

Thus cometh to each mortal soul,
An autumn day in life,
When short the stage to winter's goal,—
Silent the fife of strife.
Bear up, O weary heart, bear up!
Bid sorrow's surges cease,
For nigh the hour when thou mayst sup
The Yule-tide feast of peace.