

HER EARNEST TOOTH

Bethel was not to be easily softened. She jumped from one black mood to another.

Recalling an appeal she had made to Lord Luffton on Dan's account, she said, with flashing eyes and dilating nostrils: "Let him look to himself, for I have sworn to be avenged on him. Oh, Dan! when I think how easily he might have spared you, my blood turns to gall. My God, how I hate him! Darling, I implored him to have mercy, on my knees, and he laughed at me, curse him! Let him look to it, I say, for as sure as there is light above us, he shall yet appeal to me."

Dan, shocked by her evil look, soothing her into gentler thoughts, then said: "My sister has been very good to me, she was so kind when I told her about you, dear. She has given me her word to befriend you in your hour of need. Lucy is a dear, good girl; you must learn to love her for my sake, for she is the only living relative I have. We have arranged for you to spend the last months of the year with her. Pray your mother to forgive me, I may never see her again, but I must remember her with affection for her goodness to me. You must try to be patient and wait faithfully for me, darling. I know I cannot return to you for years, but I shall return. I will endeavor to get my time shortened and come back on ticket-of-leave. I shall claim you some day, darling. Until I do, stay with Lucy; it is my only wish, and you must obey me, for before God you are my wife."

"Time's up!" One close embrace and life seemed ended.

Months have passed away, and in the drawing-room at Luffton, Margery, with excited look, is saying:

"The poor old woman shall not go to the workhouse, of that I am resolved. I will allow her something, and so will Brinley."

"Yes, my lord, we've settled that; I only wonder what has become of the daughter."

"No good, you may depend on it," said Lady Leigh. "She had a bad case."

"Oh, mother, how can you say so! I thought her the very loveliest woman I ever saw."

"So you just like a picture by an old master."

Lord Luffton smiled cynically as Brinley said this, and poor Margery pouted; it was one thing for her to give the girl such unqualified praise and another for Brinley to indorse it so eagerly.

"Come, Lady Leigh, I challenge you to a game of chess."

"Certainly, my lord; it will give me most exquisite pleasure to beat you. Those young people can do very well without us, you see."

She looked back to where Brinley and Margery sat in the broad window-seat looking out on the moonlit grounds.

"What a glorious moon," said Margery. "I wonder how it looks to those poor poachers."

"Very different, I think, thanks to their prison bars," said Lady Leigh.

"I believe mamma and Lord Luffton are talking about us, Brinley; see how constantly they look our way."

"This is a very pleasant moon, ma belle," Lady Leigh smiled as she caught her daughter's glance, then said softly:

"So you intend to speak to Brinley about my girl tonight?"

"Yes, madam, I intend to put it pretty strong. I shall make him understand he must marry Margery, or be disinherited by me. Are you sure the match fits in with your daughter's fancy?"

"Too sure, old friend, considering I am not so certain of the gentleman."

Half an hour later Lord Luffton and Brinley sat alone at the bottle and wine and a cosy fire in the library.

Lord Luffton was saying quietly:

"I will explain to you how you can keep the old place, and of course, you know you inherit at my death but an empty title, a barren honor to so poor a man! On one condition I will make you my sole heir, if you will, it is that you marry to please me."

"A man usually marries to please himself, sir."

"Yes, and rarely succeeds in doing so. To come to the point, unless you marry Margery I will leave you absolutely nothing. You have won her heart, perhaps unwittingly, but I am sure she loves you. Why is it worse, she has promised herself by attending you at all times and seasons when you were ill after that poaching affray. Marry her, you must, or take leave of my title. Do you accept my condition?"

"I decline it, sir! A man may not wreck his life for a girl's caprice, I make one objection to the match, that is all sufficient to my thinking; I do not love the lady."

"Do you mean to tell me, that you are too foolish to refuse to me for the sake of such a sentimental fancy as this? It's madness!"

"I should be mad enough to refuse a throne if it was to be shared by a woman not of my own choosing. Thank God! I'm young enough to believe that marriage without love instead of blessing brings bitter curses."

"Believing much, shows you are indeed very young. I have stated my condition; you must do as you like about accepting it. The lady is well born, well dowered, well educated, and well worth any man's devotion."

"Were she fifty such wells I should not consider myself well wived with her; though I be beggared for it, I must love my wife, and I don't love Margery. I confess I like her, but liking is not love. Love, 'tis true, is a doubtful blessing, but its great charm consists in its not being a purchasable commodity. Suppose we drop the subject, sir. We are both men of strong will, little likely to falter in our purpose. Now we understand each other, for the sake of the old friendship, let there be peace between us. From tonight I am poorer in prospects, but richer in purpose. I have the world, and a life full of glorious possibilities before me. God has given me brains; 'tis but right I should use them. I hope to gain fortune. I do not fear, for I feel successful. Good-night, and may you shake hands? Well, as you will, yours is the ungraciousness."

CHAPTER IV.

"Storm in Heart, and Storm Overhead."

In a tiny little cottage, in the outskirts of Liverpool, in a modest little sitting-room, half-kitchen, half-parlor, two women were sitting before a fire, one reclining back in a chair made easy with pillows, holding a little baby to her breast, the child of sorrow, and for that reason the more dearly loved. The other, a fair-haired woman with a great likeness to Dan, she was writing a letter at the other's dictation to Bethel's mother, and they were both much interested in their correspondence. "Tell dear mother I am glad to hear she is so well and comfortable, and that I think it was very good of Miss Margery to be so kind to her and to allow her five shillings a week. Tell her, that I am a pleased Widow Martin is going to stop with her for good, as I should not like to leave my baby."

PLATER LANDED COLUMBUS STAKES AT JAMAICA TRACK

Six Furlongs Run in Good Time—Last Day at Lakeside—General Sport.

By Way of Comment.

The extent to which amateurism has gained footing in the city must be pleasing to every true lover of sport in this city. It has been proved that non-professionalism has a host of followers here who are ready to fight for what they want, and who so far have met with success. The rules under which all sports are being run here now are above reproach. Many of those who take an interest in baseball and lacrosse are also mixed up in other sports, and as this class of men have started the revival, a continuation of amateur play can be looked for in almost every other branch. Their methods have been tried and have proved to be the best.

Mr. Hendrie has entries in every stake, even the Minto and Waterloo handicaps. Light Brigade, an untried 3-year-old maiden, will be the stable candidate for the Toronto Cup. The O. J. Opening at Worth today.

Chicago, April 28.—Secretary Frazer last night gave out the following list of probable starters for the Worth handicap, the feature of the opening day's sport at the Worth track tomorrow: Rankin, Huzzar, Nitro, Barrick, Rolling Boer, Flying Torpedo, Felix Bard, Banter, Owenton, Paul Whaley, The Don, Port Royal.

Oh, Lucy, how good you have been to mother! Knowing of your kindness to me will make her more easy about me."

Here their conversation was interrupted by a gentle knock at the door. With a startled look Lucy began to make the room more tidy, brushing everything out of sight which looked untidy.

A tall dark man with iron-gray hair and large features entered the room. He looked a middle-aged man of courtly manners, and with something of the boy about him still. His dress was the perfection of elegance, his manner bright, as sweet to a pauper as to a princess. He came in with a cheery smile and pleasant word. Seating himself by the fire, for autumn's chilly frosts had made themselves felt, and taking his patient's hand in his he said kindly:

"Come, you are getting on splendidly; 'tis but the ninth day, and I'll warrant you could walk about bravely; and how is the little pet? She's a lovely baby. What do you intend to call her?"

"I'm sure I don't know, sir. We have not thought about it."

(To be continued.)

WON TWO STAKES IN PARIS.

Paris, April 27.—The Vanderbilt stable won two of the best stakes of the St. Cloud meeting today, Billmore, with J. Ransuch up, winning the Prix Bataillon, worth $10,000, and Marigold, with N. Turner in the saddle, coming in first in the race for the Prix Sollei, worth $3,000.

WELLER'S MAN IS ACQUITTED. Chicago, April 28.—The case against Sheet Writer Herman Weller, who, with Kid Weller, was arrested for gambling at the Lakeside track, was heard at Hammond yesterday, and resulted in his acquittal. The prosecution witnesses testified they did not see the defendant handle any money, nor did they see him enter any figures on the sheet. The prosecution introduced an expert sheet writer, but the jury, who were told that the bookmaker's sheet was all Greek to him. Herman, who was dabbling in figures at the track, was then discharged. The case against the defendant was set for a hearing tomorrow and will doubtless result as did that against Meyer.

PROSPECTS OF A MEETING. Ever since the first news of the proposed race meeting for this city came out in The Advertiser there has been an agitation among local horsemen to attain this end. The first step taken is to issue subscription lists, which are meeting with liberal contributions. A guarantee is required, and as the Grand Circuit soon meets and as arrangements would have to be made with the Grand Circuit, action must be taken immediately. It is to be hoped that the horsemen will meet with no serious obstacle.

WANTS A PAIR OF GOOD ONES. Mr. J. E. Seagrave, M. P., left Ottawa last week for a tour of bringing one or two good race horses for the Waterloo stable to race at the O. J. C. meeting at Woodbine, Toronto, next month, and also to make arrangements for the engagement of a first-class jockey for the twelve days' racing there. Mr. Seagrave had an agent at the Washington meeting, but there was nothing doing, so he went to a Canadian turf king. Mr. Seagrave wants to buy a couple of handicaps that can win here, and also win in the New York and good company, and he is not averse to paying the price for them. He hopes to get what he wants for $8,000 or $10,000 per head. The purchase has to be made by the 1st of May, as the O. J. C. meeting close a week next Saturday.

PROSPECTUS:

This Corporation has been formed for the purpose of dealing in lands in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories of Canada.

Up to a few months ago practically the whole profit from dealing in the lands in the great western portion of our country had been reaped by shrewd American investors, who realized the immense possibilities and the certain future of western Canada before we Canadians realized the immense heritage which lay within the boundaries of our own country. In the last months of the year 1902, however, the promoters of this Corporation, having, through the different financial institutions with which they are connected, been obliged to make a careful study of the western situation, became thoroughly satisfied of the value of the company's lands and of the practically assured profit from an investment in western lands that they decided to form a company to deal in land in the Canadian west. With that end in view a block of something over 125,000 acres was secured in the Big Quill Plains, in the District of Saskatchewan, and a company known as The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, was formed for the purpose of acquiring and handling this block. The stock of The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, was placed upon the market and offered to the public for subscription in January of the present year, and so prompt was the response that within one month it was necessary to close the stock books, and even then applications for a large quantity of stock were refused. But from a shareholder's standpoint the best part remains to be told. Before the sales of stock were stopped arrangements had been made with a large American land company for the sale of the whole of the company's lands at a price so largely in excess of the purchase price that the stock of The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, is already a very profitable one, and is held very firmly by its present holders, and all this was done in less than one month. Can any better proof be given of the wisdom of an investment in western lands?

At the time The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, were dealing with the Quill Plains lands the directors had in view several other available blocks of land and were having the same carefully examined, but waited until the result of the one operation proved to the Canadian public the safety and profit of an investment of this kind. This has now been abundantly shown by the success of The Eastern and Western Land Corporation, Limited, and we have therefore no hesitation in placing before the public the stock of The Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, Limited.

Few in Canada have come to realize that Canada's future in a great measure lies in the west, a country immeasurably larger than the east, and capable of supporting in comfort millions of people. Few in eastern Canada realize the great progress this western country is now making, and that before many years the west will surpass the east in point of population. Immigrants are pouring in, and the people of the United States especially are investing immense sums in land and holding for the rise which they know is sure to come. Lands in the west are increasing rapidly in value. Investments in them now are bound to realize handsome profits.

Applications and also the large Prospectus of the Company may be obtained from The Union Trust Company, Limited, Toronto, or from any branch of The Merchants Bank of Canada, or of The Union Bank of Canada, through whom also applications and payments may be forwarded.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company in 1902 sold 2,420,440 acres, as against 830,922 acres for the previous year; the Canada Northwest Land Company sold 510,000 acres, as against 120,000 acres for the previous year. The Saskatchewan Valley Land Company of St. Paul, Minn., sold over one million acres of land in 1902 at a profit of some millions of dollars; the Haslam Land and Investment Company of St. Paul, Minn., sold 1,000 acres in one year; the Northwest Colonization Company of St. Paul, Minn., sold over 500,000 acres, and if to these be added the lands sold by the Dominion and Manitoba Governments, the Canadian Northern Railway and other companies, syndicates and individuals, an opinion may be formed of the immense advance this western country has made in one year.

The Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, Limited, has purchased a large tract of land in what is known as the Vermilion River District in western Saskatchewan. It has been a tradition for years in the west that the most fertile belt of land in Canada, and therefore in the world, is situated in this district, which lies along and between the Battle River to the south and the Saskatchewan on the north. In this fertile country we have the right to select 300,000 acres of specially chosen land, and our selectors are now in the district carefully examining the land section by section. This land will lie along and between the Edmonton extension of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Trans-Continental Line of the Canadian Northern Railway, thus assuring to settlers the immense advantage of two competing lines of railway, each within easy access to their farms and to markets. For soil, water, timber, fuel, grass and hay this land is unsurpassed in the world, and these points are what determine the settler in choosing land. Our land immediately adjoins the Barr Settlement of British settlers and also Dr. Adams' colony of Nestorians, and the placing of over 20,000 settlers by these organizations in this district within the next year practically assures a rapid increase in the value of our lands.

No lands are purchased by this corporation except after a careful and capable report by the most experienced land selectors in the west, and thus practically every element of risk is eliminated from an investment in the shares of this company.

This is an investment which should especially appeal to the Canadian public, as it gives a practical certainty of profitable returns without the risk so often run in investing in companies doing a business of a hazardous nature, and it is an investment which Canadians, believing in their own country and its future, may feel that in so doing they are helping to develop their own land.

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY, Limited, now offers $800,000 of the capital stock of this Corporation, divided into 8,000 shares of $100 each, for subscription at par, 25 per cent. to be paid on application, 10 per cent. in 30 days thereafter, and 10 per cent. further in 60 days and the balance as called by the directors, if it is deemed necessary. Applications for stock will be accepted only in order of their receipt by the trustees and should be addressed to The Union Trust Company, Limited, Toronto.
