LORD HALDANE.

The man, his office and his mission combine to give Lord Haldane's visit to the United States and Canada an international interest.Lord Haldane is a giant in intellect and exactly answers the definition of a statesman as a philosopher in action.
He could vary a thriving law practice with lectures on Hegel, and could turn from his books and the bar to administer the most difficult and effete department of the British Government, the war office, which he shook to pieces and rebuilt.As Lord high chancellor he holds the highest salaried position under the crown, and next to the prime minister's, the most exalted. He is the head of the legal profession of England, and presides over the House of Lords.
Around his office cluster the traditions of centuries. By all classes and parties in Great Britain it is admitted that Lord Haldane is worthy of the wool-sack, as a lawyer, a publicist and a scholar.As the first Lord high chancellor to leave his country during his term of office in over 400 years, he pays a significant compliment to his guests, the American Bar Association. It is a testimony to the binding influence of the principles of jurisprudence. The republic made the British common law the basis of its legal system, a tie which can never be broken and which was a subtle bond of unity in the unhappiest era of Anglo-American relations. The meeting of the association on Canadian soil is another happy expression of Anglo-Saxon unity.Canada bids her visitor welcome for his own sake, and for the sake of his office and his errand.

VEILED BRIBERY.

The Hon. Robert Rogers has been out west, and making speeches. Of course, he was glorifying the Government, and abusing the Liberals. That is apparently his principal business, when he is not disposing of some land for the benefit of a party friend, or engineering an election. Speeches of that kind do not call for much attention, except from Conservative papers.
But we notice a paragraph in the Mail and Empire's report of a speech at Moose Jaw, which would seem to be characteristic of the man, not only of what he says, but of what he hints. He was condoning with the people because they did not have "responsible government." So far as we can make out the reason why they have not responsible government is because the power is in the hands of the Liberals in that province. They will not get it until they turn the Liberals out and put Conservatives in.Mr. Rogers went on to point out that one of the results of not having responsible government was that the people of the province do not control their own crown lands. Now the reason why the northwestern provinces do not control their crown lands is because when they were organized the population was small; the great need at that time was an active immigration of the best quality. They were not in a condition to establish an extensive immigration policy; they did not have the money to do it with. But the Dominion Government took charge of that matter, and spent Dominion money freely for the purpose. And if the Dominion Government was to use its money and influence to provide a population through its immigration department it was necessary that it should have the control of the vacant land upon which it wanted to settle its emigrants. That the time would come when the provinces would be able to look after this for themselves was admitted, and when they are able to do that their crown lands would be turned over to them just as is the case in the older provinces. Has that time come now? Mr. Rogers is very careful not to say so. Here is a quotation from the Mail and Empire's report:"Let us hope that the day is not far distant when through the action of your good citizens with the establishment of responsible government, under British law, and British justice, you will be able to take up with the Government of Canada the great question of the transfer from the Dominion to this province of your natural resources."If the time has come now to take up this question with the Government of which Mr. Rogers is a member, he could very well have said so. But he does not say that. He hopes they will be able to take this up with the Dominion authorities, "with the establishment of responsible government." Doubtless the more acute among his hearers recognized his meaning. "Get rid of the Liberal Government in the provinces, and establish responsible government. Then you will be able to take this matter up with the Dominion au-thorities." Veiled bribery, at the least.
And yet very cunningly worded. Because he does not say that even then Mr. Borden and his colleagues will transfer the crown lands to the province. It is the inference to be drawn from his speech. But he is careful to make no definite promise, for the very good reason that he is not anxious to surrender the opportunities that come to a corrupt politician through the control of large tracts of unoccupied land.
But he throws out the bait. Just turn out these Liberals; then come to us and see what we will do for you. All of which would seem to be very characteristic of Mr. Rogers.

PROVINCIAL REPRESENTATION.

When the premiers of the different provinces meet in consultation, as they propose doing, they will doubtless be asked by the Maritime Provinces to consider the question of representation in the Dominion Parliament. For they have felt for some years that they have had a grievance. Under the British America act, Quebec is made the standard for purposes of representation. It always has 65 members. After each census there is to be a redistribution of seats. The population of Quebec is divided by 65, and the resulting number is taken as the unit of representation for all constituencies in the Dominion. Thus, if Quebec shows 30,000 as the population of each riding, the other provinces are so divided that each riding will have the same number of voters. As a natural consequence, those provinces which have grown the most rapidly will have the greatest increase in representatives, while those that have not made progress will find their quota decreased.This rule has been working to the disadvantage of the Maritime Provinces. They lost several members after the last redistribution, while the Western Provinces had an increase.
Western result will follow from the next rearrangement of constituencies unless the law is changed. A strong protest was made ten years ago against this condition of affairs, and will be repeated now. The provincial premiers will probably content themselves with recommending the matter to the consideration of the Government; that is all they can do. Then Mr. Borden will have to wrestle with it.It is not a simple problem. The basis of representation in the Dominion House of Commons is equality of population. That is a cardinal principle of Confederation, not likely to be disregarded. Under any such system some provinces must have a larger representation than others. And if the population of any province increases faster than that of others, its representation must increase. Some effort was made to give a certain equality to the provinces, irrespective of population, by the constitution of the Senate on the principle adopted in the United States. But in this latter country the Second Chamber possesses far greater powers than ours, so that the greater proportionate strength of the Maritime Provinces in this body does not meet their grievance as to diminishing power in the popular House.We can sympathize with our eastern friends in their desire for some relief in this matter. At the same time, a violation of the basis of representation as fixed by the Confederation Act is not to be permitted without grave consideration. If it can be changed to suit the Maritime Provinces it may be changed some time to suit the west, or to suit Quebec. It is a dangerous precedent to establish. A better solution of the difficulty, and one that is largely in the hands of the people most interested, is for the eastern provinces to start a progressive campaign for their own development.
There is plenty of room for them to grow and increase their population. Of late, the tendency of immigration has been towards the west, because that is a new country. But the older east has opportunities for the settler; it has opportunities for its own people. If it wants its share of the Dominion's growth it must work for it. Prosperity does not usually come without effort made by someone. This applies to Ontario; and while the Government may encourage the best kind of immigrants, the municipalities and the people must do their share in retaining what we have. And if it applies to Ontario, it applies with greater force to the provinces down by the sea. They have not been growing as fast as they should. If they would not be quite as contented with the situation as they are, if they would bestir themselves in developing their own magnificent resources, encouraging their own people to greater activity, inducing immigrants to settle with them, they would have their full share of the national prosperity, and there would be no need to talk about amending the law, and securing themselves against any reduction in their parliamentary representation.Sam Hughes would serve the west better if he could devise a combination drill shed and grain elevator.
Congratulations to Mr. Fred. J.
Darch on his election as supreme secretary of the Independent Order of Foresters. He is an enterprising and capable citizen of London, and the I.
O. F. will be well served.At 93, Lord Strathcona has crossed the Atlantic again. Lord Strathcona was buried in Labrador from youth till nearly middle age. This will encourage those who envy his vigor and long life, and wish to know his secret.
Ald. Richter's election as presidentof the Ontario Municipal Association is a merited tribute to a man whose aptitude for municipal affairs amounts to genius. The citizens of London have been fortunate in his services, and should be glad to see them recognized by outsiders.Our local contemporary pays no compliment to local Conservative businessmen when it seeks to drive them into supporting electrification by cracking the party whip. The business community is going to be governed by business considerations. Almost to a man it is opposed to the electrification scheme.These radial roads have been the source of enormous revenues to the business people of Hamilton, and they are building up Brantford and Galt and Berlin and many other places in our immediate neighborhood, not to mention the scores and hundreds of instances scattered throughout America. Great Britain and Europe. If we close the London and Port Stanley Railway of these radial lines, what do we gain?
—London Free Press.Will our contemporary please say what radial roads are seeking to break into London over the L. and P. S. R.?

AN OLD CLAIM.

[Cleveland Plaindealer.]

And double to and fro,
A voice breaks through the hazy Confines of long ago:
"Of course, I am not crazy—
"I guess I ought to know."

ASSIMILABLE IMMIGRANTS.

[Buffalo Express.]
Canada is to be congratulated upon the character of its immigration in the last thirteen years. According to the figures just published by the Canadian Minister of the Interior, about 2,500,000 immigrants have reached the Dominion since July 1, 1900. Of these newcomers by far the greater number have been English-speaking people. The United States contributed a little more than 891,000 and the British Isles sent nearly 874,000. From countries where English is not spoken the immigration all told was about 658,000. This means that the bulk of the immigrants received by Canada have been of the easiest assimilable kind. More than 1,700,000 of the 2,500,000 newcomers spoke the language of the country which they entered and they were used to the institutions they found there.

fourteen out of every hundred Irishmen are also adepts in their respective forms of Gaelic.

IMPOSSIBLE.

THE CHIEF OBSTACLE.

[Hamilton Spectator.]
The scathing criticism of modern dances and novels by Canon Newbolt, of St. Paul's, London, England, is time, but likely unavailing. There, as elsewhere throughout the Christian world, the most flagrant offenders will continue the practices complained of, and with faces demure occupy their pews of a Sunday.

A FEW LINES

ANYTHINGOur apologies for delaying the entry of our faithful servant, Hiderow, 1:17, in the contest for the title of the oldest horse in Middlesex, begun by our esteemed "Steam," as in (roasting) contemporary.It is true that a horse may be no older than he feels. But Hiderow's looks will prove his claim to the honors, beyond peradventure. The above engraving shows him when virtually a colt, as compared with his present longevity. He now looks like a discarded radiator on clothe-hanging, and so delicate in his appetite that he subsists principally on the same substance that fills the pad that keeps Matty Matteson from getting bunions on his manly bosom, etc.Why, Hiderow, 1:17, was entered in the high jump by Nero, and later may be traced to the w-k engraving, portraying the animal in the grounds of that famous Pinch-Hitter, General Blucher. The brand of Oliver Cromwell is to be found on his forehead.
He is the Methusalem of all horse-flesh and deserves the trophy.I'D LIKE TO,

Your lawyers make us thin.
One week they try to get you out, Next week to keep you in.We receive the intelligence from an esteemed contemporary that "Mr.
Mark Hamwood will soon be connected with the town water, which will be a great convenience to him."One thing we cannot fathom is why the magazine artists who draw the front-cover beauties don't come to London.

officers will be taken on an inspection tour of the canal today. Among the entertainments arranged in honor of the visitors are a reception by Sir Claude Mallet, the British minister, on Sunday, and a ball Wednesday to be given by the members of the Resolution Adopted Asking That Motors Be Limited To Ten Miles in Hilly Country.

Toronto, Aug. 30.—Alderman J. G. Richter, of London, was elected president of the Ontario Municipal Association for the coming year at yesterday's session of that body at the city hall. The other officers elected were: First vice-president, Mayor E. Lennox, of Owen Sound; second vice-president, A. K. Bunnell, Brantford; third vice-president, W. C. Coughell, Yarmouth; fourth vice-president, Mayor C. C. Cole, of Niagara Falls; fifth vice-president, W. H. Cooper, of Hamilton; secretary-treasurer, F. S. Spence, Toronto.

Sewage Disposal.
Mr. E. Sherman Chase, of the Sewage Experimental Station, of New York, read a paper on sewage disposal, and Mr. F. S. Spence, chairman of the Toronto Harbor Commission, discussed the subject of transportation. He emphasized the importance of water communication in reducing the cost of freights and the cost of living. He also gave an interesting explanation of the plans for the improvement of Toronto harbor.

A resolution was adopted asking that the act respecting the operation of motor vehicles be amended to limit the speed of automobiles on hilly or crooked roads to ten miles an hour. "Could we not have a law passed which would make it illegal to manufacture a car that would run more than ten miles an hour?" asked a delegate. "This would stop all fines and most accidents." The suggestion was not taken up and the speaker was asked to bring it forward at a future meeting.

Town Planning.
The association decided to second the Toronto Board of Trade when it appeared before the Provincial or Federal Government to discuss questions of town planning or municipal betterment. Another resolution proposed an amendment to the local improvement act for the purpose of relieving the municipalities of the necessity to pass a separate debenture bylaw to provide for the cost of every minor public work.

CITY HALL ALTERATIONS DELAYED BY THE FIRE

Every Available Carpenter in the City Busy at Fair Grounds.

Work on the city hall alterations—that is alterations on the Spencer Block city hall have been rudely interrupted by the fire at the exhibition grounds yesterday. Every available carpenter was taken from the city hall work to the reconstruction now in progress in Queen's Park. There is considerable carpentry to be done around the temporary city offices yet, but this will have to await the completion of the temporary buildings at the fair grounds.

With the handicap occasioned by the transfer of the carpenters, the completion of the Spencer Block alterations has been thrown back more than a week. It is expected that it will be the end of September before the last of the carpenters, plumbers, paperhangers and painters are out of the city's new quarters.

In contrast to the city offices is the practically completed state of the water commission quarters. By Tuesday morning the offices of Secretary Elliott and of the hydro and waterworks department will be ready for business. The last payments of water and light bills was made at the city hall on Richmond street, today. Hereafter it will be in the new quarters that the monthly light bills and the water rates are paid.
