Grain Markets

Winnipeg. Dec. 29.—After dropping about 4c during the first hour of trading, the wheat market today staged a rally and closed 1½c to 2½c net higher at $1.63 for December, $1.65% for May ning, the wneat market today staged a rally and closed 1½ to 2½ c net higher at $1.63 for December, $1.65% for May and $1.63½ for July.

The local market reflected conditions prevailing in the Chicago pit, and was etratic at times, with trade volume small. On the recessions there was support coming, and the bulls bid prices up, with very little wheat changing hands. The market was more or less a scalping affair. At the low point for the day December touched $1.57. May $1.60 and July $1.57½.

The coarse grain markets continued dull and more or less neglected, with prices following the trend of wheat. Little pressure was in evidence in the flax market, and after an early decline, prices strengthened. The cash markets were all quiet.
