"Peaceful and ordered progress in industrial and social affairs will be made by State action. That action will be progressive. The workers might well begin by making the State instead of the bottomless purse of the capitalist, the arbiter of their industrial demands; and follow up this by the State enforcement of a legal minimum wage which will ensure the means of a reasonable standard of life."

Such an article as this is a welcome contrast with some other appeals which are being made to the labor party, and make one wish that we might not have to wait till the month of October for the promised appearance of the Daily Citizen as the official organ of the less extreme section of the workers. I write these lines in one of our open spaces, where the children are enjoying themselves to the full on the beautifully green grass, which has so quickly and generously responded to the recent welcome showers, and the thought involuntarily comes—these are the ones who, next to the mothers, first and most sharply feel the pinch of the privation, which might so easily have been avoided.

On Tuesday the Independent Labor Party at its annual conference dealt with its policy in the House of Commons. Mr. F. W. Jowett, M.P., moved, "that in order to establish the authority of the elected representatives of the people in Parliament as against the overwhelming political power of members of the government, who treat nearly every important division in the House of Commons as if it involved a possible resignation of the Ministry and a consequential dissolution of Parliament, the Labor group in the House of Commons be requested to ignore all such threatened consequences and declare their intention to vote steadfastly on the merits of the questions brought before them." The fate of the motion hung in the balance until Mr. Snowden, M.P., whose article is referred to above, turned the scale, and it was defeated by 195 votes to 73 in favor of an amendment which declared that the Labor party must continue to regard all the possible consequences and effects, immediate and otherwise, of any line of action before adopting it. Another resolution, however, condemning the present system of placing each Department of State under the control of an individual member of the government, and suggesting instead standing committees elected from all parties, was carried almost unanimously.

The speech of Senator Smith in presenting his report as the result of his enquiry into the loss of the Titanic was doubtless received with considerable interest by readers of The Guide, as it was by all of us here. While the wording in places will probably confirm the unfavorable view held by some as to the way he conducted the enquiry, it is generally agreed here that he has "touched the spot" in nearly every one of his conclusions, and it is already a matter of speculation as to how far the findings of the British Court of Enquiry will coincide with those of Senator Smith.

Parliament is up for the Whitsuntide holiday, but resumes work on Tuesday next. W.W.

SOIL STILL RICH AFTER 80 YEARS

Farnham Farm, in Wellington county, owned by Mr. Henry Arkell, after eighty summer's constant cultivation possesses soil as rich as, if not richer than, when it was first broken in 1831. The following methods of farming, rigidly adhered to by Mr. Arkell, may be cited as reasons for this happy situation:

The owner's interests are evenly divided between crop production and live stock raising.

Everything grown on the farm in the way of feed is fed on the farm.

A system of crop rotation prevents any needless waste of soil fertility.

The application of barnyard manure after specially absorbent crops replenishes the soil with plant food.

Hay area is pastured two years and crops cut from it two years, then plowed under.

Rape seed is sown with oat crop, providing pasture for cattle and sheep for more than three months after harvest.

The general conduct of the farm is closely in accord with mixed farming principles, which protect any soil from depletion.

where to the end that we may accept the poet's advice.

"Sow seed—let not the idle reap. Find wealth—let no impostor heap. Weave cloth—let not the idle wear. Forge arms, in your defence to bear."

How are we to secure our freedom? There is only one way. We must know before we can do. Individuals produce wealth. Governments distribute wealth by means of crooked laws, secret deals, and unjust regulations. We must think for ourselves, what laws tend towards justice and what towards injustice in wealth distribution. The masses are the source of political power. Their votes have enriched a few scheming politicians. Is it not time for them to wake up and use the ballot to secure justice for themselves and their children? Under an unjust distribution of wealth, the many are slaves to all intents and purposes and the few are the masters. Is it not time for the Britons to wake up and highly resolve to hold their own?
