council delivered a paper. Mr. Parks dealt with the general overall picture of agriculture in the Atlantic Region. He also discussed future expectations and outlined some constructive proposals. A spirited discussion followed Mr. Parks' talk.

THE ROLLING STONE

This past week-end, thirty-one geologists went on an excursion to the Bathurst-Newcastle area. All were extremely impressed by the magnitude of the mining operations and many challenges in interpretation were presented by the complex Geology. The opportunity to go underground was offered many of the enthusiasts and the tragedy at Springhill did not in the least deter the students from this memorable event. The thrill of having 350 feet of rock overhead and being in the midst of millions of tons of high-grade ore was exhilarating. This event, however, was clouded over by the fact that the four young ladies accompanying the group were not allowed underground. Evidently, there is a tradition that having a woman underground prognosticates bad luck. You are all likely aware that meeting a woman at night on the way to the pit augers ill-fortune, so they say, this being a well-known English superstition of around 1875. However, I can see no reason why aspiring Geology students, although female, should not receive the same privilege as offered the male. Nevertheless, a most beneficial and enjoyable week-end was had by all. Many hand specimens were brought back to the University from the Bay Vista Club in Bathurst, the headquarters for operations, if one judged by the number of us there.

We've got to hand it to those Foresters! They did a splendid job in maintaining the integrity of their patron, St. Paul Bunyan, in spite of an almost successful attempt on the part of the Geologists early Friday morning. We can only admire most of their endeavours which are always most thorough and successful.

Next week-end brings the maritime University Geology Convention at Mt. A. The Bailey Society will be represented and who

THE BULLDOZER

We, the writers of the Engineering column, have noticed the large number of letters directed to the editor and staff of The Brunswickan. We too have been the recipients of a rather disparaging letter and will alter the column this week, so as to present it to you in full.

November 2, 1956

Messrs. Red 'N Black, Authors, The Bulldozer, University of New Brunswick, Fredericton, N.B.

Dear Sirs:

I write in the hope that, as the editor of The Soho What, I may advance a criticism which will result in the improvement of your famous campus publication. I refer, of course, to the manner in which the engineering column has used prejudice to warp the minds of U.N.B.'s students.

Prejudice, may we point out, should be confined to the news features of the paper. We beg you to be mindful of the inspired way in which the Brunswickan has adhered to this principle until the appearance of your "black journalism".

Yours somewhat sincerely,
Law D. Dawe,
Editor, The Soho What,
Crumpet Tech, Thistlewaddle, England

Dear Mr. Law D. Dawe,

We, the authors of the engineering column, appreciate your interest in our journalistic ethics. In defending our action, may we point out that, while your grandmother committed valorous acts for Britain's cause, including the hat-pin murder of two Arab water boys, your grandfather was known to be slightly anti-imperialistic in his sober moments.

Having thus justified our position and exposed your unworthiness to join the crowd of selected lunatics who edit this publication, we wish to advise you that further communication from you will be met by a deep, dark, dismal—void.

Yours ever so sincerely,
Red 'N Black

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 19, 20 and 21:

Fall Production, Drama Society, Memorial Hall.

Reminder:

Fall Formal, Nov. 30.

Remarks:

By appearances, this will be another quiet week; however, it should be noted here that several organizations have neglected to inform the Co-ordinator of their proposed meeting or activity during the past several weeks. We hope they will be more co-operative in the future. Due to a slip-up last week, the Brunswickan staff were able to include only a portion of the Campus Calendar; this difficulty has been cleared up now and the Calendar should appear regularly on Fridays.
