MISS SUSAN B. ANTHONY.

The Great Reformer and Brilliant Champion of Her Sex.

A wonderful old lady is that great reformer and brilliant champion of her sex, Miss Susan Brownell Anthony. Born at South Adams, Mass., in 1820, this girl of Quaker parentage was early taught the importance of courage, self reliance and of thinking and acting for oneself. Indeed courage has always been her strongest characteristic. Miss Anthony's early education was obtained from a school supported by her father for his own children and those of the neighborhood and later at a Quaker boarding school in West Philadelphia. At about this time her family moved to Battenville, N. Y. She began teaching at the early age of fifteen, though this was unnecessary at the time. When she was about eighteen years old, however, her father, a cotton manufacturer of considerable wealth, lost every penny of his fortune. The teaching had to be continued, and it was twelve years later before Miss Anthony gave up this line of work for the one which has made her so well known all over the world. She was teaching away from home when the first woman's rights convention was called at Rochester. Later she became interested in its cause and has ever since been its most ardent supporter. In 1852 she aided in organizing the first State Woman's Temperance society (New York). She became active during the civil war in anti-slavery and woman's rights work and was secretary of the Woman's National Loyal League. During the early discussions on the woman's property right bills Miss Anthony personally circulated hundreds of petitions, both civil and political, traveling through the state in all sorts of weather and in all sorts of vehicles—sometimes even tramping on foot—and often meeting with most discouraging, even insulting, rebuffs. In 1868 she founded a women's rights paper, the Revolution, and managed it for several years.

There is scarcely a state in the Union where Miss Anthony has not worked, and she has lectured widely both in America and England. Since 1869 she has been granted a hearing before committees of every congress. During the thirty-four years of the existence of the National Woman Suffrage association she has held high offices and is now president of that organization. Her contributions to leading magazines have been many. With Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Mrs. Matilda Joselyn Gage she is joint author of a three volume work, "The History of Woman Suffrage."

A Touch of Yellow.

A touch of the golden hue will do more for the decoration of a room than any other color in it. Put the richest blues, reds and greens in a color scheme, and they will not hold together or look quite right until the necessary yellow is there to keep them in place, so to speak. Yellow is the brace of all the colors. It is the tuning up color. The general vivifying that a hopelessly "dead" looking room most often wants is just a piece of shining brass or a gilt frame or ornament here and there.

Soft, aesthetic shades and low tones of oriental softness are all right and beautiful, but they cannot stand alone in the thoroughly well furnished apartment. It must have a touch of gold here or there to make it of real value to the eye.

If a room is furnished throughout with the dull shades of brass and drab everywhere, a pair of brass andirons will lighten up the color scheme. They will not only do this, but will seem to add a greater value to the colors themselves. A gold embroidered scarf draped upon the mantel or over a high backed chair might add the necessary touch of golden lightness to a room that needed it.

Even a bow of bright yellow ribbon will transform a room in appearance which otherwise would go unnoticed for lack of just such a useful color brace to make it right.

Children's Terrors. A celebrated English physician who has made the diseases of children his specialty says that it is a very common thing for children to see visions owing to the instability of their nervous system. Often there come before their eyes apparitions which they think are real. These objects may differ at dif-

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman.

But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquillizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1893. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my back. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing and another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

ferent times or they may always appear to the child in the same form. To these vivid impressions of which the child himself is only conscious are attributed the unreasonable fears and terrors which occur in some children and which parents find it so difficult to account for. The nervous child is filled with fears, and the ridicule to which he is subjected when he displays these causes him to endure his miseries in silence oftentimes, and thus he is deprived of the comfort and compassion to which he is justly entitled. Not only should his fears and troubles be regarded with a tender and enlightened sympathy in order to give him comfort, but to banish the baneful reaction which they occasion in his brain. The temptation for the weary nurse or mother called out of sleep in the middle of the night by the little dreamer is to speak sharply and crossly and to bring the culprit to a sense of actuality by shaking him soundly. It is very wrong to do so and is an added shock to the nervous system.

Women as Embalmers.

Not so very long ago the licensed woman embalmer was so rare as to excite remark. Now there are enough women regularly established in the calling to warrant their having an independent association and registered headquarters. The woman embalmer, like the trained nurse, goes on many out of town missions and must be ready to answer a summons whether it comes at midday or midnight. So the association's headquarters, where her telephone and verbal calls can be received and answered properly, offer an advantage. Several women embalmers have their signs out for general business, but the majority work in co-operation with undertakers, just as the trained nurses depend on physicians to send them cases. The high class undertakers say that women embalmers are now essential to their business.

A Woman's Foresight.

While a number of women were discussing masculinity and masculine habits a clever little creature remarked: "I can't bear a man who carries a purse and keeps his change in it. I had a beau once and was ready to accept the proposal he was about ready to make. On a street car one day I saw him take out a miserable little purse and search its interior for a dime. He had some trouble finding it, while the conductor waited impatiently. 'It set me to thinking, and in my mind I could see him opening that little purse and searching for a dime when I, as his wife, should ask for funds for a new dress or a hat.'

The Publishers' Error.

"The publishers told Arthur that he would have to rewrite a good portion of his book before they could bring it out."

"Humph! I should think they would have had him rewrite some of the bad portions."

Musical Diagnosis.

"What an awful voice that man's got!" said the manager, who was listening to the throaty tenor.

"Call that a voice?" said his friend. "It's a disease!"

A Repeaked Astrologer.

Lilly, the astrologer and alchemist, could not see for himself sufficiently far into that future which he professed to be able to scan so clearly for others to guard him against making a fool of himself by marrying. He caught a vixen, "of the temper of Mars," to use his own words, and the fact that she brought him $500 as dowry did not count for much in the way of compensation seeing that "she and her relations cost him $1,000."

The Grandeur of Him!

An impeccably dressed gentleman the other day, when walking along Piccadilly, felt a movement in his pocket, and clapping his hand thereto seized the wrist of the thief. He drew forth the erring member, and looking at it with supreme disgust, he released it, saying with a grimace of disgust, "For heaven's sake, my good man, go and wash your hands before you put them in a gentleman's pocket again."—London Tatler.

Duty in Dress.

To suppose that even brains and fame will excuse carelessness of dress is not only to insult our friends; it is rather an evidence of egotism, says the Washington Times. If a man extends an invitation to a woman to accompany him to the theater or any other place of entertainment, he expects her to appear at her best. He wants to feel proud of her himself and to have others share that pride. He would very likely feel insulted if she failed to look as well as he expected. The more prosperous a woman looks the more she will be sought after, and the little accessories of the toilet are the telling adjuncts of a woman's tout ensemble.

The Woman of the World.

The woman of the world in the truest sense is one of the best fitted for successful homemaking. Tact, insight, dignity, grace and ready sympathy characterize her dealings with others, and nowhere are these qualifications of more value than in the home. Women's clubs are woman's opportunity for much that is ennobling to herself and to others. Like many other useful things, the privilege may be abused and degenerate into mere dissipation, but such cases are exceptional.

Sewing on Buttons.

When sewing on buttons with holes through them, lay a pin over the button, so that the thread with which you are sewing will take in the pin. After passing the thread through the button as often as necessary pull out the pin and wind the thread around between the button and the cloth. This will form a neck for the button, making it at once easier to fasten and stronger.

Arranging a Salad.

In arranging a salad consider that it must be a pleasing table decoration as well as a palatable dish. An artistic and delicious salad, like a good soup, may redeem an otherwise hopeless dinner, as it pleases all the senses and leaves an impression that counteracts the effect of badly cooked meats and vegetables.

Bath Temperatures.

Remember that a cold bath is one from 50 to 70 degrees F; tepid, from 85 to 92 degrees; warm, from 92 to 98 degrees; hot, 98 to 100 degrees. In the case of vapor baths the warmest degree under ordinary circumstances is about 130 degrees.

Chairs should be chosen for comfort as well as for appearance.

The fragile ones that look as if they would collapse if a person sat on them should find no place in the home.

If washtubs are inverted on the cellar floor and a quart or two of water poured over the bottom, they will not shrink or dry out.

A bride should either thank personally or write notes to all people who send wedding presents.

A well furnished house is one that unites beauty and comfort.

She Could Spell Too.

While waiting in the reception room for their hostess some visitors were entertained by that lady's four-year-old daughter. One of the callers remarked to the other:

"She is not very p-r-e-t-t-y."

"No," instantly replied the child; "I am not very p-r-e-t-t-y, but I am very s-m-a-r-t."
