UNITED PRESBYTERY RE-ELECTS OFFICERS

Large Attendance at First Meeting Since Conference—Rev. F. E. Barrett Re-named

WINDSOR, Sept. 17.—The Windsor Presbytery of the United Church met on Wednesday in St. John's church, Windsor. Through the meeting was called short notice to consider the comprehensive and vital program of the "Life and Work of the Church" presented by the General Council, there was a large attendance. The only minister in active pastoral work who did not respond to the Roll Call was Dr. Hemmon, of Wolfville, who was absent from home. The session was held at Windsor to suit the convenience of the conference.

As it was the first session after Conference the Presbytery was re-organized by the unanimous re-election of Rev. F. E. Barrett, chairman; Rev. A. A. McLeod, secretary; A. H. Patterson, treasurer.

Considerable routine business was transacted and necessary committees appointed. Rev. W. S. Living, of Avonlea, was appointed superintendent of the Maintenance and Extension Fund. Rev. R. J. Wilson, D.D., of Toronto, and Rev. H. B. Clarke of St. Andrew's church, Halifax, officially represented the General Committee of Direction. The objectives as set out by the General Council are the re-consecration of spiritual life, re-visualization of the work of the church, the re-dedication of the entire membership to God and the extension of the Kingdom of God by definite evangelistic effort.

The main business before the Presbytery was the General Council's program of Life and Work of the church, which involves provisions for the raising of the Maintenance and Extension Fund. Rev. R. J. Wilson, D.D., of Toronto, and Rev. H. B. Clarke of St. Andrew's church, Halifax, officially represented the General Committee of Direction. The objectives as set out by the General Council are the re-consecration of spiritual life, re-visualization of the work of the church, the re-dedication of the entire membership to God and the extension of the Kingdom of God by definite evangelistic effort.

A strong committee on Social Service was appointed and the following resolution was unanimously adopted: "This Windsor Presbytery of the United Church of Canada declares its unequivocal adherence to the maintenance of the Prohibitory laws on the duties of our Province and Dominion, and respectfully appeals to the Government of Nova Scotia to enforce the Prohibitory laws."

A BRAVE SOLDIER
French, as spoken by Frenchmen, is a harmonious language, but when mastered by foreigners becomes an abomination. Germans in particular seldom master the intricacies of French pronunciation, and the inhabitants of the conquered provinces of Alsace and Lorraine have in the past generations had their vocal chords so tuned to the Teutonic materials that they have cultivated an accent more harsh, if possible, than that of the Germans themselves.

This it was that made Marceau a pariah in the Foreign Legion. He seemed a fine sort of fellow personally, and was an efficient and willing soldier, but every time he opened his mouth his accent extraction advertised itself and would make everyone move away and mutter "Boche". How could a man with such an accent be anything but a German?

We knew his story: Born in Mulhouse under Prussian rule, he was technically a German subject, but, refusing to serve his time in the Kaiser's army, he had escaped into France just before reaching the military age and had enlisted in the Foreign Legion so as to earn French citizenship.

His real name was Schneider, but the French authorities had changed his civil name and given him identification papers under the name of Marceau that might not be shot as a deserter by the Germans if he should happen to be taken prisoner.

This record was very much to his credit if he was really a French sympathizer, but how could one tell? Too

Fashion Fancies

The various lovely brown and bronze tones are ideal for Fall wear. Bronze is never more lovely than when the medium is soft lace, the material which makes the dance frock pictured here. The model is cut on soft, semi-fitted lines. Insets of net and satin to match make a pleasing variation in the lower skirt section, and these are outlined in amber-colored brilliants.

A bronze lace scarf, caught at the back of the neck with a buckle of amber brilliants, add charm to the costume.

many Prussian spies had wormed their way into the French army in just this way. We distrusted him and could not help showing it. He realized and did not resent it, but offered to convince us by actions. Here again he was in hard luck. Our officers would not send a man of whom they were not sure on any confidential mission.

The day we attacked Carrency, Marceau was left behind. During the Touraille offensive, at his own request, he was detached to assist the musicians and other non-combatants, who as stretcher-bearers, follow up the attacking line.

All that day Marceau worked like a Trojan. Our casualties were heavy and each individual wounded man seemed heavy to the stretcher-men who had to bear them several miles to the emergency dressing stations. Marceau soon wore out his partner, and even after sundown, continued alone his work of mercy, bringing the wounded men in on his back.

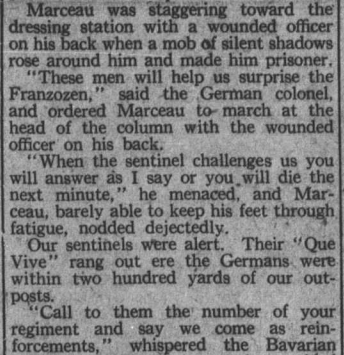

In the meantime the regiment, having carried the German front line trench by assault, continued to advance, pushing the retreating enemy before them. Our seventy-fives did their duty nobly and we advanced with practically no loss behind the curtain of fire that they maintained between us and the enemy.

The result was that by nightfall we had penetrated some ten miles into the enemy country and had lost contact with the rest of the line.

Our officers had a council. Should we retire before re-establishing contact with the regiments to the right and left of us, or should we await them where we were? The second course was decided upon.

We picked out a good strategic position and, surrounded by sentinels, tried to snatch a little sleep without taking off our equipment or relaxing our grip on our rifles. We did not know that to the left of us the Zouaves had met with a rebuff. Our artillery had failed to destroy the German block-houses in front of them and as a result their bayonets had been powerless against the concrete protected boche machine guns.

GOOD RECIPES

Tomato Soup, with Meat
Place one knuckle of veal, one can of tomatoes, or equal amount of fresh tomatoes, one onion, two carrots, one turnip, a sprig of parsley, some celery trimmings, half-teaspoon of black pepper berries, one bay leaf, one teaspoon of salt, and one gallon of cold water in a large kettle. Bring to a boil quickly, skin, being careful not to remove any of the vegetables or pepper berries. Put on back of stove and simmer for four hours, remove veal and cut meat into small squares, and strain the soup in the kettle through a fine sieve. Place on stove again, add half-cup washed rice, one cup cooked peas, and meat cut into squares and simmer until rice is soft. This is sufficient for twelve persons.

Hot Potato Salad
Boil six large potatoes until done but not soft, and peel, then dice them. Fry six slices of bacon after dicing until they are a delicate brown, then add a level teaspoon of flour, rubbing it in smoothly, a teaspoon of French mustard, a teaspoon of sugar and a half teaspoon of salt, a salt-spoon of red pepper and a quarter cup of vinegar. Stir these ingredients until they are smooth, then add three potatoes and a tablespoon each of chopped chives, sour and sweet gherkin pickles and parsley. Stir all together until they are hot and well mixed, then serve in a hot covered dish.

Liver and Bacon
Three-quarters pound sliced liver, one-quarter pound thinly sliced bacon, flour, salt and pepper. The liver should be cut in slices about three-eighths of an inch thick. Pour over boiling water to more than cover and let stand five minutes. Lift the slices with a fork that each may be well covered with water. Drain. Season, flavor with salt and pepper and dip each slice in flour. Fry bacon in a hot frying pan and put on a hot platter. Put in a hot place. Fry liver in the bacon fat, first on one side and then on the other. The liver should be well cooked but remain soft and tender. Serve on the platter with the bacon.
