Our Repre- sentative.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—I read with interest today your editorial on the appointment of a representative for this Dominion at the coming conference to be held in London.

I am entirely in accord with your views. The occasion is a unique one in the world's history, the issues are momentous; the fate of nations must be decided, and the foundation of the whole civil fabric rebuilt on foundations equitable, just and permanent.

The nations that will have a right to sit at that solemn Board will send the worthiest and finest of their citizens, and this Dominion, mindful of her right as well as her duty, should make such a selection as would meet the approval of every honest and patriotic Newfoundlander.

I am not "on the fence" nor on either side of it. I have no interest in politics at present, and I regard men in the Opposition and in the Government as citizens only. I have nothing against Dr. Lloyd on personal or political grounds. He came to his position by fortuitous circumstances, and he should be commended for doing his duty to the best of his ability. I have no brief for Sir Robert Bond, but in view of the present occasion—one indeed of inestimable gravity—and writing with many years of experience in men and events, I would select Sir Robert Bond. I have other men in my mind of splendid ability, irreproch-able character, and holding high office by merit; but I think that even these would cede their right to Sir Robert.

There are several grounds on which we should consider the fitness of Sir R. Bond, but it is not necessary to place them. There is hardly any citizen so ignorant of his career as a public man as not to know that he is best qualified to represent us, and I hope there is no one so base who, in the pressure of the needs of the hour, through any personal motive would refuse to acknowledge his fitness and gain say the wisdom and justice of his selection, should it be made.

I am writing this in the saddest hour of my life. My kindred have fallen in the battlefield—they fought to the moment of victory and died, and the relatives with whom they parted through an invincible, heroic sense of duty, have been left the legacy of an unquenchable sorrow, soothed only by an enviable pride in their heroism of the glorious dead.

But remembrance of the price paid for our freedom need not kill in us sentiments of further loyalty to our country. We, and those who shall come after us will share in the benefits of their death; and we would be unworthy the gifts of the future should we all remain callous under present exigencies.

Neither my voice nor pen can now count for much; but influential, honest, patriotic citizens will take up the matter of our representation at the approaching conference, and make Newfoundland honored in her choice.
I cast my vote unhesitatingly in favor of Sir R. Bond, and I believe that if public meetings were called throughout the island, a vast majority would pronounce in his favor.

Believe me, sincerely yours, OUTPORT CLERGYMAN.

Prohibition.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir:—Now that the menacing war-cloud has lifted, we are free once more to devote our attention to the troubles nearer home that await solution. I take this opportunity, therefore, of calling before the consideration of the community a condition of things that cries for amelioration. I allude to the present intolerable situation with regard to Prohibition.

Under the existing law a very large number of the free citizens of this Dominion are placed under a grave, undeserved and perfectly avoidable hardship. By this law they are, in effect, forbidden, on pain of heavy penalties, to drink certain things to which they have been accustomed all their lives, which afford them harmless pleasure, and which have been generally used by the human race as far back as history runs. Their homes —the sacred citadels of citizenship—are invaded and searched upon the slightest suspicion of their harbouring any of these forbidden liquors. They are liable to be called to account for the contents of their cellars, even though there be no suggestion that the liquors are intended for any but their own personal use. If any one falls ill and needs a stimulant, an elaborate and lengthy form (which adds greatly to the expense) must be gone through to obtain it. It is on record that in the interval patients have died.

A condition of things which reminds one forcibly of the Blue Laws of Connecticut, which penalized the offender who kissed his wife on Sunday, or of the Cromwellian edict forbidding mince pies and Christmas puddings.
These instances are comic, and, for the matter of that, there is no lack of comedy in the workings of the Prohibition law here, but the interfering and tyrannical spirit in which they were conceived was a serious matter and I fear it is the same spirit which shows itself in our local Blue Law.

And what benefits has the law to show in return for all these hardships? Are the habitual drunkards, at whom it was aimed, reformed? I do not need to tell anyone conversant with present-day conditions that their last state is worse than the first. Is the community healthier? Not if one may judge by the ravages of the last epidemic—which, by the way, would have been far more deadly if the prohibitory law had been more effective.

Old men and women dead from the lack of stimulants to keep their driven mad by Florida Water and its kindred poisons, can be regarded as trophies, the enactment has been a lamentable failure.
