

PART A

CANADA AND INTERNATIONAL ORDER

Canada belongs to a great many international organizations in which discussions proceed on all matters of importance to the world community. Collective security, disarmament, trade, economic development, the law of the sea or the treatment of refugees are only a few of these subjects. Canadian representatives at these meetings present Canadian points of view and defend our national interests but also make their contribution to the development of a more orderly and just world society.