A story is going the rounds at the expense of one of the best known men of this place. We shall not mention nis name, but you know him. Of rather determined mien, he has of late been showing signs of mental agitation. He wears a full beard, but a few days since his wife, much to her alarm, found him sharpening a razor. She thought his mind was unhinged and went into hysterics. Explanations followed, and it was found that life had for him still some charm. He intended to use the razor upon painful corns. A friend who had used Putnam's Corn Extractor with success advised its use, with the following results: Man quite wife ditto, razor sent away. Use Putnam's Corn Extractor.

He has been wonderfully cured ing called the merry gathering to order, and read letters of regret from Messrs. Buchanan, agent at Windsor; J. P. Dunn, agent, Chatham; John Benedict and Peter McDonald, London, at their inability to attend. The toast list was commenced as usual, the "National Anthem" being sung in response to "The Queen."

"The Guest of the Evening" was then honored in a manner that could leave no lurking doubt about his universal popularity. The glasses were filled to the brim and heartily quaffed, after which "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung, and cheering indulged in that made the walls shake. The next was an address read by Mr. Rose, as follows:

"To Mr. Williams, assistant superintendent. C. P. R.: "We, the employes of the C. P. R., on the eve of the departure of Mrs. Williams and family from this city, have concluded that we cannot allow such an occasion to pass without testifying our regards in some manner. From the first day I took charge of the division west of Toronto, some nine years ago, it has been my idea that the division contained some of the best men of any railway in America. (Applause.) The majority of the men then on the road still hold their positions; some have been removed by death, while a few have been dismissed. I do not believe there is a man on the division but who is loyal to me-(applause)and when they are loyal to me they are loyal to the interests of the com pany and to themselves. I have to thank you most heartily for this service you have presented to my dear wife, which shall always bring to me fond remembrances of residence in London and my pleasant relations with the employes of the road. This is the proudest moment of my life. I feel too full for further utterance.' He sat down amid another burst of applause, and on his face was pictured the sentiment he failed to convey in words. 'The Greatest Railroad on Earth," was the next toast, and as Mr. Houston rose to reply he was warmly greeted. He said Mr. Williams had struck the keynote when he referred to the men on the line as the best in the world. The occasion was to him like a large, happy family gathering, but after it was all over they might feel like a flock of chickens cut loose from their mother. He paid a fitting tribute to Mr. Williams as an able railroad man, and wished him success in his new home. Robt. Scott, roadmaster, Wood-stock, had come to London to look after Roadmaster Murphy. He congratulated Mr. Williams, and expressed his regret at losing so kind a boss. Roadmaster Murphy—I am not much of a speech-maker, but I am glad to present to do honor to the worthy lady to whom this present has been made. I have known Mr. Williams for a great many years, and have always found him honorable to all the men in his jurisdiction. Mr. Williams had during his railway career had two objects—one, the interest of the company, and the other the interests of the men. Every car in his division has had to carry its full capacity, and every engine has had to draw its full tonnage, even to the snow plow.

Thomas Leonard followed in a hubrous speech, in which he said if Mr. Murphy had not been under Mr.

ing between he and Roadmaster Rose, and which afterwards turned up all right.

Mr. Rose, Woodstock, said that in the change he felt like a man who had lost his right hand, and spoke in flattering terms of Mr. Williams. If a man was faithful to his obligations to the company he had nothing to fear from the superintendent.

COULDN'T STAND TUPPER. St. John, N. He says he cannot follow Tupper any longer, and, attracted by Laurier's magni-ficent exhibition of statesmanship, has publicly thrown in his lot with the Liberal party. His election in the county is sure. This is the opinion of one of the leading men in Gloucester. Everywhere throughout the Province the Liberal candidates are well received.

MR. LAURIER'S MOVEMENTS. Huntingdon, Que., May 28.-Mr. Laurier spent a most satisfactory day with the electors of Beauharnois and Huntingdon. The train arrived in Valleyfield in the morning, and the leader was accompanied by Hon. J. E. Robidoux and Mr. G. W. Stephens, M.P.P. Mr. Laurier paid a visit to the cotton mills, where he was received and shown through by Mr. Louis Simpson, the general manager, and at noon, accompanied by Messrs.

Brisson, M.P.P., A. T. Brossedt, Q.C., Wilfrid Mercier and about 30 others, he drove the ten miles to St. Louis de Gonzague, where a public meeting was called in the interests of Mr. Tarte. The village was gay with flags and bunting, and a platform was erected in the square near the church. About 1,500 electors were present, principally from Beauharnois, but there were also many from Chateauguay and Huntingdon. Warden Bow-yer was in the chair. In the course of his speech, Mr. Laurier said that he had all along wanted the Manitoba school question settled by conciliation, but the Government re-fuse. No government can settle the question in the way that the present one purposes, and the only possible way to settle it is by the means he himself proposed, and he declared that of the 215 Conservative candidates who would be nominated on June 16, more than half would be pledged against coercive legislation. The colleagues of Mr. Taillon, Mr. Desjardins and Mr. Angers in Ontario were all opposed to the Govern-
