LONDON, July 14.—The House of Commons has agreed to an address of congratulation to be presented to the Queen upon the recent marriage of the Duke of York and Princess May.

From Steamer to Prison.

QUEENSTOWN, July 14.—Dennis O'Leary, a man who intended to sail on the American steamer Indiana, from this port for Philadelphia, was arrested yesterday, just before the departure of the steamer, on a charge of murder. He is accused of having killed James Lonergan in Tipperary.

Fighting in Siam.

LONDON, July 14.—A dispatch from Bangkok, capital of Siam, states that twenty Siamese were killed and fourteen wounded yesterday during the exchange of fire between the forces of the French and the Siamese. The French gunboats, which forced the passage of the boats in the face of orders from the Siamese Government prohibiting their entry into the river.

A brief telegram from General Boyd at Bangkok, states that after an hour's engagement the French vessels had passed the forts below Bangkok. It is not the present intention of the department to send a special dispatch on the subject of the war, but if the war assumes formidable proportions, the Siamese may make it very unpleasant for foreign residents, including the few Americans there, as the hostilities are apt to be characterized on one side by the summary proceedings known to semi-barbarous nations. If such a state of affairs obtains, the United States ship Concord, now on her way to China, will probably be sent to the scene.

Anniversary of the Bastille's Destruction.

PARIS, July 14.—To-day is the 14th anniversary of the fall of the Bastille. The anniversary of this event in French history is usually celebrated with much rejoicing. To-day, however, the fête in Paris has been marked with tameness, and the usual celebrations are conspicuous through their absence. This is due entirely to the feeling engendered by the recent riots. The municipal council has taken no part in the observance of the anniversary. The anarchists took advantage of the day to post placards about the city, and the police were kept busy destroying these flaming threats of what they intended to do to-day.

The anarchists took advantage of the day to post placards about the city, and the police were kept busy destroying these flaming threats of what they intended to do to-day. It is customary on the anniversary of the fall of the Bastille for the President to extend clemency to certain prisoners, in accordance with this custom President Carnot pardoned 300 convicts.

Paris Started by an Immense Scandal.

PARIS, July 14.—The facts have just come out regarding one of the greatest private scandals Paris has known in recent years. It appears that M. Buloz, editor and managing-director of the Reveu des Deux Mondes, has absconded, after paying out to blackmailers in the last three or four years the enormous sum of 16,000,000 francs. Buloz left his desk three weeks ago for a holiday in the suburbs. Letters from him were received daily at his office and home. A few days ago a note which he had made for 100,000 francs came into possession of his wife. She made inquiries and finally went to his holiday address. Her husband had not been there. An investigation was pushed and it brought out amazing disclosures. It was found that the editor of the greatest literary periodical in France had been regularly blackmailing for a long time by demands on him, based on his relations with three women contributors to his publication. He was held, not by the women themselves, but by certain of their masculine friends who were high in the society in which Buloz and his wife had long been in the foremost place. They led the literary and artistic society of the French capital. They presided over what is known as the Académie des Salons of Paris. It was at a most brilliant social event in his own house that the last exorbitant demands were made upon Buloz. The last sum which was drawn from him and which caused his flight is said to be no less than 600,000 francs. The amount of the shortage to the Reveu des Deux Mondes, of which M. Buloz was president, is not known, but it is certain that not all of the money was taken from his treasury. The vast sum was placed in the hands of the blackmailers. It is known where Buloz has gone to, and where the blackmailers have also disappeared.

Comment on the Proceedings Against President Van Horne.

TORONTO, July 15.—Local Superintendent Leonard was shown the Chicago dispatch telling of the issue of a warrant for President Van Horne, of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He said he did not think the matter a very serious one. He admitted there had been serious friction between the Canadian Pacific and the Great Northern Railway, but only in respect to freight rates. The present indictment was probably an attempt by the Great Northern to "get even."

Mr. Callaway, district passenger agent, said it was pretty well understood among railway men that "Jim Hill" of the Northern had been only waiting a chance to strike a blow at the Canadian Pacific. Another prominent railway man said the trouble, no doubt, originated in the cutting of freight rates in the States.

MONTREAL, July 14.—President Van Horne returned to Montreal tonight from his summer home at St. Andrew's N.B. Mr. Van Horne, when told that a warrant had been issued by the United States grand jury at Tacoma on a charge of violating the Interstate Commerce Act, ridiculed the latter State Commerce Act, ridiculed the act, and he will be ready whenever called on to produce the books of the company in support of his assertion. Mr. Van Horne said the warrant would not stop him going to the States.

"TAKE HIM AWAY!"

Sensational Scene in a Brooklyn Court.

A Murderer Struggles With the Officers of the Law and Falls in a Fit.

New York, July 14.—Sentenced to die in the electric chair, and maddened with rage when told by Justice Cullen the sentence was merited, Edward Geoghan made a desperate fight for liberty in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Brooklyn, yesterday morning.

Geoghan, who killed his wife Ellen at No. 72 Wyckoff street, Brooklyn, on Sept. 8, 1892, was brought before Justice Cullen to have the sentence of death passed upon him. The Court of Appeals only a short time ago affirmed the conviction.

When the prisoner was taken into the court room yesterday he was closely guarded by two jail keepers and two uniformed policemen. After District Attorney Ridgway had moved that the sentence of death be passed Geoghan was told to stand up.

Geoghan's lawyer, J. Gratton McMahon, told the court his client had no legal reason to urge why sentence should not be passed, and then Justice Cullen told Geoghan he must die for his crime in the week of Sept. 4 by electricity, in the manner prescribed by law. Geoghan was about to be led away when he suddenly turned and, pointing his finger at Justice Cullen, shouted:

"Hold on, judge. See here, I want to know what I am convicted for. Why should I be killed? I don't see why I should be put to death. I don't know nothing about it. I don't remember killing any body. I don't see what you tried me for."

"Watch him," whispered one of the officers, and they all drew closer to the condemned man.

"Geoghan," said Justice Cullen, "you killed the person you should have protected the person. You should have protected your wife. You were properly convicted and should pay the penalty for your crime."

"I always did protect my wife," cried Geoghan. "I never did anything to her that I know of, sir."

"Take him away," said Justice Cullen. Handcuffs had been put on Geoghan's wrists, and he began to fight for his freedom. He struck out right and left with his fists. The chain dangling from his arms. Four men could not hold him. He shouted that he was innocent, tried to tear away his manacles and was about to grab a chair to use as a weapon when he was dropped to the floor in an epileptic fit.

Geoghan was so weak when he revived that he was easily taken to jail.

REBELLIOUS REDCOATS.
An Entire Company of the Fourteenth Battalion Dismissed for Insubordination.

KINGSTON, July 14.—On the 1st of July the Fourteenth Battalion of Kingston visited Montreal, journeying there by special train, each of the several companies being allotted a car.

When about to return home it was found that the train provided would not allow so much room as on the down train, and one company was required to be left behind to distribute themselves among the other men in the several coaches. This the men, in a body, refused to do, and the train left without them. The rebellious company arrived home the following day.

To-day Col. Smith issued an order dismissing the men for insubordination, and ordering them to return their outfits to headquarters forthwith.

THE PORT STANLEY RAILROAD

Is Again Left Upon the City's Hands.

The Overdue Rent is Not Paid—A Visit to Detroit—The M. C. R. May Continue to Run the Road.

The Port Stanley Railway Board held a private meeting in the city solicitor's office at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. What they did they declined to make public, but, of course, the reporters found out something about it. As a result of their deliberations the mayor and Ald. Charles Taylor left for Detroit last night. The rent has not been paid by the syndicate, and the road is again on the city's hands, while the $25,000 that was put up as a guarantee of fulfillment becomes the property of the city.

"Has the rent been paid at all?" was asked, point blank, of a member.

"No, it has not," replied that individual. "And what's more, it won't be," continued he, with a far away look in his eyes. "I cannot say anything," he added, when asked about the mayor and Ald. Taylor's visit to Detroit.

Of course the mayor and Ald. Taylor have gone to Detroit to confer with President Ledyard, of the M. C. R., and to endeavor to come to some arrangement whereby the latter company will continue to run the L. and P. S. R. for the city, pending some definite settlement, or at least during the summer season.

The M. C. R. will continue running to-day at all events, and it is not thought likely that whatever transpires the road will be tied up at all.
